He came among us to assist a weak congregation—too poor to compensate him for his services. He asked nothing but to be allowed the use of the church to deliver a lecture. The congregation was only too glad to grant it. Let him have an ovation. His prices of admission are only one-third what we paid to hear Eli Perkins, who is but an insignificant persouification of quaintly worded platitudes and witticisms, while the other is a bunch of first water brilliants. In the mean time let everybody go and listen to his preaching during the present week and they will most assuredly attend the lecture. It is worth going miles to hear.

Nov. 27.—A dense crowd assembled at the M. E. Church, last night, to hear the great evangelist on the theme: "No one in heaven, yet; and no one in hell, yet." It is impossible to describe the remarkably successful manner in which Bro. Crowe handled the subject. It is enough to say that his hearers came away with the conviction that he is the greatest preacher of the gospel that they have ever heard.

The Utzinger cor. corrects a mistake for us that we should have done. We wrote the item before the official count was made, hence the mistake. The cor. said she wanted to give news that would do no harm, but from the tone of that item she seems to think some Democrats have bolted down in the Pete precinct. That is no harm to accuse, when she can't prove that such a thing has been done.

Hebron.

Nov. 20.—In the trial preferred against Perry Aylor, of this place, by some of the friends of education in this vicinity who had charged him with some very damaging acts, he proved his honesty by his opponents not putting in their appearance at the Court-house. We need honest men like Mr. Aylor holding the reins of our public schools.

A Home Mission Services, which were to be held last Sunday week, were postponed on account of inclement weather, were held Sunday with a liberal offering.

At three o'clock p. m., Saturday the 19th inst., P. L. Aylor gave two of the young men of this vicinity permission to have a party at his house that evening. Before 8 o'clock, the guests, numbered 54. Among these were, Mr. Frank Hossman's family; Mr. Elza Harper's family; Mr. Jacob Lodge's family; Jno. Mannin and wife, Mr. Theodore Crigler and daughter; Mr. Thos. Brown, of Larkin, and Miss Minnie Rockwell, of Brookville, Ind., the rest being young people of the neighborhood. Nice games of every variety were indulged in, and before the young people hardly knew it, Sunday had arrived and all—both young and old, prepared to take their departure. Every one expressed themselves as having had an excellent time, and extended invitations of welcome to Mr. Aylor and family to visit them at their homes, also requesting of him not to make that his last party, but to have them quite frequently if convenient.

Mrs. Tom Hafer has been ill for the past week, but is better at the present writing.

He also saw the elictric cars for the first time. He, no doubt, could interest most any of us if we could hear him relate some of the city sights seen with country eyes.

After the ceremony they repaired to the home of bride, where a warm reception awaited them. On the following day they and many of their friends were royally entertained at the home of the groom. The happy couple have many friends who join the writer in congratulations and wish for them much sunshine of happiness and prosperity, and as little of the rough winds of adversity as possible.

Two Big Suits.

John Watson, by his attorneys, O. M. Rogers and R. P. Harggett, has filed suit in the Boone Circuit Court against Martin and Beu Michaels for $15,000 damages. He charges that on the 11 day of Sept., 1898, that the Michaels with a revolver or revolvers shot him in the face and abdomen, from which he suffered great bodily pain and is permanently injured. The trouble out of which the above suit grows was the Sunday shooting, Sept. 11th, in which Joe Michaels and Jouas McGraw were killed.

Samuel Kirtley, Lee Kirtley, Edward Kirtley, Mary K. Brashier and Zera S. Brashier, of Missouri, have filed in the Boone Circuit Court, a suit against Reuben Hager, Auna Hager, B. C. Stephens, F. M. Stephens and Tom Smith, colored, that involves a portion of the tract of land owned by the late William Kirtley in East Bend in this county.

The plaintiffs are children of Cave Kirtley, and grandchildren of the late Wiliam Kirtley.

On August 25th, 1862, William Kirtley executed his will, and in item three, thereof, he directed his land to be divided as follows: "I desire that after the death of my wife that my lands in Boone county, Ky., the same on which I now reside, be divided in two equal parts as near as can by a line as follows: Beginning on the bank of the Ohio river, opposite the center of the gate which closes the end of the lane leading to the house; thence northwardly and parallel with said line dividing my lands and the lane dividing my own and Milton Kirtley's lands to where said lane intersects the road leading to the dwelling house upon the high bank of little fork of Lick creek ou Fauqua branch; thence with said road to the gate on the Big Bone and Rising Sun road; thence along the road leading up Fauqua branch to a polut from where a line to the line of Wm. Rice's heirs and parallel with said line dividing my lands and Milton Kirtley's will make an equal division as above; thence back to the beginning."

In item six one half of the western half of the land was willed to Omer Kirtley.

In item seven of the will, the following bequest is made: "I give to my son, Omer, in trust for my son, Cave and his heirs, the remainder of the western or upper half of my land as divided in item No. 3, for their use and benefit."

On August 25, 1865, Cave Kirtley and wife conveyed to Omer Kirtley the interest of Cave Kirtley and his heirs, as devised by William Kirtley's will, the deed reciting $4,500 as the considerations, and afterwards Omer Kirtley conveyed portions of these lands to the defendants Hager, Smith, and Stephens. The plantiffs charge the deed from Cave Kirtley and wife to Omer Kirtley was obtained through fraud, that Omer Kirtley might not be compelled to account for the rents of same; and that instead of $4,500 being the consideration, their father received only $700 in money, and other small consideration. They ask that the deeds to Hager, Smith and the two Stephens be cancelled, and that G. M. Allen and Reuben Hager, executors of the will of Omer Kirtley, be required to make a settlement of their accounts, &c. They charge that their father did not know the real value of the land when he sold to Omer Kirtley. If the plantiffs are successful in their suit, the defendants will sustain considerable loss, as the plaintiffs are demanding the value of the land at the time it was conveyed to Omer Kirtley, together with interest thereon up to date of the filing of their petition.

Omer Kirtley in his will devised all the land devised by his father to him and Cave Kirtley to Mrs. Reuben Hager, except two acres which he willed to Tom Smith, with remainder to Mrs. Reuben Hager, and the parcels he had conveyed to F. M. and B. C. Stephens.

A Narrow Escape.

Mr. S. J. Ewalt, of Hamilton, was in town, Saturday, carrying his hand in a sling, the injury resulting from a very exciting experience one night a week or more since. He was going home one dark night, and was relying on his horse to pilot the buggy safely past all dangerous points along the road. Just before reaching Normansville the horse lost the road and plunged down a very steep bank, Mr. Ewalt and the buggy going clear over the horse, and he and the horse and the vehicle piled up against a wire fence at the foot of the bank, the horse being held down by the wire feuce, while some very large rocks that were loosened by the disaster pinued Mr. Ewalt to the ground, where despite his calls for help he laid for about two hours, fearing all the time that the horse, in its struggles to release itself, would kick his brains out. His calls were heard by several who thought they were made by some mischievous boys, but finally rescue came and Mr. Ewalt was taken from his perilous position, almost exhausted, and badly hurt. The horse was so fastened by the smooth wires that it was only slightly injured. Mr. Ewalt says he has done his last traveling on a dark night, as he cannot see when it is very dark, and is thoroughly satisfied that a horse cauuot be depended on to plumb the road at all times.

DAWN OF A CENTURY

Dr. Talmage Preaches of the Brightness in Which It Comes.

America To-day the Chosen Nation of God—What the Old Century Leaves Behind It—Christianity Is Spreading.

[Copyright, 1898.]

This sermon of Dr. Talmage is an anticipation of things near at hand and urges preparation for stirring events; text, I Chronicles, 12:32: "The children of Issachar, which were men that had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do."

Great tribe, that tribe of Issachar. When Joab took the census, there were 145,600 of them. Before the almanac was born, through astrological study, they knew from stellar conjunctions all about the seasons of the year. Before agriculture became an art they were skilled in the raising of crops. Before politics became a science they knew the temper of nations, and whenever they marched, either for pleasure or war, they marched under a three-colored flag—topaz, sardine and carbuncle. But the chief characteristic of that tribe of Issachar was that they understood the times. They were not like the political and moral incompetents of our day, who are trying to guide 1898 by the theories of 1828. They looked at the divine indications in their own particular century. So we ought to understand the times, not the times when America was 13 colonies huddled together along the Atlantic coast, but the times when the nation dips one hand in the ocean on one side the continent and the other hand in the ocean on the other side the continent; times which put New York Narrows and the Golden Horn of the Pacific within one flash of electric telegraphy; times when God is as directly, as positively, as solemnly, as tremendously addressing us through the daily newspaper and the quick revolution of events as he ever addressed the ancients or addresses us through the Holy Scriptures. The voice of God in Providence is as important as the voice of God in typology, for in our own day we have had our Sinais with thunders of the Almighty, and Calvaries of sacrifice, and Gethsemanes that sweat great drops of blood, and Olivets of ascension, and Mount Pisgahs of far-sweeping vision. The Lord who rounded this world 6,000 years ago and sent his Son to redeem it near 1,900 years ago has yet much to do with this radiant but agonized planet. May God make us like the children of Issachar, "which were men that had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do."

The grave of this century will soon be dug. The cradle of another century will soon be rocked. There is something moving this way out of the eternities, something that thrills me, blanches me, appalls me, exhilarates me, enraptures me. It will wreathe the orange blossoms for millions of weddings. It will beat the dirge for millions of obsequies. It will carry the gilded banners of brightest mornings and the black flags of darkest midnights. The world will play the grand march of its heroes and sound the rogues' march of its cowards. Other processions may halt or break down or fall back, but the procession led by that leader moves steadily on and will soon be here. It will preside over coronations and dethronements. I hail it! I bless it! I welcome it! The twentieth century of the Christian era.

What may we expect of it and how shall we prepare for it are the momentous questions I propose now to discuss. As in families human nativity is anticipated by all sanctity and kindliness and solemnity and care and hopefulness, so ought we prayerfully, hopefully, industriously, confidently prepare for the advent of a new century. The nineteenth century must not treat the twentieth on its arrival as the eighteenth century treated the nineteenth. Our century inherited the wrecks of two revolutions and the superstitions of age. Around its cradle stood the armed assassin of old world tyrannies; the "reign of terror," bequeathing its horrors; Robespierre, plotting his diabolism; the Jacobin club, with its wholesale massacre; the guillotine, chopping its beheadments. The ground quaking with the great guns of Marengo, Wagram and Badajos. All Europe in convulsion. Asia in comparative quiet, but the quietness of death. Africa in the clutches of the slave trade. American savages in full cry, their scalping knives lifted. The exhausted and poverty struck people of America sweating under the debt of $200,000,000, which the revolutionary war had left them. Washington just gone into the long sleep at Mount Vernon, and the nation in bereavement. Aaron Burr, the champion libertine, becoming soon after vice president. The government of the United States only an experiment, most of the philosophers and statesmen and governments of the earth prophesying it would be a disgraceful failure. No poor foundling laid at night on the cold steps of a mansion, to be picked up in the morning, was poorer off than this century at its nativity. The United States government had taken only 12 steps on its journey, its constitution having been formed in 1789, and most of the nations of the earth laughed at our government in its first attempts to walk alone.

The birthday of our nineteenth century occurred in the time of war. Our small United States navy, under Capt. Truxton, commanding the frigate Constellation, was in collision with the French frigates La Vengeance and La Insurgente, and the first infant cries of this century were drowned in the roar of naval battle. And political strife on this continent was the hottest, the parties rending each other with pantherine rage. The birthday present of this nineteenth century was vituperation, public unrest, threat of national demolition and horrors national and international. I adjure you, let not the twentieth century be met in that awful way, but with all brightness of temporal and religious prospects.

First, let us put upon the cradle of the new century a new map of the world. The old map was black with too many barbarisms and red with too many slaughters and pale with too many sufferings. Let us see to it that on that map, so far as possible, our country from ocean to ocean is a Christianized continent—schools, colleges, churches and good homes in long line from ocean beach to ocean beach. On that map Cuba must be free. Porto Rico must be free. The archipelago of the Philippines must be free. If cruel Spain expects by procrastination and intrigue to get back what she has surrendered, then the warships Iowa and Indiana and Brooklyn and Texas and Vesuvius and Oregon must be sent back to southern waters or across to the coast of Spain to silence the insolence, as decidedly as last summer they silenced the Cristobal Colon and Oquendo and Maria Teresa and Vizcaya. When we get those islands thoroughly under our protectorate, for the first time our missionaries in China will be safe. The atrocities imposed on those good men and women in the so-called Flowery Kingdom will never be resumed, for our guns will be too near Hong-Kong to allow the massacre of missionary settlements.

On that map must be put the isthmian canal, begun if not completed. No long voyages around Cape Horn for the world's merchandise, but short and cheap communication by water instead of expensive communication by rail train, and more millions will be added to our national wealth and the world's betterment than I have capacity to calculate.

On the map which we will put on the cradle on the new century we must have very soon a railroad bridge across Bering strait, those 36 miles of water, not deep, and they are spotted with islands capable of holding the piers of a great bridge. And what with America and Asia thus connected and Siberian railway, and a railroad now projected for the length of Africa, and Palestine and Persia and India and China and Burma intersected with railroad tracks, all of which will be done before the new century is grown up, the way will be open to the quick civilization and evangelization of the whole world. The old map we used to study in our boyish days is dusty and on the top shelf or amid the rubbish of the garret, and so will the present map of the world, however gilded and beautifully bound, be treated, and an entirely new map will be put into the infantile hand of the coming century.

The work of this century has been to get ready. All the earth is now free to the Gospel except two little spots, one in Asia and one in Africa, while at the beginning of the century there stood the Chinese wall and there flamed the fires and there glittered the swords that forbade entrance to many islands and large reaches of continent. Borneo cruelties and Fiji island cannibalism have given way, and all the gates of the continents are swung open with a clang that has been a positive and glorious invitation for Christianity to enter. Telegraph, telephone and phonograph are to be consecrated to Gospel dissemination, and, instead of the voice that gains the attention of a few hundred or a few thousand people within the church walls, the telegraph will thrill the glad tidings and the telephone will utter them to many millions. Oh, the infinite advantage that the twentieth century has over what the nineteenth century had at the starting!

In preparation for this coming century we have time in the intervening years to give some decisive strokes at the seven or eight great evils that curse the world. It would be an assault and battery upon the coming century by this century if we allowed the full blow of present evils to fall upon the future. We ought somehow to cripple or minify some of these abominations. Alcoholism is to-day triumphant, and are we to let the all-devouring monster that has throttled this century seize upon the next without first having filled his accursed hide with stinging arrows enough to weaken and stagger him? We have wasted about 25 years. How so? While we have been waiting for the law of the land to prohibit intoxicants we have done little to quench the thirst of appetite in the palate and tongue of a whole generation. Where are the public and enthusiastic meetings that used to be held 30 years ago for the one purpose of persuading the young and middle aged and old that strong drink is poisonous and damning? When will we learn that we must educate public opinion up to a prohibitory law or such a law will not be passed or if passed will not be executed? God grant that all state and national legislatures may build up an impassable wall, shutting out the alcoholic abomination. But while we wait for that let us, in our homes, in our schools and our churches and on our platforms and in our newspapers, persuade the people to stop taking alcoholic stimulant unless prescribed by physicians, and then persuade physicians not to prescribe it if in all the dominions of therapeutics there may be found some other remedy.

Oh, save the young man of to-day and greet the coming century with a tidal wave of national redemption! Do not put upon the cradle of the twentieth century a mountain of demijohns and beer barrels and rum jugs and put to its infant lips wretchedness, disease, murder and abandonment in solution. Aye, reform that army of inebriates. "Ah," you say, "it cannot be done. That shows that you will be of no use in the work. "O ye of little faith!" Away back in early times President Davis, of Princeton college, one day found a man in utter despair because of the thrall of strong drink. The president said to him: "Sir, be of good cheer. You can be saved. Sign the pledge." "Ah," said the despairing victim, "I have often signed the pledge, but I have always broken my pledge." "But," said the president, "I will be your strength to keep the pledge. I will be your friend and with a loving arm around you will hold you up. When your appetite burns, and you feel that you must gratify it, come to my house. Sit down with me in the study or with the family in the parlor, and I will be a shield to you. All that I can do for you with my books, my sympathy, my experience, my society, my love, my money, I will do. You shall forget your appetite and master it." A look of hope glowed on the poor man's face, and he replied: "Sir, will you do all that?" "Surely I will." "Then I will overcome." He signed the pledge and kept it. That plan of President Davis which saved one man, tried on a large scale, will save a million men.

What a boon to the world if Russia and Germany and England and the United States could safely disband all their standing armies and dismantle their fortresses and spike their guns! What uncounted millions of dollars would be saved, and, more than that, what a complete cessation of human

FRENCH REPAIR SYSTEM.

Road Work Is Thoroughly Systematized and Carried On Under Intelligent Supervision.

Before MacAdam's time it was thought necessary to construct stone roads with a foundation of large stones; the small, broken stone was then spread over them, and traffic was depended on to consolidate them into a smooth and hard roadway. Moreover, in France upright, protruding stones were placed at the edges of the foundation, in order to enclose the smaller stone. These roads were often two feet deep and yet they were badly into ruts. When the holes were filled, travel avoided the repaired spots and new ruts were formed.

MacAdam did away with the large stone foundation, and showed that small material, properly laid and compacted, would distribute the pressure equally on the real road beneath and also serve to effectually shed the water which fell upon it. The new system was economical and simple, but had what seemed at first to be one drawback—the roads required constant watching and frequent repairs. This, however, is regarded as really a blessing, as the construction of the roads makes it easy to keep them in condition. In France this work is thoroughly systematized and is carried on very effectively. The system, as described by the Paris correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, is as follows:

A chief engineer is at the head of each department, and he has several assistant engineers, each in charge of a subdivision called an arrondissement. All the roads in these arrondissements are visited and examined by them at least quarterly, and oftener if necessary. These engineers in turn have lieutenants, called conductors, who oversee certain lengths of road which they must look over in detail at least semimonthly. Under the conductors come the cantonniers who do the manual labor, each one caring for a "canton," or stretch about two miles long. Five or six cantons are grouped together and their cantonniers form a brigade, one of whom is made chief, and has a shorter stretch to care for in order that he may oversee the others. If a piece of road absolutely requires it, one or more laborers, called auxiliaires, are given a cantonnier to aid him.

Besides overseeing their roads the conductors give all orders to the chief cantonniers, examine their work and report on their conduct and make written reports to the engineers twice each month. They keep the accounts of their divisions and report on petitions or new projects. They are obliged to do all their traveling on foot, examine into the smallest details and give the necessary explanations and directions to the cantonniers.

The canton of the chief cantonnier must be the best kept of the brigade, in order to show his superiority over the other men. These men are nominated by the prefect of the department according to certain conditions: They must be between 21 and 40 years old; suffer from no infirmity that interferes with daily labor; have previous experience in work shops appertaining to their work or have worked on the roads in some capacity; possess a certificate of good conduct and be able to read and write.

The cantonniers must remain on the roads from sunrise to sundown in winter, and from five a. m. to seven p. m. in summer. They are allowed to build shelters or have movable shelters in which they can seek refuge during storms, but they cannot absent themselves from the roads. Each one has an account book and a register and keeps a daily account of his work and the time occupied in each task. At the end of each month the conductor recapitulates the account and sends it to the engineer.

In this way the roads are never without the most careful attention, and expensive and annoying repairs are rendered unnecessary.

Stockmen Are Prosperous.

It is said that, although preparing for feeding in the approaching winter on as extensive a scale as the available supplies of stock cattle will admit, western feeders are borrowing much less money than usual for that purpose. This is explained by saying that they do not find borrowing as wholesale a necessity as for some years past—in short, that things are coming toward the farmer of the west in a way that makes him a most cheerful man. He is certainly to be heartily congratulated upon such improvement in his affairs as the circumstance mentioned would indicate.—National Stockman.

WINTER PROTECTION

How to Prevent the Killing of Berries of All Kinds and Grapes by Severe Weather.

Some of the best varieties of blackberries, raspberries and grapes are killed by severe winter weather and do not do well north of the latitude of St. Louis. These may be saved by laying them down and giving them a little protection from the cold weather.

This is often neglected because it is thought to be a slow and hard job to do, but such is not the case. In half a day a man and boy can lay down a large patch of berry bushes and do it well. The directions for doing this will apply to grapevines and peach trees, the laying down of peach trees requiring a little more care and time. Begin at the south end of the row of bushes and with a spade take out a good spadeful of soil from the south side of the bush. Then press the bush over toward the south by pressing it with the foot close to the ground. When the top is lying on the ground put the soil dug out on the tops to hold them in position and proceed by treating the next bush in the same way, laying the top of it on the base of the bush first pressed down. Continue this until the whole patch is laid down in rows, the top of one bush resting on the roots of its neighbor to the south. When freezing weather comes—not before—cover the bushes laid down with cornstalks thrown on in a hit-and-miss manner, so the snow will drift in among them, and the whole will keep safely until spring, when the covering may be removed from the bushes and left on the ground as a mulch.

Rosebushes and tender shrubbery of all kinds may be laid down in a similar way and kept perfectly through the severest winters.—Farmer's Voice.

EFFECT OF SILAGE.

It Improves the Quantity of Milk and Butter Rather Than Detracting from It.

Repeated experiments have shown that no fear is to be entertained as to the effect of ensilage on the quality of milk. Some of the most progressive dairymen in the country feed it, even those that are shipping milk at fancy prices to thousands of customers. Good silage fed properly is bound to improve the quality of the milk and butter rather than detract from it. If the silage is kept in the barn with the cows and parts of the silage refuse allowed to pile up and rot in the corners of the cow stable till it becomes a fetid mass then very likely the milk will be affected, for it is believed that the odors of such masses will readily impart themselves to the milk. This is denied, we know, by those who assert that milk will not take in odors when in the warm state, but we are suspicious of that kind of reasoning. One dairyman says that he began the feeding of silage with a good deal of fear, but after he had fed for some time his commission man wrote to him that his butter was the best in quality that it had ever been at that time of year. As the seller of the butter knew nothing about the silage being fed, the letter was taken as a proof that silage, rightly fed, improves rather than detracts from the quality of the butter. Similar incidents are constantly coming to light, and this is only part proof that silage is one of the best friends of the dairyman.—Farmers' Review.

MILK PAIL COVERS.

On the Island of Jersey They Are Used on Every Well-Conducted Dairy Farm.

On the isle of Jersey, it is said, they cover the milk pail with muslin and milk into it. To hold the cloth in place they cut a piece of spring steel a little smaller than the top of the pail. A piece of the cloth is cut to be larger than the pail top and the edge is hemmed over the steel, and this is placed over the top of the pail, the steel holding it in place. To get the cloth the right size, pass the cloth over the pail and fasten it in place with the spring; then mark where the spring comes, fold up the hem just there and run the spring through it. A similar arrangement, used by a Virginia dairyman, was made of a ring of telegraph wire, cut to be an inch smaller than the top of the pail and bent so the ends would almost meet. A circle of cloth an inch larger all around than the ring, so there should be a little sag, had a hem about the edge, through which the wire was run. This was placed just within the rim of the pail and milked into. One of these was counted as part of each milk pail. The fifth gathered upon it was proof of the need of it, but, while a gain over the open milk pail, it is not as good as the other, which protects the entire top, even to the place of pouring out.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Apples are largely composed of water and it would astonish many to know how many barrels of water is drawn from the ground when the yield is 15 to 20 barrels to the acre.

An apple tree when full grown healthy and in good shape for manufacturing apples has from 300,000 to 500,000 leaves which are the lungs or breathing tubes of our apple trees.

The currant is a fruit of great excellence and very popular with almost everyone. The growing of this fruit is not overdone, yet it about as easily grown and at as little expense as any fruit placed on the market.

We should not allow blue grass to set in our orchards as it consumes too much of the water so essential for the maturity of perfect fruit.—The roots of blue grass have been known to penetrate the ground to the depth of 16 feet.—Western Plowman.

ONE COLLEGE IN THE WAR.

There Were Many Men from Cornell in the Recent Conflict with Spain.

How large a share Cornellians played in the war cannot at once be known in its entirety. Certain it is that students and alumni of this university served in the United States navy—in the staff, in the line, in the engineer corps, and in the naval militia; that they held commissions as officers of regulars in the United States army, in which recent alumni had been serving for some years, and in which they fought at Santiago; that they fought, and some, alas, fell at Guasimas with the rough riders, and before Santiago in the Seventy-first New York volunteers, where Clifton Beckwith Brown, of Cleveland, O., a member of the class of 1900, was killed by a Spanish bullet upon the hill of San Juan; that they were among the first to land upon the soil of Porto Rico, and raise the American flag over the first city captured; and that at Manila, in the far Philippines Cornellians shared in Dewey's naval victory, and again Cornellians in the Utah battery helped to bear the brunt of the savage night attack of the Spaniards when land fighting there began, and, in the Astor battery, the brunt of the last land fighting of the war when Manila itself was taken.

Not only did every New York regiment take to the front its quota of Cornellians, but as this record shows they demonstrated once more the broadly national character of the constituency and services of this university by enlisting with the troops of many a state, even as far away as distant Utah. Nor were they more confined in the kind of service rendered, for they went to the front as officers and as privates, as surgeons and as chaplains, as cavalrymen, as artillerymen, as infantrymen and as engineers. In every scene of the drama of war, by flood and field, in east and west, from first to last, they have done heroic service, and when their full roll and record can be made out it may fitly hang in the place of honor on the walls of the American history seminary room, in the university library, an impressive reminder that Cornell men not only help to write, but that they help to make American history.—St. Louis Republic.

WOUND BY THE SUN.

The Scientific Method by Which an Indianapolis Man Runs His Clock.

M. Burton, of Indianapolis, has two novelties in his home. One is a clock which has not been wound in three years and six months, but which has run all the time. It is wound by a more reliable agency than anything human. It may be said to be wound by the solar system. In this invention the action of heat expanding and cold contracting is the basis. The clock is wound by changes in the temperature, the principal force being in the day and night differences. Mr. Burton found that there is an average difference of 20 degrees in the temperature of the night and the day. The day, of course, is the warmer. The heat of the day expands the atmosphere and the lower temperature of the night contracts it.

This is how Mr. Burton applied the force to his clock—an ordinary old-style clock—using a weight: Outside of his house he has a tin tank, ten feet high and nine inches in diameter. It is airtight. From this tube runs into the cellar. This tube leads to a cylindrical reservoir, which receives the air from the tank. In this reservoir there is a piston, whose rod moves with a ratchet between the chain on which the piston depends. The heat of the sun expands the atmosphere in the exterior tank, thus forcing any excess into the reservoir near the clock. During expansion the piston rises. In the nighttime the contraction of the air in the exterior tank reduces the air in the reservoir and the piston lowers itself. The ratchet arrangement winds the clock.

Another scientific novelty is a copper globe. It is divided into a number of airtight compartments. During exposure to the sun, this globe revolves, because, Mr. Burton says, of the expansion of the heated air in the chambers facing the sun and the contraction of the atmosphere in those not exposed to the heat of the sun's rays. The globe was made by him to demonstrate his theory that the revolutions of the earth are regulated by the expansion and contraction of the atmosphere.—Indianapolis News.

Careful of His Health.

His imperial majesty, the emperor of Japan, has put into operation so many reforms that he has almost Americanized the island, but he retains enough of his ancient power to enforce obedience to his royal will. Just now there is an epidemic of influenza in Japan, and the minister of the household has issued the following instructions: "Special care should be taken to avoid having audience with the emperor when under the influence of cold or otherwise ill. Those officials who have to approach the emperor or whose duties take them to the inner part of the court, should be careful to avoid coming in contact with the patients, and in otherwise unavoidable circumstances they are to take a bath and change their clothes before attending office. Those who have to approach the emperor or to proceed to the inner part of the court shall refrain from attending the office in the event of their believing that they have caught the epidemic cold, or in case of their having actually been suffering from the malady they shall attend the office only after bathing and a change of clothing three days after complete recovery."—Golden Days.

His Dimensions.

"Don't you think Parson Pray is a broad preacher?"

"Well, I don't know; he's certainly an awful long one."—Puck.

A NOBLE HOBO.

An Austrian Count Who Is Writing a History of Human Life—Lives in the Best Hotels.

Rocco Dianovich, a count of royal Austrian blood, according to his story, who is known in every country of the habitable globe as "The Noble Hobo," is in Pittsburgh on the last trip about the world which has consumed 35 years. He says he is gathering facts for a history of human life, and goes about on foot to better obtain the data he requires. He says he will publish his book in New York, and return to Austria, where his mother and brother still live. Count Dianovich will remain in Pittsburgh three weeks visiting educational institutions, says the News of that city.

The "noble hobo" always walks, though that ends his resemblance to the genus "hobo." He lives at the best hotels and always has plenty of money. He began his wanderings in search of the facts of ordinary life in 1863, and in that time has been over the whole globe several times. During the ten years' war in Cuba he served an enlistment in the United States navy, serving on the Congress, under Lieut. William T. Sampson, now rear admiral, shortly after the Virginius affair. He will visit Cuba shortly to secure the facts of existing conditions there and will then go to Madrid for the Spanish side of the case.

WEDDING GUESTS.

They Were Supplied with Car Fare from New York to the Country House.

"Each invitation to an out-of-town wedding a few weeks ago contained a card providing the guest with railway fare from New York to the country house where the ceremony took place," remarks an up-to-date writer in the New York Sun. "After the invitations had been issued, however, the hostess discovered that this card failed to include the three-cent ferry fare from New York to Long Island City, so on the day of the wedding a number of small boys were stationed on this side of the ferry with the object of waylaying wedding guests and relieving them of the necessity of paying fare. One man, who, like the other guests, was ignorant of the situation, was somewhat taken aback when an urchin suddenly accosted him with 'Wedding guest? I thought so. Well, come along with me, and I'll pay the fare.' But,' gasped the guest, gazing long and hard at this Ancient Mariner in juvenile form, 'how did you know I was going to the wedding?' 'Easy enough,' was the answer. 'Anybody kin tell de men by der hats, but I tell ye wot, it's tough to pick out de wimmen wot's going.'"

Burmese Feasts.

"The Burmese," says a writer in the Pall Mall Magazine, "will sacrifice any prospect of money-making to go to a feast. These are called pives, and often the entertainment is elaborate. I remember going to one in Upper Burmah. There was a good deal of dancing, but neither the host nor his guests danced; that would have been undignified. The dancers were paid, and they twirled lazily or jumped excitedly as occasion required. Most of the time, however, was spent in chatter and smoking. Smoking is the only thing at which the Burmese are industrious. They start smoking at the early age of three, and they smoke themselves into the next world. Girls smoke quite as assiduously as the men and as the cigars are very big many a pretty mouth is strained to accommodate a giant cheroot."

Spider in Her Ear.

An elderly Philadelphia woman, Sarah Lowe, recently went to St. Mary's hospital and asked to be relieved of distressing noises in her ears. Experts who were given charge of the case found a living spider that had made a nest of her ear. This was successfully removed, and the old lady now hears as well as ever.

Her Guess.

He—For a week I have not slept an hour at a time. I have tossed upon my bed night after night, only to arise weary and depressed in the mornings. I cannot eat. I come and go and am weighed down with one all-pervading thought. It is with me in my waking hours. It is with me in my dreams.

She—Ah, it is too bad. I'm sorry for you.

"Marie, have you not guessed what it is that troubles me?"

"Yes. You're afraid there may be another call for men and you'll have to go and fight."

An hour afterward he was still walking around in a circle and wondering whether she really meant it or not.—Chicago Evening News.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. Pinkham Relieved Her of All Her Troubles.

Mrs. MADGE BABCOCK, 176 Second St., Grand Rapids, Mich., had ovarian trouble with its attendant aches and pains, now she is well. Here are her own words:

"Your Vegetable Compound has made me feel like a new person. Before I began taking it I was all run down, felt tired and sleepy most of the time, had pains in my back and side, and such terrible headaches all the time, and could not sleep well nights. I also had ovarian trouble. Through the advice of a friend I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and since taking it all troubles have gone. My monthly sickness used to be so painful, but have not had the slightest pain since taking your medicine. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too much. My husband and friends see such a change in me. I look so much better and have some color in my face."

Mrs. Pinkham invites women who are ill to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is freely offered.

Confession of a Millionaire.

A millionaire confessed the secret of his success in two words—hard work. He said he put in the best part of his life in gaining dollars and losing health, and now he was putting in the other half in spending dollars to get back health. Nothing equals Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for restoring health to the overtired body and brain. It gets at the starting point—the stomach—and overcomes nervousness, sleeplessness, dyspepsia and indigestion.

The cold keeps active the pain of Sciatica. St. Jacobs Oil drives it out.

Half Sick Half Well

Many persons have their good day and their bad day. Others are about half sick all the time. They have headache, backache, and are restless and nervous. Food does not taste good, and the digestion is poor; the skin is dry and sallow and disfigured with pimples or eruptions; sleep brings no rest and work is a burden.

What is the cause of all this? Impure blood.
And the remedy?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It clears out the channels through which poisons are carried from the body. When all impurities are removed from the blood nature takes right hold and completes the cure.

If there is constipation, take Ayer's Pills. They awaken the drowsy action of the liver; they cure biliousness.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1898. NO. 7.

SPAIN held this country up for $20,000,000.

CONGRESS is doing business at the old stand again.

DEWEY'S great victory may yet prove to be a disaster to this country.

COL. BERRY'S official majority in this district from the last election is 4,168.

THE linseed oil trust which collapsed early in the year is soon to be reorganized, backed by $32,000,000 of Wall street capital.

THE dissolution of the United States of Central America resulted after an existence of the government for only one month.

THE farmers in many counties of this State held meetings and appointed delegates to the tobacco growers meeting held in Lexington, last Monday.

SPAIN has sold to this country her sovereignty in the Philippines, but in its stead she will deliver a full grown insurrection, thereby obtaining $20,000,000 under false pretenses.

SHAFTER won a great victory at Santiago, but is not able to tell how it was done. The fact is Shafter, unintentionally, got his army in a place where the subordinate officers saw they had to whip the enemy or be annihilated, and they made a desperate effort, took desperate chances and won.

ROBERT SIMMONS, the oldest member of the Kenton county bar, died last Wednesday, after a brief illness of pneumonia at his home near Covington. Mr. Simmons was a prominent man in the county, and had represented it twice in the General Assembly, once in the Senate and once in the House.

AT Trout's Precinct, Trimble county, on last election day there voted the Democratic ticket straight father, son, grandson and great-grandson. The names are Frederick Crafton, Jackson Crafton, Ixion Crafton, and great-grandson James S. Bolder. Old "Daddy Crafton" came to this county from Virginia 68 years ago, married and settled, and now has 136 descendants, all Democrats.

JOHN D. WHITE, the "Crested Jay-Hawker," who was an independent Republican candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District went before the State Board of Election Commissioners and protested against Boering receiving the certificate, charging the Republicans with illegally placing Boering's name on the ticket. White said he would rather take his chances before a Democratic board than a partisan Republican Congress.

DR. R. S. SUTTON, a prominent Pittsburg surgeon, who, with the rank of Major, served through the recent war with Spain, has a poor opinion of health conditions in the Philippines. He says:

"I have made a study of leprosy, and I am prepared to say that Americans held there in confinement as our soldiers will be if compelled to guard the Philippines, will contract the disease. The climate is hot and dry, and is not fit for any one used to America. It will prove deadly to the boys if they must stay there, and the best thing for us to do is to get them home as quickly as possible. Holding the islands is a mistake. I think we ought to sell them to Japan."

MR. CARNEGIE, who was one of the most liberal contributors to the McKinley Presidential campaign fund, draws the following discouraging picture of the future, as a result of acquisition, by this country of the Philippine islands:

"Perhaps the President of the United States will order the American soldier to shoot down men whose only crime is that they fight for the independence of their country, which the American has been brought up to believe a prize worthy of all sacrifice. Recruits cannot be had for the regular army to-day. The pay of the army must be raised. It is safe to say that the additional burdens which the President must finally place upon the American people will not amount to less than $100,000,000 per annum, all of this required because the country will have to maintain a great army and a navy equal to those of European Powers, in order to defend worthless foreign possessions from which no benefit can now be reaped, American products having been effectually excluded."

The Teachers' Association.

The Teachers' Association met at Verona on November 26th, and was called to order by the County Superintendent at 11:30 a. m., and the following program was disposed of:

A song by the school; prayer by Rev. Hughes; song by the school.

Miss Lizzie Roberts delivered a neat welcome address, which was responded to by Prof. A. C. Collins on behalf of the teachers. The Superintendent then made some general remarks, which were followed by music. The morning exercises were concluded by Miss M. F. Hamrick's very excellent paper on Primary Grammar.

After partaking of a splendid dinner the Association was called to order again, when more delightful music was rendered, after which committees on program and resolutions were appointed.

Miss Lucy Clayton read a well prepared paper on Advanced Grammar.

Miss Mary Hind's recitation was well received.

Male vs Female was discussed in a very able manner by Prof. G. E. Thomas, whose remarks were complimented by the Superintendent.

Miss Lizzie Roberts read a most excellent paper on History. This was followed by recitations by Misses Bernice Johnson and Sida Pursifull, each of whom acquitted herself with great credit.

Miss Lizzie Kipp read a paper on Physiology that brought forth many compliments.

Miss Eunice Johnson's recitation was well received.

Geography was thoroughly discussed by Miss Anna Wolfe, Supt. Voshell, the remarks of the latter being general.

A vote was taken as to where the next Institute shall be held. The vote was by secret ballot. All teachers are requested to attend the meetings of the Association and vote on this question.

The committee reported the following program for the meeting at Union on the 3d Saturday in December:

Address of Welcome—Dr. M. J. Crouch.

How to Secure Attention—Miss Nannie Bristow.

Benefits of Library Exercises—Miss Marie Korn.

Test Work in Arithmetic—Miss Jeanette Chambers.

Importance of Opening Exercises—Miss Marietta Riley.

Writing—Mrs. Shelly Tanner.

How much Civil Government should be taught in the schools?—Hon. L. W. Lassing.

Profession Courtesy—A. C. Collins.

Spelling—D. Irvin Tanner.

Recitation—Miss Lillian Corbin.

Primary Number Work—Miss Alice Weaver.

Diacritical Marks—Miss Margaret Marble.

How to make our Association a Success—Miss Ella Norman.

The committee on resolutions reported the following, which were adopted:

We, the Teachers of the Fifth Magisterial District, assembled in regular session as appointed by our worthy Superintendent, grateful for the privilege of the day, for the very favorable conditions under which we are here assembled, and desirous of expressing in a slight degree, our appreciation of the blessings, pleasures and entertainment of the day, do offer and endorse the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to more earnest and zealous efforts to the labor of making the work of our Associations more interesting, more uplifting, more thorough and effective in its results.

2d. That we extend to our Superintendent our obligations for his untiring and constant efforts to make our meetings interesting and instructive and our work progressive, and especially for his cooperation and support in our school work, in our efforts to cultivate the soil of mind, to banish ignorance and prejudice.

3d. That we extend to Prof. Collins our acknowledgements for his willing service in the capacity of Secretary of our meeting.

4th. That we extend to the good people of Verona, not only our appreciation, but, also, our grateful and sincere thanks for the interest they have manifested in our work, for the very cordial welcome we have received, for their unexampled generosity and hospitality in providing for the material wants of our bodies in the sumptuous feast so willingly spread for our consumption and enjoyment.

5th That we promise and pledge to the good people of Verona if it be their pleasure, their desire—that our future meetings of the fifth magisterial district be always held at Verona.

6th. That we extend to Prof. Thomas, Misses Roberts and Wolfe, teachers of the Verona public school, an acknowledgement for the efforts and pains taken to make our meeting at Verona the most interesting of the year, and especially for the music and recitations from their pupils, which contributed so much to the interest of our exercises, and the pleasures of the day.

A Good Woman Passes Away.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Mrs. Mary Browning Norman Roberts, a pioneer citizen of Boone County, Ky., died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Almira Connelly, Sunday, Nov. 27, 1898 at 6:45 a. m. In the dawning of a bright and glorious Lord's Day, her soul passed into eternity, and God's signet of peace was stamped upon her brow.

She was born Oct. 2, 1820, being the oldest of the children of Benjamin Henderson Norman and Katherine, his wife, native Virginians. Her sister, Mrs. Virginia Norman Howard, and her brother B. W. Norman, had, some years ago, passed on before her and there awaited to welcome her to "that home not made with hands." She was married early in life to William Roberts, a man of exalted character, and to them were born two girls. About fifteen years ago, she was left a widow, and her life since then, has been one long service to her only surviving daughter and family, and they will miss her as only the loss of a devoted life can be missed.

Faithful to the end, patience ever enduring, purity of heart unswerving of principle, define her noble character, and her gentle voice bespoke the inward calm. The petty things of life never touched her. She soared far above them.

She was buried at Richwood by the side of her devoted husband under the shadow of the marble slab she had provided to mark his resting place.

I weep because her place on earth will know her no more. We can not call her back, but we can go to her—a sweet surety in death—and by and by, we shall have passed over the dark river and meet our loved and own and be forever with the Lord.

ENGLISH NORMAN SPICER.

THE Court of Appeals has decided that the different funds for which a county collects taxes constitute the county revenue, and that a Sheriff is not entitled to 10 per cent. commission on each fund for collecting the same—that he is, only, entitled to 10 per cent. on $5,000 and then 4 per cent. on the remainder of the total amount of the funds. Some of the Sheriffs who collected commissions contrary to the above ruling will be called upon to refund to the counties the excess which they collected above their legal commissions. The Court says: "It certainly cannot be that the Legislature intended that where the county authorities were authorized to levy and collect the tax that it should be classified for the purpose of allowing the Sherift 10 per cent. on the first $5,000 collected of the funds classified."

THE following is the official vote of this Congressional District by counties at the last election:

	Donaldson.	Berry.
Boone	886	1,429
Campbell	2,758	3,043
Carroll	484	1,215
Gallatin	249	557
Grant	1,053	1,618
Kenton	2,892	3,610
Pendleton	906	868
Trimble	234	890
Totals	8,962	13,130
Berry's majority		4,168.

THE President receives an average of 1,700 letters a day. One-half of them ask favors of one kind or another. The other half offer advice on every subject under the sun, or express their approval or disapproval of executive acts and policy. Just now the question of expansion suggests the topic for most of the letters.

THERE are some of the party leaders who think an extra session of Congress will be called to deal with the questions to which the acquisition of new territory has given birth.

Albany has a man who is seven feet tall, but a commercial man that went a foot better called on him a few days since.

PHILIPPINE PARAGRAPHS.

There is danger that we shall have a foe in the Philippines far more troublesome than the Spaniards.—Omaha Bee.

John Sherman is against expansion. While that will give great encouragement to the imperialists it is not conclusive. A man of Sherman's age and experience is entitled to be right once in his entire career.—Wichita Beacon.

Will Senator Hoar, will the Republican Congressmen who so stoutly denounced the imperial policy a few weeks ago on the stump rest quiet under the stigma of "traitor" which the Administration places upon them?—Boston Port.

What will result no man can foresee, but we are certainly entering territory now where this Government can no longer assert the absolute supremacy it has heretofore maintained as to this continent and where our will may be contested by nations more formidable than Spain.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

While we have stripped Spain of her colonial possessions, we have assumed responsibilities and burdens which will more than offset any glory or practical advantages we may gain by crushing the life out of a feeble adversary. Spain's losses may yet prove the undoing of the American republic.—Baltimore Sun.

If the President should come to the conclusion that he has been wrong, and should do all in his power to reverse his policy of buying the Philippine Islands, he need not be afraid that the parrot organs which are now loading him down with unstinted praise will denounce him. He can't change quicker than they can.—Enquirer.

A Washington forecast of President McKinley's forthcoming message says it will claim that his policy "is not one of indiscriminate land grabbing, and that his present position has been forced upon him by events." Mr. McKinley was in a position where a really strong man would have controlled events.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

We may be wrong, but we are under the impression that the imperialist organs that undertake to shut up our friend, the Star-Spangled Scotchman, by their favorite weapon of abuse will very soon be calling for some one to help let go of the job. Mr. Carnegie's way of dealing with the subject has a touch of the spirit with which one James G. Blaine over eight years ago called public attention to the fact that a certain tariff bill then pending would not aid the United States in the sale abroad of a "single barrel of flour or pound of pork."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

On the 11th of April President McKinley said: "I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of. That by our code of morality would be criminal aggression." When the President spoke of "forcible annexation" he was thinking of Cuba and not of the distant Philippines. Whatever theory we may adopt as to the wisdom and justice of taking over these distant regions, it is evident that Mr. McKinley has modified his views and readjusted his code of national morals since he pronounced so strongly against "forcible annexation."—Detroit Free Press.

When Congress meets next week it will be presumably in pursuance of its constitutional functions, in full possession of its powers and for the purpose of discharging its duties. Let us trust that when the two houses come to order the republic will also come to order once more, and that then President McKinley will realize that there are co-ordinate and coequal branches of the Government whose concurrence will be necessary to the consummation of those gigantic schemes of expansion, colonization and imperialism which he has been developing and elaborating during the past six months. Let not only the Senate and the House, but the whole nation come to order when the Speaker's and the Vice President's gavels descend on Monday next.—Baltimore Sun.

Do we want inhabitants of these islands ever to take part in the work of making laws for us? Do the people of Wisconsin, for example, ever want the fate of a tariff schedule in which they are interested to depend upon the vote of the Senator from Luzon or the junior Senator from Puerto Rico? If we don't want the Puerto Ricans or the Philippine Islanders ever to govern us the best thing we can do is to give them anything rather than a territorial form of government. As soon as they are made territories they will want to be made states. The only course open to us, if we do not want island Congressmen and Senators, is frankly to make a new departure, to treat the islands as colonies or dependencies, which we shall rule as long as they are unable to rule themselves, but which will never be allowed to have a hand in the work of ruling us. The adoption of a colonial policy is of course a departure from the spirit of the constitution, and may very likely make necessary several constitutional amendments.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pith of the Press.

Nothing has been said about the plum tree so far in Senator Quay's trial, but we are convinced that the Hon. Matt. is shaking all right. —Baltimore News.

And, now, having obtained possession of the Philippine archipelago, the next question is, what are we going to do with it?—New Orleans Times Democrat.

McKinley may think that "open-door" policy is good, but he will find "shut the door" much more in evidence everywhere now among business houses.—Richmond Times.

The Democratic party paid $15,000,000 for Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and more too. McKinley pays $20,000,000 for a job lot of Islands 10,000 miles away. But, of course he gets 9,000,000 barbarians, and may get several fights with other nations. —Kansas City Times.

[From Georgetown News.]

Hold your tobacco! You have got the "bull by the horns." The $72,000,000 combine has got no tobacco, but it has got plenty of money. You have got tobacco but no money. The combine wants your tobacco and it is going to have it, but make it pay you well for it. You have the power to do so. You can make more by holding this crop 3 months than you can by selling now and raising another one. Not since '87 have you had such prospects for good prices as you have now. It is a "condition and not a theory" that confronts the combine. There is scarcely any old stock on hand. Pay no attention to the manipulated figures that appear in so called tobacco journals. The short crop of last year and the surplus stock of former years is about used up. These Wall street sharks did not go into the big combine for their health. The combine will have to do an enormous business to make the interest on their money, and it is going to have the tobacco no matter what it costs. It can easily advance the price of the finished product and make a stand off. The consumer will have to pay the fiddler and it is no more than right that he should for he gets some pleasure of tobacco and God knows the grower gets none. Now let every person who has a crop or an interest in a crop do all he can to encourage holding. Encourage your neighbor to hold no matter if he has a poor crop, there is a big demand for all grades. Stand firm, and remember the motto of old Kentucky: "United We Stand, Divided We Fall." A GROWER.

The Owenton postoffice will be made a Presidential office the first of January.

There is no end to the number of rabbits in this county and partridges are also plentiful.

Jewell & Patterson bought six horses at F. H. Brown & Son's stables last Monday, for which they paid from $40 to $100.

Three wagon loads of movers passed through Owenton last Sunday. They were from Ohio and were bound for Mississippi.

Jas. Beck, Gran Simpson, Jasper Simpson, Jas. Simpson, Wm. Lyon and Wm. Johnson killed 77 birds and 30 rabbits last week in a day and a half.

CHURCH NEWS.

After a long struggle between the organ and anti-organ factions in the Christian church of Murray the organ has won the day.

Pond River Christian Church, in Christian county, caught fire during services one night, last week, and was burnt to the ground. Mormon missionaries were just beginning a protracted meeting at the church. Origin of the fire is unknown.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Dec. 2d, 1898.

Mr. McKinley has made it plain to Senators and Representatives who have called upon him since Spain agreed to our terms for the surrender of the Philippines to us that he has not made up his mind what we ought to do with the Philippines and will not do so until we have had them under military control long enough to get the information necessary to form an intelligent opinion. That sort of talk has strengthened the chances of the treaty of peace for ratification at this session of Congress, as it coincides with the opinion of three-fourths of the Senators regardless of party. The opinion is practically unanimous that the taking of the islands away from Spain was the right thing to do, but there the unanimity ends. What sort of a government will follow our military rule of the islands nobody can say at this time. It will depend largely upon public sentiment in this country, and that will be governed by circumstances.

By putting in a vigorous protest Senator Jones, of Arkansas, succeeded in getting the War Department to change the orders assigning the Twenty-fifth Infantry (negroes) to garrison duty at Fort Logan H. Root, near Little Rock, and having a white regiment, the Twelfth Infantry, ordered there instead.

Maj. Gen. M. C. Butler, who was ordered from Havana, where he was serving as one of our Military Commissioners, to Washington, to confer with the authorities in regard to the military occupation of Cuba, has gone to South Carolina to spend a few days with his family before returning to Cuba. While in Washington, Gen. Butler spoke freely to his friends of his experience in Cuba. He says the Spanish soldiers are orderly and well-behaved as a rule, and that the Cubans are bright and many of them well-educated and fully capable of administering the government of the island. He thinks the Spaniards who will remain in Cuba will get along amicably with the Cubans. Gen. Butler declined to express an opinion as to how long it would be before the government of Cuba was turned over to the Cubans, because it will be largely dependent upon circumstances.

Senator Cockrell says he hasn't fully made up his mind as to what he will do when the time comes to vote on the Philippine question, and doesn't expect to do so until he ascertains the details of the treaty and the intentions of the administration, but that if he had the power to act for this government, at this time, he would tell the Filipinos to set up their own government and would recognize its independence. He added: "Who knows the Philippines cannot govern themselves? The world said the same thing when we were struggling for liberty, and some of the best men in the American colonies believed that we would never be able to maintain a republic. I believe that the Filipinos can establish and maintain just as free and just as good a republic as do the French people with all their boasted intelligence, and I should like to see the experiment tried."

The administration will not attempt to secure currency legislation at this session of Congress, for the very good reason that the administration is divided upon the sort of currency legislation that is wanted. It will be remembered that Mr. McKinley in his annual message to Congress, last year, did not endorse the radical financial views expressed in the annual report of Secretary Gage; only called the attention of Congress to them, and suggested that they be studied. Now, Comptroller of Currency Dawes, who was personally selected by Mr. McKinley for that position, has made a straight attack, in his annual report, upon several of the most important of Secretary Gage's recommendations. It is reasonably certain that Mr. Dawes did not do this without the knowledge and consent of Mr. McKinley. There is also another reason why the administration will not try to get financial legislation—fear that it would concentrate public attention upon the financial question and thereby strengthen the silver men.

THE President has evidently changed his notion in regard to the acquisition of foreign territory. At first he declared that "forcible annexation would be criminal aggression." His views on the acquisition of territory will be as varied as they are claimed to have been on the money question.

BRIGHT SIDE OF LIFE

There Is Sunshine on Every Cloud Says Dr. Talmage.

What We Consider God's Afflictions on Us Are Always Influences for Good—Why the Useful Are Taken.

[Copyright, 1898.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage takes an optimistic view of many things that are usually accounted as inexplicable in human experience and shows us that even trouble and affliction may not be wholly without their brighter side. Text, Psalm 49:4: "I will open my dark saying upon the harp."

The world is full of the inexplicable, the impassable, the unfathomable, the insurmountable. We cannot go three steps in any direction without coming up against a hard wall of mystery, riddles, paradoxes, profundities, labyrinths, problems that we cannot solve, hieroglyphics that we cannot decipher, anagrams we cannot spell out, sphinxes that will not speak. For that reason David in my text proposed to take up some of these somber and dark things and try to set them to sweet music. "I will open my dark sayings on a harp." So I look off upon society and find people in unhappy conjunction of circumstances, and they do not know what it means, and they have a right to ask: Why is this? Why is that? And I think I will be doing a good work by trying to explain some of these strange things and make you more content with your lot, and I shall only be answering questions that have often been asked me or that we have all asked ourselves while I try to set these mysteries to music and open my dark sayings on a harp.

Interrogation the first: Why does God take out of the world those who are useful and whom we cannot spare and leave alive and in good health so many who are only a nuisance to the world? I thought I would begin with the very roughest of all the seeming insurmountables. Many of the most useful men and women die at 20 or 40 years of age, while you often find useless people alive at 60 and 70 and 80. John Careless wrote to Bradford, who was soon to be put to death, saying: "Why doth God suffer me and other such caterpillars to live that can do nothing but consume the alms of the church and take away so many worthy workmen in the Lord's vineyard?" Similar questions are often asked. Here are two men. The one is a noble character and a Christian man. He chooses for a lifetime companion one who has been tenderly reared, and she is worthy of him and he is worthy of her. As merchant or farmer or professional man or mechanic or artist he toils to educate and rear his children. He is succeeding, but he has not yet established for his family a full competency. He seems indispensable to that household, but one day, before he has paid off the mortgage on his house, he is coming home through a strong northeast wind, and a chill strikes through him, and four days of pneumonia end his earthly career, and the wife and children go into a struggle for shelter and food. His next door neighbor is a man who, though strong and well, lets his wife support him. He is around at the grocery store or some general loafing place in the evenings, while his wife sews. His boys are imitating his example and lounge and swagger and swear. All the use that man is in that house is to rave because the coffee is cold when he comes to a late breakfast or to say cutting things about his wife's looks, when he furnishes nothing for her wardrobe. The best thing that could happen to that family would be that man's funeral, but he declines to die. He lives on and on and on. So we have all noticed that many of the useful are early cut off, while the parasites have great vital tenacity.

I take up this dark saying on my harp and give three or four thrums on the string in the way of surmising and hopeful guess. Perhaps the useful man was taken out of the world because he and his family were so constructed that they could not have endured some great prosperity that might have been just ahead, and they all together might have gone down in the vortex of worldliness which every year swallows up 10,000 households. And so he went while he was humble and consecrated, and they were by the severities of life kept close to Christ and fitted for usefulness here and high seats in Heaven, and when they meet at last before the throne they will acknowledge that, though the furnace was hot, it purified them and prepared them for the eternal career of glory and reward for which no other kind of life could have fitted them. On the other hand, the useless man lived on to 50 or 60 or 70 years because all the ease he ever can have he must have in this world, and you ought not therefore begrudge him his earthly longevity. In all the ages there has not a single loafer ever entered Heaven. There is no place for him there to hang around.

Interrogation the second: Why do good people have so much trouble; sickness, bankruptcy, persecution, the three black vultures, sometimes putting their fierce beaks into one set of jangled nerves? I think now of a good friend I once had. He was a consecrated Christian man, an elder in the church, and as polished a Christian gentleman as ever walked Broadway. First his general health gave way, and he hobbled around on a cane, an old man at 40. After awhile paralysis struck him. Having by poor health been compelled suddenly to quit business, he lost what property he had. Then his beautiful daughter died; then a son became hopelessly demented. Another son, splendid of mind and commanding of presence, resolved that he would take care of his father's household, but under the swoop of yellow fever at Fernandina, Fla., he suddenly expired. So you know good men and women who have had enough troubles, you think, to crush 50 people. No worldly philosophy could take such a trouble and set it to music or play it on violin or flute, but I dare to open that dark saying on a golden harp.

You wonder that very consecrated people have trouble? Did you ever know any very consecrated man or woman who had not had great trouble? Never! It was through their troubles sanctified that they were made very good. If you find anywhere in this city a man who has now and always has had perfect health and never lost a child, and has always been popular, and never had business struggle or misfortune, who is distinguished for goodness, pull your wire for a telegraph messenger boy and send me word, and I will drop everything and go right away to look at him. There never has been a man like that and never will be. Who are those arrogant, self-conceited creatures who move about without sympathy for others and who think more of a St. Bernard dog, or an Alderney cow, or a Southdown sheep, or a Berkshire pig than of a man? They never had any trouble, or the trouble was never sanctified. Who are those men who listen with a moist eye as you tell them of suffering, and who have a pathos in their voice, and a kindness in their manner, and an excuse or an alleviation for those gone astray? They are the men who have graduated at the royal academy of trouble, and they have the diploma written in wrinkles on their countenances. My! my! What heartaches they had! What tears they have wept! What injustice they have suffered! The mightiest influence for purification and salvation is trouble. No diamond fit for a crown until it is cut. No wheat fit for bread till it is ground. There are only three things that can break off a chain—a hammer, a file or a fire—and trouble is all three of them. The greatest writers, orators and reformers get much of their force from trouble. What gave to Washington Irving that exquisite tenderness and pathos which will make his books favorites while the English language continues to be written and spoken? An early heartbreak that he never once mentioned, and when 30 years after the death of Matilda Hoffman, who was to have been his bride, her father picked up a piece of embroidery and said: "That is a piece of poor Matilda's workmanship," Washington Irving sank from hilarity into silence and walked away. Out of that lifetime grief the great author dipped his pen's mightiest reenforcement. Calvin's "Institutes of Religion," than which a more wonderful book was never written by human hand, was begun by the author at 23 years of age because of the persecution by Francis, king of France. Faraday toiled for all time on a salary of $150 year and candles. As every brick of the wall of Babylon was stamped with the letter N, standing for Nebuchadnezzar, so every part of the temple of Christian achievement is stamped with the letter T, standing for trouble.

When in England a man is honored with knighthood, he is struck with the flat of the sword. But those who have come to knighthood in the kingdom of God were first struck, not with the flat of the sword, but with the keen edge of the scimeter. To build his magnificence of character, Paul could not have spared one lash, one prison, one stoning, one anathema, one poisonous viper from the hand, one shipwreck. What is true of individuals is true of nations. The horrors of the American revolution gave this country this side of the Mississippi river to independence, and the conflict between England and France gave the most of this country west of the Mississippi to the United States. France owned it, but Napoleon, fearing that England would take it, practically made a present to the United States, for he received only $15,000,000 for Louisiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado, Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and the Indian Territory. Out of the fire of the American revolution came this country east of the Mississippi, out of the European war came that west of the Mississippi river. The British empire rose to its present overtowering grandeur through gunpowder plot, and Guy Fawkes' conspiracy, and Northampton insurrection, and Walter Raleigh's beheading, and Bacon's bribery, and Cromwell's dissolution of parliament, and the battles of Edge Hill, and the vicissitudes of centuries. So the earth itself, before it could become an appropriate and beautiful residence for the human family, had, according to geology, to be washed by universal deluge and scorched and made incandescent by universal fires, and pounded by sledge hammer of icebergs, and wrenched by earthquakes that split continents, and shaken by volcanoes that tossed mountains and passed through the catastrophes of thousands of years before Paradise became possible, and the groves could shake out their green banners, and the first garden pour its carnage of color between the Gihon and the Hiddekel. Trouble a good thing for the rocks, a good thing for nations, as well as a good thing for individuals. So when you push against me with a sharp interrogation point: Why do the good suffer? I open the dark saying on a harp and, though I can neither play an organ or cornet or hautboy or bugle or clarinet, I have taken some lessons in the Gospel harp, and if you would like to hear me I will play you these: "All things work together for good to those who love God." "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous, nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." What a sweet thing is a harp, and I wonder not that in Wales, the country of my ancestors, the harp has become the national instrument, and that they have festivals where great prizes are offered in the competition between harp and harp, or that weird Sebastian Erard was much of his time bent over this chorded and vibrating triangle and was not satisfied until he had given it a compass of six octaves, from E to E with all the semitones, or that when King Saul was demented the son of Jesse came before him and, putting his fingers among the charmed strings of the harp, played the devil out of the crazed monarch, or that in Heaven there shall be harpers harping with their harps. So you will not blame me for opening the dark saying on the Gospel harp:

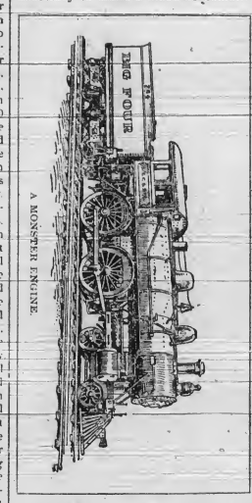
Your harps, ye trembling saints,
Down from the willows take;
Loud the praise of love Divine
Bid every string awake!

Interrogation third: Why did the good God let sin or trouble come into the world when He might have kept them out? My reply is: He had a good reason. He has reasons that He has never given us. He had reasons which He could no more make us understand in our finite state than the father, starting out on some great and elaborate enterprise, could make the two-year-old child in its armchair comprehend it. One was to demonstrate what grandeur of character may be achieved on earth by conquering evil. Had there been no evil to conquer and no trouble to console, then this universe would never have known an Abraham, or a Moses, or a Joshua, or an Ezekiel, or a Paul, or a Christ, or a Washington, or a John Milton, or a John Howard, and 1,000,000 victories which have been gained by the consecrated spirits of all ages would never have been gained. Had there been no battle there would have been no victory. Nine-tenths of the anthems of Heaven would never have been sung. Heaven could never have been a thousandth part of the Heaven that it is. I will not say that I am glad that sin and sorrow did enter, but I do say that I am glad that after God has given all His reasons to an assembled universe He will be more honored than if sin and sorrow had never entered, and that the unfallen celestials will be outdone and will put down their trumpets to listen, and it will be in Heaven, when those who have conquered sin and sorrow shall enter, as it would be in a small singing school on earth if Thalberg and Gottschalk and Wagner and Beethoven and Rheinberger and Schuman should all at once enter. The immortals that have been chanting 10,000 years before the throne will say, as they close their librettos: "Oh, if we could only sing like that!" But God will say to those who have never fallen, and consequently have not been redeemed: "You must be silent now. You have not the qualification for this anthem." So they sit with closed lips and folded hands, and sinners saved by grace take up the harmony, for the Bible says: "No man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand which were redeemed from the earth."

But now I come nearer home and put a dark saying on the Gospel harp, a style of question that is asked a million times every year. Interrogation the fourth: Why do I have it so hard while others have it so easy? Or, Why do I have so much difficulty in getting a livelihood, while others go around with a full portmonnaie? Or, Why must I wear these plain clothes, while others have to push hard to get their wardrobes closed, so crowded are they with brilliant attire? Or, Why should I have to work so hard, while others have 365 holidays every year? They are all practically one question. I answer them by saying it is because the Lord has His favorites, and He puts extra discipline upon you and extra trial, because He has for you extra glory, extra enthronement and extra felicities.

That is no guess of mine, but a Divine says so: "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." "Well," says some one, "I would rather have a little less in Heaven and a little more here. Discount my Heavenly robe ten per cent. and let me now put it on a fur-lined overcoat; put me in a less gorgeous room of the house of many mansions and let me have a house here in a better neighborhood." No, no; God is not going to rob Heaven, which is to be your residence for nine hundred quadrillion of years, to fix up your earthly abode, which you will occupy at most for less than a century, and where you may perhaps stay only ten years longer, or only one year, or perhaps a month more. Now, you had better cheerfully let God have His way, for, you see, He has been taking care of folks for near 6,000 years and knows how to do it and can see what is best for you better than you can yourself. Don't think you are too insignificant to be divinely cared for. It was said that Diana, the goddess, could not be present to keep her temple at Ephesus from burning because she was attending upon the birth of him who was to be Alexander the Great. But I tell you that your God and my God is so great in small things as well as large things, that He could attend the cradle of a babe and at the same time the burning of a world.

And God will make it all right with you, and there is one song that you will sing every hour your first ten years in Heaven, and the refrain of that song will be: "I am so glad God did not let me have it my own way!" Your case will be all fixed up in Heaven, and there will be such a reversal of conditions that we can hardly find each other for some time. Some of us who have lived in first-rate houses here and in first-rate neighborhoods will be found, because of our lukewarmness of earthly service, living on one of the back streets of the celestial city, and clear down at the end of it at No. 608 or 909 or 1505, while some who had unattractive earthly abodes, and a cramped one at that, will in the heavenly city be in a house fronting the royal plaza, right by the imperial fountain or on the heights overlooking the river of life, the chariots of salvation halting at your door, while those visit you who are more than conquerors, and those who are kings and queens unto God forever.



MAMMOTH LOCOMOTIVES.

Said to Be the Largest, Fastest and Most Powerful Passenger Engines in the West.

In these days of great things in the line of motors and rapid transit, anything relating to steam locomotives, especially when out of the common in strength and proportions, is of general interest. It seems the Big Four system has recently received from the builders four eight-wheel passenger locomotives to haul their fast trains. These engines are claimed to be in every respect models of their kind, and are probably the largest, fastest, most powerful and best-looking passenger engines in this part of the country, and are a credit to the management and their designer, Mr. William Garstang, superintendent of motive power of the Big Four and the Schenectady locomotive works, their builders.

The engines are now in service between St. Louis and Cleveland, on the fastest and heaviest trains, making the time and doing it easier than was ever accomplished before on this run.

In designing these engines it was necessary to make a machine combining great power with high speed and easy running, avoiding all jerk to the train and unnecessary strain on the track. This has been accomplished to such an extent that both engine and tender, while at the highest speed, ride with the greatest steadiness and so soft and easy a motion that the engineers claim not to be at all tired at the end of their run.

These machines stand 15 feet high from top of rail to top of cab, and 9 feet 9½ inches to center of boiler, which, with driving wheels 78 inches and truck and tender wheels 36 inches in diameter, show trim and powerful, without an unnecessary pipe or rod to mar their symmetry.

The material used in the construction of these machines is the finest of its kind, and the greatest care was exercised in both the tests and workmanship to insure every part being perfect.

Some of the principal dimensions are as follows:

Weight, 130,000 pounds; cylinders, 20x26 inches; boiler diameter, 62 inches; tubes, diameter, 2 inches; tubes, number of, 320; fire box width 41 inches; fire box length, 108 inches; working pressure, 200 pounds; tender water capacity, 5,000 gallons; tender coal capacity, 10 tons; tender trucks, pressed steel.

GOLDITE LEGISLATION.

The Republicans in Congress Are Divided on the Money Question.

The result of the recent elections is a very radical reduction in the republican majority in congress. This will, probably, block all further gold standard currency reform legislation, unless the dominant party resorts to expulsion of democrats and seating of republicans to strengthen its majority. The republicans in the present congress have been widely apart upon the money issue, and the leaders were afraid to force their banking and currency schemes to the front with the apparent division upon them. With the greatly reduced majority—reduced because of the popular opposition to those banking, gold-standard schemes—there is less danger of a successful attempt to withdraw the greenbacks and confer on banks the issue and control of the currency. This is precisely what we have been hoping and laboring for. A full, large, republican majority in the next congress would have almost certainly resulted in the passage of such monetary legislation as would have conferred unprecedented power upon the money interests, identified with Wall street and banking corporations, as would sooner or later have resulted in great wrongs and disaster to the people. This promised legislation has been suffered with by the people in the defeat of enough opposition members to prevent, it is believed, the passage of such legislation. The greenbacks will not be retired. The silver dollars will not be made redeemable in gold, and the national banks will not be allowed to issue bank notes to use as money and lend to the people in the place of the greenbacks, treasury notes, silver certificates and dollars. If this is the case the people will have two years in which to examine the money question to determine who shall issue and control their money, the government or the banking corporations, and to that extent they have, by their votes at the recent election, secured the adoption of the "initiative and referendum." In the campaign of 1900 the issue will not be about the tariff; it will be about money, and it will be discussed in the meantime, so that when the next congressional election comes around there will not be candidates for congress stupid and ignorant enough to go around talking about the American dollar, established by law, and made by the fiat of the government a full legal tender dollar, being a "50-cent dollar." The man who speaks disrespectful of that dollar is as far from being a patriot as the man who speaks disrespectfully of the American flag, and deserves precisely the same treatment at the hands of the American people. It is the money lender, the officeholder, the man with fixed income, the fellows who buy property at sheriff sales or tax sales, and the mercenary banker who seeks the high, sovereign right to "coin money" with little cost on which to speculate, all of whom want "dear money" and cheap products of human toil, who talk disrespectfully of the American silver dollar, and the American greenback or treasury note dollar. With these destroyed or withdrawn as "final payment money," and all the final payment work done by these and the gold, all to be done with gold alone, they know the price of gold would go still higher and the price of property, labor and product would go still lower, and their dollars would go still farther than they now do. The people are beginning to understand these things better every day, and have now two years in which to fully prepare to meet the speculative, gambling, selfish money power in the great contest in 1900 for the full restoration of bimetallism, and assertion of the exclusive right of the government of all the people to coin, issue and control the money of all the people. It will be a great contest, but we believe the people will win. Since the above was written it has been announced from Washington that the president has nasured Mr. M. H. Hanna, of the bankers' monetary commission, that an extra session of the new congress will be called in March next to put through, if possible, the "currency reform" measures proposed by the great banking syndicate. If so, then every influence possible must be brought to bear to prevent members of congress from voting to imperialize the banking power and give it the coveted authority to enslave the people.

The Dingley Failure.

Mr. Hanna says the "Dingley tariff" is a failure as a revenue getter, and must be amended. He favors revenue producing duties on tea and coffee. Isn't this a very remarkable departure from the time honored policy of the republican party? Hasn't it been a favorite theory of the party and of the "high priest of protection" now at its head that "taxes should be levied upon imported products that come in competition with the things that we can and do produce, and the things we must have and cannot produce should be imported free of duty?" Is the adoption of the gold standard theory, thoroughly antagonistic to the theory of protection, driving the party into the free trade chanuels? It looks very much that way, judging from the war measure recently adopted and this proposition to tax "the poor man's breakfast table" for ordinary revenue.

——The theoretical effect of a protective tariff, therefore, is to increase the quantity of such commodities as are produced at home and to reduce the quantity imported. As the imports diminish, the revenue of the government must decrease, and when the time arrives when home industries can produce all that is needed of any article, imports must cease entirely, and consequently an import duty on such articles can yield no revenue to the government and can have no other effect than to enable manufacturers to make an artificial profit on it.—Kansas City Star.

NOT THE MONEY ISSUE.

The Recent Contest Was Decided Upon the War Question and That Alone.

The gold standard press are again engaged in singing requiems over the grave of bimetallism. They have killed and buried it and wrote its epitaph so often that it is a wonder they do not either get tired of doing so or discover that continuing to kill a dead thing is a very ridiculous business. In the recent contest great care was taken to evade all discussion of the monetary issues, and when any reference was made to them it was only in the vaguest and most indefinite terms. The whole burden of their songs, and there was an unprecedented similarity in all their efforts, differing only in the flowers of rhetoric and the variety of eulogistic and euphonious expressions, was an appeal to the sympathy of their hearers urging them to stand by and endorse the administration in its war policy, and no attempt to throw suspicion upon the patriotism of all the people who would not cordially do so. Not one word as to whether the gold standard was to be more permanently fastened upon the country; whether the greenbacks were to be retired; silver dollars made redeemable in gold, and the power to issue and control the paper money of the country conferred upon the banks, all of which are continuing issues until finally passed upon by the people. The result of the election, at most, if an endorsement at all, was in relation to the war policy only, because that alone was in issue, and if there is attempt to pirate through the money laws which they feared to ask the people to pass upon, there will be such a demurrer filed by the people as will alarm and deter even the paid attorneys of the money power, and if, in defiance of that demurrer, they proceed, the reaction against them in the campaign of 1900 will be overwhelming. In the meantime the friends of bimetallism, the money system of the country up to 1873 must not be idle. The power that has profited immensely by the gold standard legislation as foreshadowed in the report of the self-appointed monetary commission, that represents no interest, no class, no purpose but those of the banking class, is a formidable power, representing the corporate interests and corporate wealth of the country—insignificant in numbers, but mighty in political energy, in these degenerate times when men sell their manhood and their patriotism for so much cash. If the masses hope and expect to avoid the fooney slavery prepared for them, and into which they have been steadily drifting for years, they must wake up. They must organize and cooperate; educate and arouse the people, and prepare at once for the mighty conflict that will take place in 1900 between the money power and the people. Between money, slavery and manly independence; between impending despotism and a broader and brighter republicanism.

TRUSTS ARE ACTIVE.

Monopolies Are Thriving and Multiplying Under Republican Rule.

That the republican party is the fosterer and promoter of trusts needs no further proof than the fact that at the present moment the capital invested in the great combines of the United States amounts to $2,717,768,000.

Nearly three thousand millions of dollars have been pooled for the purpose of destroying competition and reducing wages.

Over 100 great trusts are now in active operation in this country and new combinations are forming daily. One of the latest of these is the tinplate trust. It has a capitalization of $51,000,000, and as it is already protected by the Dingley tariff and can therefore defy all competition from abroad, the householders of the United States may expect a prompt rise in the price of tinware.

McKinley has made the tinplate manufacturers his especial pets, and they have good reason to feel that, in spite of the supreme court decision against trusts, they will not be disturbed.

As a matter of fact, so long as the republicans remain in power none of the trusts will be made to succumb to the law.

Attorney-General Griggs has placed himself on record as the friend of the trusts. He has assured them in every way that they need fear no action on his part to enforce the Sherman anti-trust law, and consequently there is a great activity in trust making, which will continue until the democrats get control of this government.—Chicago Democrat.

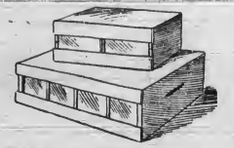
OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——There is no authority in the constitution for a colonial policy such as is understood to be favored by the administration, in order to get around the tariff question.—Illinois State Register.

——Republican editors are not discussing the results of the Vermont and Maine elections very much. Few persons care to pause to look into an undertaker's window. It is too grave an undertaking.—Tammany Times.

——Already they are estimating that 22,000 pension claims growing out of the Spanish war will be filed in this country, 20,000 of which will be due to disabilities and deaths contracted in the camps. It will be a long time before we shall get through paying for the luxury of Algerism.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——Thomas B. Reed is too valuable to the trusts for any other man in the republican party to turn him down. Hanna is a disbursing agent, but Reed is preeminently the trust lawmaker, and by his methods, rulings and influence he has done as much as any living man to help pile up their billions of unearned and ill-gotten wealth.—Louisville Dispatch.



Agricultural Hints.

NEAT SHIPPING CASES.

If You Put Up Your Honey in Attractive Packages It Can Be Sold Readily.

In selling honey much depends on appearance. Extracted honey put up in a neat package is more likely to meet with ready sale than if put up in any sort of style without any label. Especially does the matter of looks make a difference in the sale of comb honey. Remember that a good part of the difference in price between comb honey and extracted is paid for the nicer looks of the former, and if you pack your comb honey in any sort of a box that happens to be at hand it may make a difference of two, three or four cents a pound.

Shipping cases for honey are made that are especially adapted to the purpose. Not only are they convenient in shape and size for packing and shipping, but they show off the honey to good advantage when placed on the counter of the grocer by means of the glass on one side that allows the snow-white comb to be seen without allowing the flies to light upon it, or the fingers of meddlesome urchins to be punched into it.

Two kinds of shipping cases are shown in the illustration. The upper one holds 12 of the so-called one-pound sections, two sections being seen through the glass. The lower case contains 24 sections, four of them being in sight. Cases for 48 sections have also been made, but these are little used. The tendency seems to be rather toward the 12-section case. A 12-section case that is a compromise in appearance between the two cases in the picture is very popular. In it three sections are in sight, there being four rows of three sections each. This last style of case will cost you somewhere from eight to ten cents each, depending on the number bought. At this price you get material ready to nail together, everything complete, including nails and glass.—National Stockman.

GEESE ARE CLEANLY.

If They Have Plenty of Water They Are Never Seen Except When Fit for Dress Parade.

"A goose is the cleanest fowl alive," says Sol Renaker, owner of a farm in Kentucky on which he keeps more than 15,000 geese. "I have been in the poultry business since 1881, have handled all kinds of domestic fowl, and have studied their habits closely and have never seen anything which equals the goose in cleanliness. They are constantly at work keeping their feathers clean, and if they have plenty of water they are never seen except when fit for dress parade. They are equally careful regarding their food. On one occasion we bought a lot of corn which had musted, and the geese would not eat dough made from it, nor will they eat dough after it has soured. On this account we have to be very careful to mix up no more dough than the geese will eat up in a day. Another peculiar thing about geese is that they eat a great deal more some days than they do on others. For instance, it frequently requires 50 or 40 buckets of dough a day to a given pen of geese. Then for a few days they will not eat more than a dozen buckets. When they have plenty of water and wholesome food geese fatten rapidly and have no disease, but unless they have an opportunity to keep clean and have pure food they die rapidly."

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Keep down all surplus stock; market all that is not needed.

Feed wheat to chickens as soon as they are able to eat it.

Removing to warm, dry quarters will prevent the biggest half of any disease.

From this time on through the winter early feeding will give the best results.

Lime water is a cure for bowel diseases and is also a remedy for soft-shelled eggs.

Boiling the milk that is fed to fowls will increase its value and lessen the risk of its producing disease.

Chickens intended for breeding stock should not be pushed too fast or be overfed. A steady development is best.

Too few roosters or old, inferior stock on the male side, want of moisture during incubation are well-known causes of infertility of eggs.—St. Louis Republic.

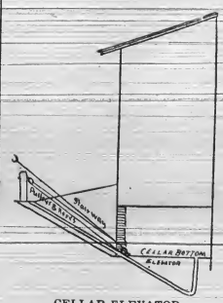
A German Farmers' Guild.

We accidentally come across the statement that one agricultural organization in Germany possesses a membership of 2,000,000 people. When the difficulty of getting American farmers together is taken in to consideration, the magnitude of the work accomplished by the Germans in thus combining seems marvelous. No class of men on earth seem to be as difficult to handle in enlistment under a single banner as farmers, and yet no people would derive greater benefits from such unity of action.—National Stockman.

CHARM OF FARM LIFE.

The Rural Habitation Is the Place Where Home Ties Are Strongest and Purest.

No one pretends that farmers are making money rapidly; they have their vexations and discouragements as do others, but they have several things to be very thankful for. They have good homes in nearly every case, plenty of wholesome food and decent clothes. They are not under the eye of the taskmaster, nor working under great nervous strain, with every minute lost from work counted against them when pay-day comes. They need not, in the language of the shops, "be afraid of their jobs;" they are working for themselves, and are sure of their pay even if it is not as large as they might wish it to be.



The man who looks upon his farm as a machine from which dollars only are to be made, and does not value any others of the numberless blessings it gives him, will never cease to talk about hard times. It is not alone for the money it will produce that the farm should be prized. It should be valued because it brings men and women near to nature's heart and their children grow up strong and stalwart, ready to meet the trials of life with bodies strong enough to perform every task. The farm is preeminently the stronghold of the home; it is the place where home ties are strongest and where life is at its best.

The average farmer and his family live better in every way, have better food, better clothes and better social surroundings than does the family of the man who lives in a city on a salary of $1,000 a year. The progressive farmer of to-day lives in a style that is not equaled by the city man who earns $2,000 a year. The farmer of to-day has frequent mails, an abundance of literature, good facilities for travel, and is able to enjoy more of the comforts of life than the man in any other calling in life. If he looks at his farm from this point of view he will value his farm at its true worth, and be contented, and contentment is better than great riches. If farmers would remember that they see but the outside show and glitter of city life and could see the darker side, very few of them would be willing to exchange with the city man. The educated farmer of to-day is the social peer of any man, while money is almost the sole criterion of social worth in the city. As between the two the farmer holds every vantage point.—Farmers' Voice.

CELLAR ELEVATOR.

With Its Aid Heavy Barrels and Boxes Can Be Moved with Ease and Rapidity.

The object of this kind of elevator is that it requires no extra opening, as a vertical elevator would, it being placed in the outdoor cellarway. It is made to roll up the two by four's which are used for rails, on wheels such as old straw carrier wheels which have a flange. A pit is dug in the cellar bottom deep enough so that the top of elevator will be on a level with the floor. The elevator is made similar to a car on a mountain railway, higher at one end than at the other in order to keep a level floor on a steep grade. To raise this elevator, two pulleys are used and a rope. With this heavy barrels or boxes can be moved with ease. It can be made any size, but should be wide enough to run on rails placed on the side of steps.—Willis W. Shear, in Farm and Home.

CUPOLAS ON BARNS.

They Are a Standing Invitation to Lightning and Therefore Exceedingly Dangerous.

It may seem strange that anyone should place an invitation to lightning upon his barn, yet such a thing is frequently done, merely for looks and ventilation. A barn has no more need of a cupola than it has for a chimney. The lightning rod was much in use a quarter of a century ago, but no new ones have been put up of late years. The object of the rod was to steal away the fluid from the clouds and transfer it to the earth without precipitating an explosion. We do not know that buildings were ever damaged by lightning when thus protected, but for some reason the rods have gone nearly out of use. Certainly these projecting points are made out of material that will attract lightning better than the rest of the building, and if the rod is sufficient to carry the current the building would be much protected by them. The cupola presents sometimes several points considerably higher than the rest of the building, but the material is of wood, and if the bolt once reaches it the wood is not a good enough conductor to carry the current without rendling it. Besides, there is no direct communication with the ground. If cupolas are to be erected, let them be protected by lightning rods of sufficient size to transmit the electricity to the earth without following the timbers of the barn.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

GOLF AS MEDICINE.

An Eminent Authority Praises the Game as a Great Hygienic Factor.

There are, it appears, as potent drugs hidden in the handle of the golf stick as in that of the tennis bat celebrated in "The Arabian Nights." Dr. Irving C. Rosse, in a paper read before the American Neurological association, praises the game as an aid in psychic, mechanical and hygienic treatment. "The game can be played all the year, independent of atmospheric vicissitudes, during all the seven ages of man, by delicate young girls as well as by strong athletes, and even by decrepit old men, whose declining powers do not admit of severe exertion. It combines exercise, pleasure and fresh air without that risk of injury to heart, lungs or nervous system, as is the case in certain other exercises in which there is high blood pressure and arterial tension. There is absolutely no danger attached to the game and consequently no accidents ensue. Unlike the bicycle, it is doubtful if such a thing as an accident insurance was ever paid for an injury incurred at golf. Nor is the game contraindicated in heart lesions, arterial calcification, albuminuria, conditions which would be aggravated by such exercise as bicycling, swimming, horseback riding or by mountain climbing.

"In all affections marked by slowing of oxidation or in those consequent upon intoxication by the products of organic disassimilation, the game of golf is to be recommended as the best method of bringing about a cure. The obesity and degeneration of middle age, when the biceps has diminished and one's energy is failing, may be helped by devotion to golf. The further tendency of the exercise is to eliminate the so-called diatheses and thus do away with gout, lithaemia, headache and dyspepsia; while its hygienic and therapeutic consequences are admissable in cardiac and pulmonary affections. Although moderntion is advisable under such circumstances, there can be no doubt of the benefit derived in some cases of cough, nervous asthma and in affections of the bladder; but it is preeminently in functional nervous disease that our great Anglo-Saxon game is to be recommended both as prophylactic and curative. No exercise or recreation is better fitted for the mentally overworked, the hysterical, the melancholic; none helps to preserve the concerted action of eye, brain and muscle known as the psychological moment; none, perhaps wit the exception of swimming, gives one so good an appetite; there is not a more sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and as to insomnia, such a thing scarcely exists among the devotees of golf."—International Medical Magazine.

Fashion and Its End.

Fashion is a two-fold movement. In its large evolution a type dominates for some generations or so, with modification so slow as to be unperceived, the result of social conditions prevailing in the civilized world, forming the drift that is referred to above that is not controlled; in its special action it is a variation from season to season, and from day to day, a constant individual creation on the same general theme. This second movement is the one that is popularly recognized. It is due to woman's present social status, which forces her to constant effort to set herself off from other women, or to emulate other women, by her dress, as men are forced to emulate other men, or to distinguish themselves from the mass of men by force or by intellect. The end pursued by both is singularity, that is to say distinction from others, and with women distinction by beauty.—Scribner's.

SCIENTIFIC CONSCIENCE.

An Interesting Tale of Two Geologists and an Exceedingly Beautiful Fossil.

Happening to know two men who were deeply interested in geology and who did not know each other a Detroit man brought the two scientists together recently at the house of one of them and then left them to enjoy the occasion. A day or two later he met the host in the case and heard the strange story from him:

"Well, Mr. Cooper, that was a fine man you brought out to see me the other night—a fine man. Why, he's as crazy about geology as I am, if not a trifle crazier. We sat up together until after midnight, looking over my specimens and talking about them, and I'm going down to see his cases. He tells me he has almost bankrupted himself indulging his taste for rare and beautiful fossils. A funny thing happened the other night, too; he's a great one—that man! On my library table I had one remarkably beautiful fossil—too choice to be hidden away in a case and yet too valuable to be left lying around. I needn't tell you what it was, for you don't know one from another. Your friend does, however, and he returned again and again to admire this particular specimen. Of course, I enjoyed his enthusiastic appreciation of it, and when he was about to go I said: 'Mr. Badger, you admired this fossil so much I'm going to give myself the pleasure of parting with it to you. Please add it to your collection.' So saying, I extended my hand for the fossil, and behold it wasn't there. On the table and under the table I looked, behind the lamp, and under papers the fossil—a mysterious disappearance. I felt nonplussed and looked at my guest. He looked sheepish, fumbled in the inside of his sacque coat and said: 'Well, I'm glad you are going to give me that fossil. I already had it in my pocket.'"

"As I had often done the same trick myself I couldn't utter a word of protest.

"'Well, well,' I said, 'take it along and heartily welcome.'

"I've annexed fossils myself. Art has no conscience."—Detroit Free Press.

SOLVING THE FUTURE WELFARE OF THE CONTINENT.

This Is What Is Now Being Done on the Fertile Prairies of Western Canada.

The rapid progress that is being made in the settlement of the fertile prairies of western Canada is leading to the investigation of its resources by those interested in having provision made for those living in the crowded east, for those who have been struggling for years on impoverished farms, for the renter who is unable any longer to bear up under the strain imposed by the landlord, and for the farmer who unable to purchase farms for his sons in his own neighborhood has to look around for lower priced lands. The investigation shows that it is impossible to meet these conditions successfully outside of western Canada. Already millions of bushels of wheat are being grown there each year, while as many as 50,000 head of cattle were shipped out this year. A representative of the Germania, Milwaukee, one of the leading German papers in the United States, recently made a trip through Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, where he free government lands of western Canada, and in a future issue will appear extracts from flattering letters contributed to the Germania and other papers by their special correspondents.

As an inducement for immigrants to make their homes in Canada, the Canadian government offers 160 acres of land free of cost to each settler, and information can be had of agents of the government.

A Race Against Fire.

After a ten days' fight to avoid death, the crew of a steamer from Spain recently arrived in Baltimore. In mid ocean it was discovered that flames were raging in the vessel's hold. For ten long days the crew bravely fought the flames. If men would fight as persistently against disorders of the stomach and digestive organs, there would be fewer premature deaths. The best weapon for such a fight is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the greatest of tonics, and the best of remedies for kidney, liver, bladder and blood disorders.

Chance to Get Even.

A Kenturky man recently married the granddaughter of a woman who once refused him.

"I don't see where the vengeance is to come in."

"Why, he will be able to address the woman who had once refused him as 'grandmother.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

AN AFFAIR OF THE NATION

It has been said of Americans that they are "a nation of dyspeptics" and it is true that few are entirely free from disorders of the digestive tract, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Stomach and Bowel trouble, or Constipation. The treatment of these diseases with cathartic medicines too often aggravates the trouble.

THE LOGICAL TREATMENT

is the use of a remedy that will build up the system, thereby enabling the various organs to act as Nature intended they should. Such a remedy is found in Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People Here is the proof.

In Detroit there are few soldiers more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. His home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was a bookkeeper with the wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, and he says: "I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work. I have tried many treatments and remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few doses I found much relief and after using several boxes I was cured. I know these pills will cure dyspepsia of its worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."—Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

A CARD.

VERONA, KY., Nov. 29, 1898.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

In reply to the note in your paper of last week, concerning the trouble of marshal Hance, of Walton, Ky., and the Howard family, of this village, I desire to state that marshal Hance and a Walton bum goes to the Howards to get a horse of Frank Howard, which was under attachment. Mr. Frank Howard gave up the horse without any trouble, Mr. Hance and his escort taking the horse to Walton, Ky. Frank Howard, after seeing a lawyer, got information that they took his horse contrary to law, goes to Walton, Ky., and walks into Hance's livery stable, where his horse was, unhalters him and leads him to where he had another horse and saddle, mounts his other horse and rides home. Mrs. Howard, who it was claimed took a prominent part, was only protesting that she had given her son the horse, and did not want to see the horse leave the place. As to the pistol, shotgun and knife claimed by the marshal, is all untrue, as the Howards had none of them.

FINAL NOTICE TO

Delinquent Taxpayers.

I have given you notice according to law by posters, and also through the Boone County RECORDER, since July 6th, that I expected to collect the taxes for 1898 before the 1899 tax become due. It is not my desire to add extra costs to your tax bills, but I will be compelled too unless your tax is paid by January 1st, 1899. This notice applies to ALL who have not paid.

ELMER BEALL,
Sheriff Boone County.

Judge Roberts will try the Peno cow case to-day.

Very small congregations attended church here last Sunday morning and evening.

Circuit Court will begin next Monday, and there is considerable business on the docket.

The skating season opened last week but the snow storm of Sunday interrupted the sport, much to the regret of the boys.

There was not a minute, last Sunday that it did not snow, and had the ground been in good condition to receive the beautiful, it would have reached a depth of 10 or 12 inches.

A meeting will be held at Hebron, next Saturday, (Dec. 10) for the purpose of organizing a lodge of Knights of Pythias. Good speakers will be on hand, also members of the Grand Lodge and Supreme Lodge. All are invited. Meeting at 7 p. m.

The tobacco growers convention that met at Lexington, Monday, was attended by about 300 of the prominent producers from different parts of the State. They appeared very much interested in the work they had met to consider, and there is no doubt but a permanent organization will be effected by the convention.

The residence of Thomas Vest, of Verona, together with its contents was destroyed by fire, one night last week. The building was falling in when the fire was discovered, and the family had a narrow escape with their lives. One of the boys had to be dragged out of the building. It is supposed the fire was caused by a defective flue.

Nocturnal Commotions.

Called upon in the round of ministerial duties to conduct protracted services in the village of Burlington, I took up my abode by invitation in the residence where the genial editor of the RECORDER and his estimable wife are wont to dispense unstinting hospitality. Amid the pleasant surroundings of this quiet home, the hours glided peacefully by with me, and I thought, "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places." But, alas! this dream of quietude and restful repose was doomed to be rudely broken; for on the night after the snow fall of Dec. 4th, the head of the house, forgetting the danger of getting too far from one's base of supplies divested himself of raiment and foot gear by the warm fire in the sitting room and then made a dash for the bed across the passage-way, pausing not in his rapid transit for the north winds to take advantage of his lightly protected anatomy.

Unfortunately, in the energy of his movements, he closed the sitting room door behind him with such force as to cause the safety bolt to spring into place and securely fasten the door. All unconscious of this fact, however, he was soon in the embrace of the "sweet restorer," and had no dream of morning sorrows.

The night passed in quiet away, until the suggestion softly fell upon his ear that night was waning and the hour at hand when morning fires must be kindled. Springing from bed he struck out for the sitting room, to discover that the treacherous bolt had interposed stern barrier between him and those faithful garments, which had so often defended him from winter's sharp blasts, and now the commotion began. A sound came up the stairway, suggestive of the impact of the battering rams of Titus against the gates of Jerusalem, accompanied by a sensation like the undulations of an earthquake. Now and then, the outbursts of thunder-sounding ejaculations and imprecations that fell upon my ear, made me seriously fear that the protracted services had not induced in the mind of our editor, a very pious frame of spirit. Then came a voice floating along the passageway, saying: "Will, I don't see any way out of this thing but for you to go out side and open the window." Looking outside from the front door, and beholding the mantle of snow that covered the earth, the answer came in an alarming accents: "By George! Carrie, this is no time for a man to venture forth protected only by his socks." "Then I will get you five or six pair," said the amiable consort; but the thermometer was getting too low to pause long enough to hunt up and draw on a box of socks, and the afflicted man began to pace back and forth along the passage, while clattering teeth and suppressed emotion struggled for the mastery.

At last a bright idea struck the wife, and she ran to a closet near the back door of the sitting room, in search of a pair old shoes. As she passed the door a trial of the knob revealed the fact that it was not locked, and throwing it open she rushed to the offending door, drew back the bolt and admitted her now almost frozen companion to his wardrobe. The agility with which he donned those garments was agonizing, and made one think that his boyhood days had returned and he was preparing for a holiday hunt.

In the mean time the solicitous wife had awoke and recruited the embers in the grate, and soon, under the combined efforts of fire and raiment, his shivering limbs began to compose themselves, and his blanched countenance to assume its habitual expression of benignity and cheerfulness.

The storm has now passed away, and the only effects of the commotion remaining are sundry marks on the offending door that make it look as if a goat had been using it for a punch-bag to train for a championship encounter with some rival of the herd. D.

Our suburban friend, James L. Next year he says he will have a brass band on the ground, and will not again take chances on piano music.

Nick Oberding, who resided in the Hebron neighborhood for several years and is now a prominent Dearborn county, Indiana, farmer, has a herd of cows that surprised their owner by going on a druuk, a few days since. They ate freely of some appie pomace, and became so intoxicated that they reeled and stumbled about like a bibulous crowd on the fourth of July.

The crowd was very slow about coming to town, Monday. The people did not like to make the trip.

The farmers have now had a chance to do a little feeding of their stock.

For sale.—Fresh Jersey cow and Durham cow, and Poland China boar.

Rev. Davis has been conducting services at the Presbyterian church since last Thursday night. He is having good congregations, and his sermons are interesting and instructive. The meeting is still in progress.

Mr. J. W. Kenuedy, who has had a long experience in handling tobacco, does not think the farmers' plan for combining against the tobacco trust will be successful, from the fact that under it there will be no discrimination as to prices, whereas if the producers were to pool their crops, a value being placed on each crop when received, it could be sold out, and each person paid his proportion of the proceeds. He thinks that on that plan a pool would be a success.

SANTIAGO SUPREME COURT.

Senor Echeverria, the Supreme Justice, Formally Recognizes the United States as the Supreme Power.

SANTIAGO de CUBA, Dec. 8.—The opening of the recently organized supreme court Friday morning was an impressive ceremony. Chief Justice Echeverria and the associate justices, prior to the opening, called at the palace, where they were received by Gen. Leonard Wood, after which, with Gen. Wood and his aides, Mr. Robert Porter and others, they were driven to the supreme court chamber. Here the judges donned their robes of office, long silk gowns trimmed with white lace, and, accompanied by the attorneys practicing in the court, who were similarly dressed, formed in procession and passed into the courtroom, the chief justice escorting Gen. Wood.

The procession having divided into semi-circles, Gen. Wood in a few tactful and forceful words, opened the proceedings, delivering the court, in the name of the United States government, to the chief justice and his associates and demanding from the public implicit obedience to the court's decisions and decrees. His pronouncement was translated into Spanish by Capt. Mendoza.

Chief Justice Echeverria, replying, accepted the judicial offices in the name of justice, formally recognizing the United States as the supreme power, and declaring that the bench would render justice to rich and poor alike.

The proceedings terminated with [illegible], after which Gen. Wood's party was escorted to the entrance by the entire legal body. The first session of the first purely Cuban court was then opened. Among Cubans the event is a matter for general congratulation. The local newspapers consider it the dawn of a new era and express the hope that the judges, who are men of legal acumen and profound research, may be able to show the world that the Cuban population has within itself the elements of good government. The same papers are exceedingly complimentary in their allusions to Gen. Wood, declaring it "quite impossible that any other American could have secured a better grasp of the entire situation."

Col. Vallent, who has been appointed chief of the gendarmerie, made a record during the insurrection. He was the first to order his men to lay down their arms after the American occupation, and he showed his willingness in every way to co-operate with the United States authorities. He is exceedingly popular in the province, very energetic, and, though a compartively young man, widely experienced. His appointment is much applauded.

On Monday 150 men will begin to build the road to Hogluin. The distance, making allowances for necessary deviation, is 75 miles. Gen. Wood is determined to facilitate the means of inter-communication for the towns in this end of the island, and on the same day a hundred men will begin a road to Guantanamo. In this case a distance of 40 miles must be covered. When the funds will allow, a road will be started to Manzanillo. These highways, once completed, will be of inestimable value for military and commercial purposes.

CALLED ON THE PRESIDENT.

Gen. Garcia in Washington and Visits the White House—The Interview Lasted an Hour and a Half.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Gen. Garcia arrived in the city Friday afternoon, and with the other members of the Cuban commission, called upon the president.

Senor Gonzales de Quesada, who presented Gen. Garcia and his associates to the president and acted as interpreter in the conference that followed, said Friday evening, that, as the conference was of a private nature, it manifestly would be improper to make public any of its details. He was satisfied, he said, that the interview was entirely satisfactory to both the members of the Cuban commission and the president.

Friday evening Maj.-Gen. Miles, commander of the army, called upon Gen. Garcia at his hotel. The call was unofficial. The two soldiers spent a pleasant half hour together.

The Joint Session Friday.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The joint session of the peace commission Friday lasted two hours. No real progress was made. The Spaniards are awaiting instructions. Spain's proposition for commercial privileges in the West Indies was not settled and was scarcely considered Friday. The Americans have also asked for instructions on certain matters. The Caroline island questions were not considered. The joint commission adjourned until Saturday.

A Concession Granted the Spaniards.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily News says: "It is officially announced that the Spanish peace commissioners have secured a concession granting Spain commercial advantages in the Philippines for ten years."

MCKINNEY, Ky., Dec. 3.—Brakeman Jones was killed while making a coupling by freight train No. 35 on the Cincinnati Southern road, at Waynesburg Friday morning.

ALMOST AGREED.

The Work of the Peace Commissioners Will Terminate Soon.

It Will Not Be Necessary, it is Hoped, to Send a Joint Evacuation Commission to Manila as Was Done in the Evacuation of Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—While it is beginning to be recognized here that the chances are against the conclusion of the work of the peace commissioners in Paris in time for the Americans to take the steamer of the 10th for home, the officials are not discouraged at the outlook, knowing that the delay in the proceedings of the commission admits of a reasonable explanation at some points. For instance, there has been some difficulty in reaching an agreement as to the disposition of the public property in the Philippines, including war material, guns and stores. It seems, however, likely now that the commissioners will agree to adopt a plan for the disposition of these claims based upon the procedure that governed in the case of the Spanish properties in Porto Rico It will not be necessary, it is hoped, to send a joint evacuation commission to Manila, as was done in the evacuation of Porto Rico, but simply to adopt the plan laid down by the Porto Rican commission.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The United States and Spanish peace commissioners held private sessions Sunday. Afterward representatives of both sides predicted confidently that the treaty would be signed within a week unless unforeseen complication arise.s

The American commissioners say there is no foundation for the reports circulated in the United States and cabled back that President McKinley has forwarded to the American commissioners instructions to insist unyieldingly upon a coaling base in the Carolines, and that the Spaniards are endeavoring to renew their opposition to a cession of the Philippines.

Both commissions recognize that the latter question is settled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Advices from Judge Day of the Paris peace commission received during Saturday nights cabinet meeting are of a gratifying character and hopeful of the signing of the peace treaty within a reasonable time. Members of the cabinet express satisfaction at the progress being made and say negotiations are progressing smoothly. There are various details, however, concerning which the chairman desires to learn fully of the president's wishes and it was an inquiry of this character which formed the burden of the latest communication from Paris.

WIND STORM AT BALTIMORE.

Fully 800 Houses Were Unroofed—Telegraph, Telephone, Electric Light and Trolley Poles Down.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—The most severe wind and rain storm that has visited Baltimore for many years prevailed Sunday and did thousands of dollars damage. Sixty miles an hour is the wind velocity given out by the weather bureau, the highest for 19 years. Fully 800 houses in the city and vicinity were unroofed, chimneys innumerable were blown down, trees uprooted and poles leveled. Telegraph, telephone, electric light and trolley poles were blown down like so many ten pins. Large sections of the city were in darkness Sunday night and the telegraph and telephone systems are badly wrecked.

During the height of the hurricane a large gas supply tank at the corner of Scott and Ostend streets exploded and created a panic in the neighborhood. No damage was done.

IMPORTS INTO GUATEMALA.

The United States Has Maintained Her Lead—She Practically Controls the Foreign Trade There.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Mr. Beaupre, consul general at Guatemala, in his annual report to the state department, says that the United States has maintained her lead in imports into Guatemala during the past year, and in some important lines the gain has been most gratifying. With Great Britain and Germany, she practically controls the foreign trade of Guatemala. He says that the bulk of United States goods is to good for this market. They should be made to sell cheaply, but should be showy with colors and tinsel. Most of the graniteware comes from Germany, because of the low price; but it is so light and cheap that it can not last long.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 5.—Ex-Assistant City Attorney W. H. House, on trial for aiding and abetting Maj. W. C. Moreland, former city attorney, for embezzling $26,000 city funds, was Saturday found guilty and sentenced to serve 18 months in the county workhouse and pay a fine of $1,000. This was House's third trial. Maj. Moreland, who was sentenced to three years in the western penitentiary, was recently pardoned after serving 18 months of his sentence.

AMERICAN MEATS IN PRUSSIA

An Amelioration of the German Inspection Laws Prepared for Action in Reichstag—Government Inspection.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The state department, through Ambassador White at Berlin, for some time past has been in correspondence with the German government in an effort to secure an abatement of the many vexatious conditions which surround the importation of American meat products into Germany. At present these products are required to pass under the closest examination, in some cases a dozen times before reaching the consumer, notwithstanding the fact that the goods have been thoroughly tested, as certified by the seal of the American government before leaving the United States. The German inspections begin at the port of entry and are renewed every time the goods change hands. As this involves the breaking open of original packages, even when the latter are of the smallest compass, and taking many samples, and the payment of a fee at each inspection, the aggregate loss of the American meat packer and exporter is very large. For several years the state department at intervals has sought to secure an abatement of the evils of the German practice, which was ostensibly founded upon fear that infected meat might be imported into Germany, notwithstanding the fact that the testimony of all the experts and the statistics went to show that not a single case of trichinosis, the most dreaded of swine disease, could be traced to an American hog. Finally Ambassador White secured the promise of what he regarded as a great amelioration of the Germany inspection laws, and it is this, embodied in the shape of a bill prepared for the action of the reichstag, which is reported to have aroused the opposition of the sausage interest in America. What the department has obtained, for one thing, is substitution of one general governmental inspection for the numerous local and municipal inspections to which American meat products are now subjected, and the special ground of complaint of sausage exporters in the premises is not clearly perceived by the officials here but the state and agricultural departments of course will do their best to protect all American interests.

Secretary Wilson Friday said: "The department of agriculture is laboring incessantly, through the state department, with our foreign representatives, to take care of our exports. No opportunity is missed in watching and protecting the interests of all our exports. We now have an expert in Berlin, Mr. Stiles, who is attached to the United States embassy there, whose duty it is to give us direct and complete information along these lines."

Further than this the secretary would not talk, as the subject is being prosecuted through diplomatic channels.

PROF. ANDREE HEARD FROM.

A Bottle Picked Up By an Engineer in the Ural Mountains—Give This Letter to the Consul or to the Police."

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 3.—An engine driver named Detke has written to the Swedish-Norwegian minister at St. Petersburg, a letter in which he says he found in the vicinity of the Ural mountains a bottle containing two papers, one of which bore the following message written in French:

"Andre's balloon has crossed the Ural mountains." [Signed,]
"ANDRE."

The paper inscribed in Russian, was as follows:

"Give this letter to the consul or to the police."

The balloon Eagle, with Prof. Andre and two companions, Strindberg and Frenkel in the car, left Danes island, of the Spitzbergen group, on July 11, 1897, in an attempt to cross the pole. Since then no definite news of the aeronauts has been received beyond a message found attached to a carrier pigeon found by the whaling ship Falken which arrived at Copenhagen on Sept. 2. The message read: "July 13, 12:30 p. m., Lat. 82.2 north, Long. 12.5 east. Good voyage eastward. All well."

HE SHOT HIS SWEETHEART.

They Had a Quarrel and He Fired Two Shots, The Second Taking Effect—The Shooter is a Furloughed Soldier.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 3.—Wm. Foster shot and probably fatally wounded Miss Myrtle Gorman Friday evening. They had a quarrel, and Foster becoming enraged, drew a revolver and fired two shots, the second taking effect in the girl's abdomen. He escaped and the police are looking for him. Foster is a private of Company C, 8th Pennsylvania regiment, and is home on a furlough. Both he and his victim reside at Green Castle and were here visiting friends Friday.

Robbers Escape After a Rich Haul.

WATERLOO, Ind., Dec. 3.—Burglars blew open the safe in the general store of Chadwick, Ransburg & Co., at Pleasant Lake, a small station north of this city, at 2 o'clock Friday morning. They secured $2,500 and escaped.

NEW YORK FIRE.

Clothing House of Rogers, Peet & Co. Was a Roaring Furnace.

The Losses Are: Rogers, Peet & Co. Building, $350,000; Home Life Insurance Co., $500,000; Postal Telegraph Building, $100,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Fire broke out in the basement of the building occupied by Rogers, Peet & Co., clothiers, about 9:30 o'clock. The policemen standing within half a block of Warren street heard a loud explosion and a moment later saw a thin line of smoke curling up from the side of the Rogers, Peet & Co. building. At that time the rain was falling in torrents and the wind blew a gale. An alarm was sent in but before the first engine turned into Broadway the Rogers, Peet & Co.'s basement was a roaring furnace with great flames bursting through the floors above and rushing fiercely to the roof. Within ten minutes five alarms had been sent in, bringing engine after engine to the [illegible].

By 10 o'clock so rapidly and fiercely did the flames make progress that there was nothing but the shell of the Rogers-Peet building left with mountains of flames roaring a hundred feet in the air and encircling the adjoining structure, the Home Life Insurance Co. building. In the blinding rain the fireman worked, stretching the black and slippery lines of hose through the building, fighting the flames from every side. Soon a great wave of fire swept across Warren street and caught the United States Life Insurance Co. building at the west corner of Broadway, numbering 259 and 261. The woodwork on a dozen windows was afire in a moment, and from that time on several streams were played on this building to save it from destruction. When the Warren street wall of the Rogers-Peet building fell at 10.30 o'clock, a dozen firemen were directly beneath. Several of the men were struck by bricks; but none was more than slightly injured. Acting Chief Perle fell, but was dragged to safety by some of his men.

Just before 11 o'clock the Home Life Insurance Co.'s building, 16 stories high, at 255 and 257 Broadway, caught fire. The firemen already had their lines in this building up to the seventh floor. They were greatly handicapped by the many stories. Flames had eaten their way through the side wall in many places, and the huge white structure burned fiercely. The elevators made trips up and down until the men running the cages were compelled to flee for their lives and in this way many of the effects of the offices were saved. The three top floors were on fire almost simultaneously from the beginning. The smoke was dense. Flames shot high above the roof and over the massive brown stone postal building on the corner below. All the operators of the postal building and everybody at work in the structure had been ordered out of this building long before.

At 11:15 the postal building of 14 stories caught fire. Chief Bonner, who had charge of the firemen, took the elevator and went to the roof to give personal directions. At this time there were a few operators who had ignored the orders of the fire chief, two or three clerks and a few boys at work in the building in the stifling smoke, and messages were sent until the flames came and all were forced to rush for their lives. The unsent messages were left at the telegraph keys.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning the fire was still burning fiercely in front and, although not observable by the thousands of spectators, was burning still more fiercely and extending lower down in the rear.

An insurance man roughly estimated the losses at about as follows:

Rogers, Peet & Co., building and stock and losses to other tenants in the building, $350,000.

Home Life Insurance Co., building and losses to other tenants, $500,000.

Postal Telegraph Co., building and losses to other tenants, $100,000.

Losses to surrounding buildings, $50,000.

Chief Bonner thought that this estimate, on the basis of a million dollars loss, was about as near correct as it was possible to make.

At 2.30 o'clock Fire Chief Bonner went home saying that the fire would burn itself out in a short time, and that it could not spread, and was practically out.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

His Peculiar Phase of Lunacy Was Developed During a Trial in Court.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to the story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little southern town. And the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney. The old fellow was perfectly honest, and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgeling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend, 'just ship in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross-examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high could you build?' I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Expert and Able to Speak Intelligently.

Expert Stephen Little, who has just returned from an extended trip over the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western systems, says: "No one who has not recently examined these properties has any idea of their value and infinite progress. The service on the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western is unexcelled. There is nothing in the East to compare, much less to equal it, and it towers monumentally over any other transportation in any part of the world. The train service of these three corporations is superb. Until recently the Pennsylvania limited, out of New York, to Chicago, was believed to be ideal, but so thorough is the service of the Chicago Great Western, with the buffet cars, with their bulk heads, stained glass windows, and complete electrical equipment, that the Pennsylvania people have ordered their unsurpassed 'Chicago Limited' into the shops that it may be rebuilt, or rather, modernized, after the cars that are in service on the Chicago Great Western. I think the future of this property is very great. The earnings are away ahead of what they were a year ago and the outlook is brighter."

OUR WAR WITH SPAIN.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Notwithstanding the added burdens rendered necessary by the war our people respond in a very satisfactory and steadily increasing degree of prosperity, evidenced by the largest volume of business ever recorded. Manufacture has produced to the utmost and mercantile have yielded abundant returns, labor in the fields of industry is better rewarded, revenue legislation passed by the present congress has increased the treasury receipts to the amount estimated by its authors; the finances of the government have been successfully administered and its credit advanced to the first rank while its currency has been maintained at the world's highest standard. Military service under a common flag and for a righteous cause has strengthened the national sentiment and the agreement more closely than ever the fraternal bonds between every section of the country. A review of the relation of the United States to other powers shows a growing appreciation by them of primary importance in view of the momentous issues which have arisen, demanding in one instance the ultimate determination by arms and involving far-reaching consequences which will require the earnest attention of the congress.

In my last annual message very full consideration was given to the question of the duty of the government of the United States toward Spain and the Cuban insurrection as being by far the most important problem with which we were then called upon to deal. The considerations adduced and the exposition of the views therein expressed, disclosed my sense of the gravity of the situation. Setting aside as logically unfounded or practically inadmissible the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, the recognition of the independence of Cuba, neutral intervention to end the war by imposing a national compromise between the contestants, intervention in favor of one or the other party, and forcible annexation of the island, I concluded it was honestly due to our friendly relations with Spain that she should be given a reasonable chance to realize her expectations of reform to which she had become irrevocably committed. Within a few weeks previously she had announced comprehensive plans which it was confidently asserted would be efficacious to remedy the evils so deeply affecting our own country, so injurious to the trade interests of the mother country as well as to those of Cuba, and so repugnant to the universal sentiment of humanity.

The ensuing month brought little sign of real progress toward the pacification of Cuba. The autonomous administrations set up in the capital and some of the principal cities appeared not to gain the favor of the inhabitants nor to be able to extend their influence to the large extent of territory held by the insurgents, while the military arm, obviously unable to cope with still active rebellion, continued many of the most objectionable and offensive policies of the government that had preceded it. No tangible relief was afforded the vast numbers of the unhappy reconcentrados, despite the liberal provisions made in that regard and the amount appropropriated by Spain to that end. The proffered expedient of zones of cultivation proved illusory; indeed, no less practical nor more delusive promises of success could well have been tendered to the exhausted and destitute people, stripped of all that made life and home dear and herded in a strange region among unsympathetic strangers hardly less necessitous than themselves.

By the end of December the mortality among them had frightfully increased. Conservative estimates from Spanish sources now place the deaths among these distressed people at over 40 per cent. from the time Gen. Woyler's decree of reconcentration was enforced. With the acquiescence of the Spanish authorities a scheme was adopted for relief by charitable contributions raised in this country and distributed under the direction of the consul general and the several consuls. To this end the earnest individual effort thr ugh the organized agencies of the American Red Cross Thousands of lives were thus saved, but many thousands more were inaccessible to such forms of aid.

The war continued on the old footing without comprehensive plan, developing only the same sporadic encounters, barren of strategic result, that had marked the course of the earlier ten years' rebellion as well as the present insurrection from its start. No intermittent save physical exhaustion of either party, and therewithal the practical ruin of the island, lay in sight, but how far distant no one could venture to conjecture.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE MAINE.

At this juncture, on the 15th of February, last, occurred the destruction of the battleship Maine while rightfully lying in the harbor of Havana on a mission of international courtesy and good will—a catastrophe the suspicious nature and horror of which stirred the nation's heart profoundly. It is a striking evidence of the poise and sturdy good sense distinguishing our national character that this appalling blow, falling upon a generous people already deeply touched by impending events in Cuba did not move them to an instant, desperate resolve to tolerate no longer the existence of a condition of danger and disorder as near that made possible such a deed. By never wrought. Yet the instinct of justice rolled and the nation anxiously awaited the result of the searching investigation at a fact. The finding of the naval ... duly established that the origin of the explosion was external, by a submarine mine, and only halted, through lack of positive testimony, to fix the responsibility of its authorship.

All these things carried conviction to the most thoughtful, even before the finding of the naval court, that a crisis in our relations with Spain and toward Cuba was at hand. So strong was this belief that it needed but a brief executive suggestion to the congress to receive immediate answer to the duty of making instant provision for the possible and perhaps speedily probable emergency of war, and the remarkable, almost unique, spectacle was presented of a unanimous vote of both houses on the 9th of March, appropriating fifty million dollars "for the national defense and for each and every purpose connected therewith, to be expended at the discretion of the president." That this act of provision came none too soon was disclosed when the application of the fund was undertaken. Our coasts were practical undefended. Our navy needed large provision for increased ammunition and supplies, and even numbers to cope with any sudden attack from the navy of Spain, which comprised modern vessels of the highest type of constructional perfection. Our army also required enlargement of men and munitions. It is sufficient to say that the outbreak of war, when it did come, found our nation not unprepared to meet the conflict.

Nor was the apprehension of coming strife confined to our own country. It was felt by the continental powers, which, on April 6, through their ambassadors and envoys, addressed to the executive an expression of hope that humanity and moderation might mark the action of this government and people, and that further negotiations would lead to an agreement which, while securing the maintenance of peace, would afford all necessary guarantees for the re-establishment of order in Cuba. In responding to that representation, I said I shared the hope the envoys had expressed that peace might be preserved in a manner to terminate the chronic condition of disturbances in Cuba so injurious and menacing to our interests and tranquility, as well as shocking to our sentiments of humanity.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH SPAIN.

Still animated by the hope of a peaceful solution and obeying the dictates of duty, no effort was relaxed to bring about a speedy ending of the Cuban struggle. Negotiations to this object continued actively with the government of Spain, looking to the immediate conclusion of a six months' armistice in Cuba with a view to effect the recognition of her people's right to independence or, failing this, the voluntary revocation of the order of reconcentration was asked, so that the sufferers, returning to their homes and aided by United American charitable effort, might be put in a way to support themselves and, by orderly resumption of the well nigh destroyed productive energies of the island, contribute to the restoration of its normal self-supporting condition. Negotiations continued for some little time at Madrid, resulting in offers by the Spanish government which could not but be regarded as inadequate.

Grieved at and disappointed at this barren outcome of my sincere endeavors to reach a practicable solution, I felt it my duty to remit the whole question to congress and did so in my message of April 11, 1898.

In view of all this, the congress was asked to authorize and empower the president to take measures to secure a full and final termination of hostilities between Spain and the people of Cuba and to secure in the island the establishment of a stable government, capable of maintaining order and observing its international obligations, insuring permanent peace and the security of its citizens as well as our own, and for the accomplishment of those ends to use the military and naval forces of the United States as he might deem necessary, including authority to continue generous relief to the starving people of Cuba.

The response of the congress, after nine days of earnest deliberation, during which the almost unanimous sentiment of your body was developed on every point save as to the expediency of coupling the proposed action with a formal recognition of the Cuban republic, Cuba as the true and lawful government of that island—a proposition which failed of adoption—the congress, after conference on the 19th day of April, by a vote of 42 to 35 in the senate and 311 to 6 in the house of representatives, passed the memorable joint resolution declaring that the people of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent, and directing the president to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States if necessary to carry the resolution into effect.

SPANISH MINISTER LEAVES WASHINGTON.

This resolution was approved by the executive on the next day, April 20. A copy was at once communicated to the Spanish minister at his capital, who forthwith asked for his passports and withdrew from Washington, leaving the Spanish interests in the hands of the French ambassador and the Austro-Hungarian minister. Simultaneously with its communication to the Spanish minister, Gen. Woodford, the American minister at Madrid, was telegraphed confirmation of the text of the joint resolution and directed to communicate it to the government of Spain with the formal demand that it at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its forces from it, coupling this demand with announcements of the intentions of this government as to the future of the island, in conformity with the fourth clause of the resolution, and giving Spain until noon of April 23 to reply.

That demand, although as above officially shown, officially made known to the Spanish government, was not delivered to the minister at the insurrection reached Gen. Woodford on the morning of April 21, but before he could present it the Spanish minister of state notified him that the government's approval of the joint resolution the Madrid government, regarding the act as "equivalent to an evident declaration of war," had ordered its minister in Washington to withdraw, thereby breaking off diplomatic relations between the two countries and ceasing all official communication between their respective representatives. Gen. Woodford thereupon demanded his passports and quitted Madrid the same day.

RELATIONS REFFUSED AND WAR DECLARED.

Spain having thus denied the demand of the United States and initiated that complete form of rupture of relations which attends a state of war, the executive powers conferred by the resolution and act of congress used for me to meet the enlarged contingency of actual war between sovereign states. On April 22, I proclaimed a blockade of the ports of Cuba, and directing ports on said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda and the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba; and on the 24th called for volunteers to execute the purpose of the resolution. By my message of April 25, the congress was informed of the situation and I recommended formal declaration of the existence of a state of war between the United States and Spain. Congress accordingly voted on the same day the act approved April 25, 1898, declaring the existence of such war from and including the 21st day of April, and recognized the provisions of the executive of April 20, directing the president to use all the armed forces of the nation to carry that act into effect. Due notification of the existence of war as thus declared was given April 25 by telegraph to all the governments with which the United States maintain relations, in order that their neutrality might be assumed during the war. The various governments responded with proclamations of neutrality, each after its own methods. It is not among the least gratifying incidents of the war that the obligations of neutrality were impartially discharged by all, often under delicate and difficult circumstances.

In further fulfillment of international duty, I issued, April 26, a proclamation announcing the treatment proposed to be accorded to vessels and their cargoes as to blockade, contraband, the exercise of the right of search, and immunity of neutral flag and neutral goods under enemy's flag. A similar proclamation was made by the Spanish government. In the conduct of hostilities the rules of the declaration of Paris, binding upon the parties to our understanding, have accordingly been observed by both belligerents, although neither was a party to that declaration.

ENGAGED IN DEADLY CONFLICT.

Our country thus, after an interval of half a century of peace with all nations, found itself engaged in deadly conflict with a foreign enemy. Every nerve was strained to meet the emergency. The response to the initial call for 125,000 volunteers was prompt and complete, as was also the result of the second call of May 25 for 75,000 additional volunteers. The ranks of the regular army were increased to the limits provided by the act of April 26. The enlisted force of the navy on the 15th day of August, when it reached its maximum, numbered 24,123 men and apprentices. One hundred and three vessels were added to the navy by purchase, one was presented to the government, one leased, and the four vessels of the International Navigation Co., the St. Paul, St. Louis, New York and Paris, were chartered. In addition to these the revenue cutters and lighthouse tenders were turned over to the navy department and became temporarily a part of the auxiliary navy.

The maximum effective fighting force of the navy during the war, separated into classes, was as follows:

Four battle ships of the first-class; one battle ship of the second-class; two armored cruisers; six coast defense monitors; one armored ram; 12 protected cruisers; three unprotected cruisers; 18 gunboats; one gunboat cruiser; 11 torpedo boats; 14 other vessels of the old navy and six monitors. Auxiliary navy: Eleven auxiliary cruisers; 28 converted yachts; 27 converted tugs; 19 converted colliers; 16 revenue cutters; four lighthouse tenders and 19 miscellaneous vessels.

THE COAST DEFENSE.

Much alarm was felt along our entire Atlantic seashore lest some attack might be made by the enemy. Every precaution was taken to prevent possible injury to our great cities lying along the coast. Temporary garrisons were provided, drawn from the state militia; infantry and light batteries were drawn from the volunteer force. About 12,000 troops were thus employed. The coast signal service was established for observing the approach of an enemy's ships to the coast of the United States, and the life saving and light house services were utilized to enable the navy department to have all portions of the Atlantic coast, from Maine to Texas, under observation.

The auxiliary navy was created under the authority of congress, and was officered and manned by the naval militia of the several states. This organization patrolled the coast, and performed the duty of a second arm of defense.

Under the direction of the chief of engineers submarine mines were placed at the most exposed points. The aggregate number of mines placed is 1,535 in all. The principal mines are from Maine to California. Preparations were also made for the planting of mines at certain other harbors, but owing to the early destruction of the Spanish fleet the mines were not placed.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

The signal corps was promptly organized, and performed service of the most difficult and important character. Its operations during the war covered the electrical connection of all fortifications, the establishment of telephonic and telegraphic facilities for the camps at Manila, Santiago and in Porto Rico.

In Porto Rico cable communications were opened over the submarine cable, and on land the headquarters of the commanding officer was kept in telegraphic and telephonic communication with the division commanders and chiefs of staff of operations.

There was placed in Cuban waters a completely outfitted cable ship, with war cables and cable gear, suitable both for the destruction of communications belonging to the enemy and the establishment of our own. Two ocean cables were destroyed under the enemy's batteries at Santiago. The day previous to the surrender of Gen. Shafter's corps at Caimanera, within 30 miles of the landing place, cable communications were established and cable station opened, giving direct communication with the government at Washington. This service was invaluable to the commander in directing the operations of the army and navy. With a total force of over 1,300 the loss was by disease in camp and field, officers and men included only five.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE WAR.

The national defense fund of $50,000,000 was expended in large part by the army and navy and the objects for which it was used are fully shown in the reports of the several departments. This fund, being inadequate to the requirements of equipment for the conduct of the war, the patriotism of the congress provided the means in the war revenue act of June 13, by authorizing a three per cent. popular loan not to exceed $100,000,000, and by levying additional imposts and taxes. Of the authorized loan $200,000,000 were offered and promptly taken.

It is not within the province of this message to narrate the history of the extraordinary war that followed the Spanish declaration of April 21, but a brief recital of its more salient features is appropriate. The first encounter of the war in point of date took place April 27, when a detachment of the blockading squadron shelled the harbor forts and demolished several new works in course of construction at Matanzas.

THE BATTLE OF MANILA.

The next engagement was destined to mark a memorable epoch in maritime warfare. The Pacific fleet, under command of Commodore George Dewey, had lain for some weeks at Hongkong in accordance with international rules of neutrality being issued and the customary 24 hours' notice being given. It repaired to Mirs bay, near Hongkong, whence it proceeded to Manila, arriving in the night. Having prepared orders to capture or destroy the formidable Spanish fleet then assembled at Manila.

The message then recites the battle of Manila in which the Spanish squadron under command of Adm. Montojo was annihilated by the vessels commanded by Adm. Geo. Dewey.

On the seventh day of May the government was advised officially of the victory at Manila, and at once instructed the commander of our fleet what troops would be required. The information was received on the 8th day of May, and the first army expedition sailed May 25, and arrived at Manila June 30. Other expeditions soon followed, the total force consisting of 641 officers and 15,058 men.

Only reluctance to cause needless loss of life and property prevented the early storming and capture of the city, and therewith the absolute military occupancy of the whole group. The insurgents were constrained from taking Manila, and it was distinctly understood that whatever was to be done in the way of decisive operations in that quarter should be accomplished by the strong arm of the United States alone. Obeying the sternest rule of war which enjoins the overcoming of the adversary and the extinction of his power wherever assailable as the speedy and sure means to win a peace, divided counsels not permissible for the maintenance of the rights and responsibilities attending the enforcement of a just and advantageous peace could be thought of.

THE FIGHTING IN CUBA.

Not until Admiral Cervera took refuge in the harbor of Santiago with the Spanish fleet did it was it practicable to plan a systematic military attack upon the Antillean possessions of Spain.

Several demonstrations occurred on the coast of Cuba and Puerto Rico in preparation for the larger event. On May 13th the North Atlantic squadron shelled San Juan de Porto Rico. On May 26th Commodore Schley's squadron shelled the forts guarding the entrance to the mouth of Santiago harbor. Neither attack had any material result. It was evident that well-ordered land operations were indispensable to secure a decisive advance.

The president next tells of the heroic deed of Lieut. Hobson and the seven volunteers who sank the Merrimac in the mouth of the harbor at Santiago under a fierce fire from the shore batteries, escaping with their lives as by a miracle, but failing into the Spaniard's hands.

By June 7, the cutting of the last Cuban cable isolated the island. Thereafter the invasion was vigorously prosecuted. On June 10, under a heavy protecting fire, a landing of 650 marines from the Oregon, Marblehead and Yankee, was effected in Guantanamo bay, where it had been determined to establish a naval station.

This important and essential port was taken from the enemy with severe fighting by the marines, who were the first organized force of the United States to land in Cuba.

The position so won was held despite desperate attempts to dislodge our forces by the 16,000 additional forces were landed and strongly intrenched. On June 22 the advance of the invading army under Maj. Gen. Shafter, landed at Daiquiri, some 15 miles east of Santiago. This was accomplished under great difficulties but with marvelous dispatch. On June 23 the movement against Santiago was begun. On the 24th the first serious engagement took place, in which the 1st and 10th cavalry and the 1st United States volunteer cavalry, Gen. Young's brigade of Gen. Wheeler's division, participated, losing heavily. By nightfall, however, ground within five miles of Santiago was won. The advantage was steadily increased. On July 1 a severe battle took place, our forces gaining the outworks of Santiago; on the 2d El Caney and San Juan were taken after a desperate charge, and the investment of the city was completed.

The navy co-operated by shelling the town and the coast forts.

DESTRUCTION OF SPANISH FLEET AT SANTIAGO.

On the day following this brilliant achievement our land forces, July 3, occurred the decisive naval combat of the war. The Spanish fleet, attempting to leave the harbor, was met by the American squadron under command of Commodore Sampson. In less than three hours all the Spanish ships were destroyed, the two torpedo boats being sunk, and the Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and the Christobal Colon driven ashore. The Spanish admiral and over 1,300 men were taken prisoners, while the enemy's loss of life was deplorably large, some 600 perishing. On our side one sailor was killed.

Although our ships were repeatedly struck, not one was seriously injured. Where all so conspicuously distinguished themselves, from the commanders to the gunners and the unnamed heroes in the boiler rooms, each and all contributing toward the achievement of this astounding victory, for which neither ancient or modern history furnishes a parallel in the completeness of the event and the marvelous disproportion of casualties, it would be invidious to single out any for especial honor. Deserved promotion has been given to the conspicuous actors—the nation's profoundest gratitude is due to all of these brave men.

With the catastrophe of Santiago Spain's efforts upon the ocean virtually ceased. A last spasmodic effort toward the end of June to send her Mediterranean fleet, under Adm. Camara, to relieve Manila was abandoned, the expedition being recalled after it had passed through the Suez canal.

CAPITULATION OF SANTIAGO AND OCCUPATION OF PORTO RICO.

The capitulation of Santiago followed. The number of Spanish soldiers surrendered was 24,000, all of whom were subsequently conveyed to Spain at the charge of the United States.

With the fall of Santiago the occupation of Porto Rico became the next strategetic necessity. Gen. Miles has previously been assigned to organize an expedition for that purpose. Fortunately he was already at Santiago, where he had arrived on the 11th of July, with reinforcements from Shafter's army.

On July 27th he entered Ponce, one of the most important ports in the island, from which he thereafter directed operations for the capture of the island.

With the exception of encounters with the enemy at Guayamn, Hormigueros, Coamo and Yauco, and an attack on a force landed at Cape San Juan, there was no organized resistance. The campaign was prosecuted with great vigor, and by the 12th of August much of the island was in our possession and the acquisition of the remainder was only a matter of a short time. At most of the points in the island our troops were enthusiastically welcomed. Protestations of loyalty to the flag and gratitude for relief from Spanish rule met our commanders at every stage.

The total casualties in killed and wounded in the army during the war was as follows. Officers killed, 23; officers died of wounds, total, 280; officers wounded, 113; enlisted men wounded, 1,461; total, 1,577. Of the navy: Killed, 17; wounded, 67, died as result of wounds, 1; killed from disease, 6; total, 91.

It will be observed that while our navy was engaged in two great battles and in numerous perilous undertakings in the blockades and bombardment and more than 50,000 of our troops were transported to distant lands and engaged in assault and siege and battle and many skirmishes in unfamiliar territory, we lost in both arms of the service a total of 345 killed and wounded, and in the entire campaign by land and sea we did not lose a gun or a flag or a transport or a ship, and with the exception of the Maine, no vessel, monitor, nor a soldier or sailor was taken prisoner.

On August 7, 46 days from the date of the landing of Gen. Shafter's army in Cuba and 21 days from the departure of the expedition, the United States troops commenced embarkation for home and our entire force was returned to the United States as early as August 24. They were absent from the United States about two months.

The president then mentions, in terms of cordial appreciation, the timely and useful work of the American National Red Cross, both in relief measures at the front and in the campaigns, in sanitary assistance at several of the camps of assemblage.

The annihilation of Adm. Cervera's fleet, followed by the surrender of Santiago, having brought to the Spanish government a realizing sense of the hopelessness of continuing a struggle now become wholly unequal, it made overtures of peace through the French ambassador, who, with the assent of his government, had acted as the friendly representative of Spanish interests during the war.

SPAIN SUES FOR PEACE.

On the 26th of July M. Cambon presented a communication signed by the duke of Almodovar, the Spanish minister of state, inviting the United States to state the terms upon which it would be willing to make peace. On July 30 by a note addressed to the minister the duke of Almodovar and handed to M. Cambon, the terms of this government were announced, substantially as in the protocol afterwards signed.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the protocol, I issued a proclamation of August 12, suspending hostilities on the part of the United States. The necessary orders to put it into effect at once given by telegraph. The blockade of the ports of Cuba and San Juan de Porto Rico was in like manner raised. On August 18, the muster out of 100,000 volunteers, or as near that number as was found to be practicable, was ordered.

The message then recites the appointment of evacuation commissions for Cuba and Porto Rico; also of the appointment of Wm. R. Day to secretary of state, Cushman K. Davis, Wm. P. Frye and Senator George Gray as a commission to proceed to Paris and arrange terms of peace with a commission appointed with Spain.

OUR NEW POSSESSIONS.

I do not discuss at this time the government or the future of the new possessions which will come to us as the result of the war with Spain. Such discussion will be appropriate after the treaty of peace shall be ratified. In the meantime and until the congress has legislated otherwise, it will be my duty to continue the military government which we have established in the occupation and give the people security in life and property, and encouragement under a just and ... rule.

As soon as we are in possession of Cuba and have pacified the island, it will be necess ary to give aid and direction to its people to form a government for themselves. This should be undertaken at the earliest practicable moment, with safety and assured success. It is important that our relations with these people shall be of the most friendly character and our commercial intercourse close and reciprocal. It should be our duty to assist in every proper way to build up the waste places of the island, encourage the industry of the people and assist them to form a government which shall be free and independent, thus realizing the best aspirations of the Cuban people.

Spanish rule must be replaced by a just, benevolent and humane government, created by the people of Cuba, capable of performing all international obligations, and which shall encourage thrift, industry and prosperity, and promote popular welfare and general happiness of its inhabitants, whatever m y be even their relations in the past. Neither revenge nor passion should have a place in the new government. Until public tranquility is restored the United States to land in Cuba.

The position so won was held despite desperate attempts to dislodge our forces by the 16,000 additional forces were landed and strongly intrenched. On June 22 the advance of the invading army under Maj. Gen. Shafter, landed at Daiquiri, some 15 miles east of Santiago. This was accomplished under great difficulties but with marvelous dispatch. On June 23 the movement against Santiago was begun. On the 24th the first serious engagement took place, in which the 1st and 10th cavalry and the 1st United States volunteer cavalry, Gen. Young's brigade of Gen. Wheeler's division, participated, losing heavily. By nightfall, however, ground within five miles of Santiago was won. The advantage was steadily increased. On July 1 a severe battle took place, our forces gaining the outworks of Santiago; on the 2d El Caney and San Juan were taken after a desperate charge, and the investment of the city was completed.

before you. In the performance of its task the commission received an possible courtesy and assistance from the governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, which thus testified their appreciation of the importance of giving a speedy and practical outcome to the great project that has for so many years engrossed the attention of the respective countries.

A convention providing for the revival of the late United States and Chilian claims commission, but the prospect that the vast commerce which the energy of our citizens and the necessity of our staple productions for Chinese uses has built up in those regions may not be prejudiced through any exclusive treatment by the new occupants has obviated the need of our country becoming an actor in the scene.

Our position among nations, having a large Pacific coast and a constantly expanding direct trade with the farther Orient, gives us the equitable claim to consideration and friendly treatment in this regard, and it will be my aim to assert and maintain our interests in that quarter by all means appropriate to the constant policy of our government.

ENGLAND'S FRIENDSHIP.

[illegible] with Great Britain have continued on the most friendly footing. Assent to the laws of nations, the protection of Americans and their interests in Spanish jurisdiction was assumed by the consular and diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, who fulfilled their delicate and arduous trust with tact and zeal, eliciting high commendation.

It will give me especial satisfaction if I shall be authorized to communicate to you favorable consideration of the pending negotiations with great Britain in respect to the Domiaion of Canada. It is the earnest wish of this government to remove all sources of discord and irritation in our relations with this neighboring dominion. The trade between the two countries is constantly increasing and it is important to both countries that all reasonable facilities should be granted for its development.

THE ANNEXATION OF HAWAII.

The president tells of the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, and states that this was simply but impressively accomplished on August 12. In pursuance of the terms of the joint resolution and in exercise of the authority thereby conferred upon me, I directed that the civil, judicial and military powers theretofore exercised by the officers of the late government of the Republic of Hawaii, should continue to shall provide a government for the incorporated be exercised by those officers until congress otherwise provide, by the power to remove such officers and to fill such vacancies.

The questions heretofore pending between Hawaii and Japan, growing out of the alleged violation of the Japanese treaty by the former government, were, I am pleased to say, adjusted before the act of transfer by the payment of a reasonable indemnity to the government of Japan.

Under the provisions of the joint resolution the existing customs relations of the Hawaiian Islands with the United States and with other countries, and the duties unchanged until legislation shall otherwise provide. It would be desirable that all foreign consuls in the Hawaiian Islands should receive new exequters from this government.

The attention of congress is called to the fact that our consular offices having ceased to exist in Hawaii and being about to cease in other countries, and the consular service under the treaty of 1884 with Hawaii, the provisions for the relief and transportation of destitute American seamen in those countries under our consular regulations will in consequence terminate. It is proper, therefore, that new legislation should be enacted upon this subject in order to meet the changed conditions.

The message recommends some amendments to our coasting statute. This matter was mentioned in a previous president's message, but not acted upon by congress.

PARIS EXPOSITION.

There is now every prospect that the participation of the United States in the universal exposition to be held in Paris in 1900 will be on a scale commensurate with the advanced position held by our products and industries in the world's celebrated.

The commercial arrangement made with France on May 28, 1898, under the provision of section 3 of the tariff act of 1897, went into effect on June 1 follow- ing. It [illegible] portion of our export trade from serious embarrassment. Further negotiations are now pending under Section 4 of the same act, with a view to the increase of trade between the two countries to our material advantage. Negotiations with other governments, in part interrupted by the war with Spain, are in progress under both sections of the tariff act. I hope to be able to announce some of the results of these negotiations during the present session of congress.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH GERMANY.

Negotiations to the same end with Germany have been set on foot. Material relief in that has been relaxed to convince the imperial government of the thoroughness of our inspection of pork products for exportation, and it is hoped that the efficient operation of this measure by the department of agriculture will be recognized as a guarantee of the healthfulness of the food staples we send abroad to countries where their use is large and necessary.

OUR RELATIONS WITH MEXICO.

The president suggests that congress consider the advisability of authorizing and inviting a commission of representatives of the treasury departments of the United States and Mexico to consider the subject of concurrent legislation of the two countries looking to the protection of the revenues by the appropriate officers operating legally on either side of the boundary.

OUR RELATIONS WITH PERU.

The government of Peru has given the prescribed notification of its intention to abrogate the treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation concluded with this country August 31, 1887. As that treaty contains many important provisions necessary to the due protection of our commercial and good relations, which could with difficulty be replaced by the nomination of renewed provisions within the brief twelve months intervening before the treaty terminates, I have invited suggestions by Peru as to the particular provisions it is desired to annul, in the hope of reaching an arrangement whereby the remaining articles may be provisionally saved.

THE CZAR'S PEACE PROPOSAL

The president calls attention to the proposal of the czar of Russia to reduce the military establishments of the different nations and expresses the hope that the contemplated conference will accomplish such a desirable reform.

OTHER FOREIGN MATTERS.

The claims of owners of American sealing vessels for damages by Russian cruisers in behring sea are being pressed to a settlement. The equity of the case justifies the expectation that a measure of reparation will eventually be accorded in harmony with precedent and in the light of proven facts.

Immediately upon the outbreak of the war with Spain the Swiss government proposed to the United States and Spain that they should severally recognize and carry into execution, as a modus vivendi, during the continuance of hostilities, the additional articles proposed to the International Red Cross conference of Geneva, October 20, 1868, extending the effects of the existing Red Cross convention of 1864 to the conduct of naval war. The Swiss proposal was promptly and cordially accepted by us and simultaneously by Spain.

This government feels a keen satisfaction in having thus been enabled to testify to its adherence to the broadest principles of humanity even amidst the clash of war.

CONTROVERSY WITH TURKEY.

The newly-accredited envoy of the United States to the Ottoman Porte carries instructions looking to the disposal of matters in controversy with Turkey for a number of years. He is especially charged to press our claims for indemnity by reason of the destruction of the property of American missionaries resident in that country during the Armenian troubles of 1895, as well as for the recognition of older claims of equal justness.

THE ISSUING OF COMMERCIAL REPORTS.

During the past year the important work of collecting information of practical benefit to American industries and trade through the agency of the diplomatic and consular officers has been steadily advanced, and in order to lay such data before the public with the least delay, the practice was begun in January, 1898, of issuing the commercial reports from day to day as they are received by the department of state. It is believed that for promptitude as well as fullness of information the service thus supplied to our merchants and manufacturers will be found to show sensible improvement and to merit the liberal support of congress.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY REPORT.

The secretary of the treasury reports that the receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898, including $64,751,223 received from sale of Pacific railroads amounted to $406,321,338 and its expenditures to $443,368,582. There was collected from customs $149,575,062 and from internal revenue $170,900,941. Our dutiable imports amounted to $324,635,479, a decrease of $58,136,690 over the preceding year, and importations free of duty amounted to $291,- 414,173, a decrease of $31,000,000 the preceding year of $60,924,068. Internal revenue receipts exceeded those of the preceding year by $24,212,067.

The total tax collected on distilled spirits was $82,000,000. Spirits manufactured were 230,322, and on fermented liquors 420,510,421. We exported merchandise during the year amounting to $1,231,482,330, an increase of $180,- 498,774 from the preceding year.

The provisions made for strengthening the resources of the treasury in connection with the war has given increased confidence to the purposes and power of the government to maintain the present standard, and has established more firmly than ever the national credit at home and abroad.

REDEMPTION OF UNITED STATES NOTES.

I renew so much of my recommendation of December, 1897, as follows:

"That when any of the United States notes are presented for redemption in gold, and are redeemed in gold, such notes shall be kept set apart and only paid out in exchange for gold. This is an obvious duty If the holder of the United States note prefers the gold, and gets it from the government he should not receive back from the government a United States note without paying gold in exchange for it. The re son for this is found in the fact that the treasury of the government issues an interest-bearing debt to provide gold for the redemption of United States notes—a non-interest bearing debt. Surely it should not pay out the proceeds except on demand and for gold. If they are put out in any other way they may return again, to be followed by another bond issue to redeem treasury notes, thus increasing debt to redeem a non-interest bearing debt.

TO INCREASE STANDING ARMY.

The importance of legislation for the permanent increase of the army is manifest, and the recommendation of the secretary of war in that purpose has my unqualified approval. There can be no question that this time and probably for some time in the future 100,000 men will be required to meet the requirements of the situation. At all events, whether that number shall be required permanently or not, the power should be given to the president to have that force if in his discretion it should be necessary; and the further discretion should be given him to recruit for the army within the above limit from the inhabitants of Porto Rico with the government of which we are charged.

MUSTERING OUT THE VOLUNTEERS.

It is my purpose to muster out the entire volunteer army as soon as the congress shall provide for the increase of the regular establishment. This will be only an act of justice and will be much appreciated by the brave men who left their homes and employment to help the country in its emergency.

YELLOW FEVER.

In my last annual message I recommended that congress authorize the appointment of a commission for the purpose of making systematic investigations with reference to the cause and prevention of yellow fever. This matter has acquired an increased importance as a result of the military occupation of the island of Cuba and the commercial intercourse between this island and the United States which we have every reason to expect.

I renew the recommendation that under the authority of congress may be given and a suitable appropriation made to provide for a commission of experts to be appointed for the purpose indicated.

A MARITIME POLICY.

The annexation of Hawaii and the changed relations of the United States to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, resulting from the war, compel the prompt adoption of a maritime policy by the United States. There should be established regular and frequent steamship communication, encouraged by the United States, between the Pacific coast and the newly acquired islands. Spain furnished to its colonies, at an annual cost of about $3,- 000,000, steamship lines communicating with the peninsula, and thus the metropolitan of the island of Cuba and the commercial intercourse between this island and the United States which we have every reason to expect.

I repeat my

SANTIAGO SUPREME COURT.

Senor Echeverria, the Supreme Justice, Formally Recognises the United States as the Supreme Power.

SANTIAGO de CUBA, Dec. 3.—The opening of the recently organized supreme court Friday morning was an impressive ceremony. Chief Justice Echeverria and the associate justices, prior to the opening, called at the palace, where they were received by Gen. Leonard Wood, after which, with Gen. Wood and his aides, Mr. Robert Porter and others, they were driven to the supreme court chamber. Here the judges donned their robes of office, long silk gowns trimmed with white lace, and, accompanied by the attorneys practicing in the court, who were similarly dressed, formed in procession and passed into the courtroom, the chief justice escorting Gen. Wood.

The procession having divided into semi-circles, Gen. Wood in a few tactful and forceful words, opened the proceedings, delivering the court, in the name of the United States government, to the chief justice and his associates and demanding from the public implicit obedience to the court's decisions and decrees. His pronouncement was translated into Spanish by Capt. Mendoza.

Chief Justice Echeverria, replying, accepted the judicial offices in the name of justice, formally recognizing the United States as the supreme power, and declaring that the bench would render justice to rich and poor alike.

The proceedings terminated with handshaking, after which Gen. Wood's party was escorted to the entrance by the entire legal body. The first session of the first purely Cuban court was then opened. Among Cubans the event is a matter for general congratulation. The local newspapers consider it the dawn of a new era and express the hope that the judges, who are men of legal acumen and profound research, may be able to show the world that the Cuban population has within itself the elements of good government. The same papers are exceedingly complimentary in their allusions to Gen. Wood, declaring it "quite impossible that any other American could have secured a better grasp of the entire situation."

Col. Valient, who has been appointed chief of the gendarmerie, made a record during the insurrection. He was the first to order his men to lay down their arms after the American occupation, and he showed his willingness in every way to co-operate with the United States authorities. He is exceedingly popular in the province, very energetic, and, though a comparatively young man, widely experienced. His appointment is much applauded.

On Monday 150 men will begin to build the road to Hoguin. The distance, making allowances for necessary deviation, is 75 miles. Gen. Wood is determined to facilitate the means of inter-communication for the towns in this end of the island, and on the same day a hundred men will begin a road to Guantanamo. In this case a distance of 40 miles must be covered. When the funds will allow, a road will be started to Manzanillo. These highways, once completed, will be of inestimable value for military and commercial purposes.

CALLED ON THE PRESIDENT.

Gen. Garcia in Washington and Visits the White House—The Interview Lasted an Hour and a Half.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Gen. Garcia arrived in the city Friday afternoon, and with the other members of the Cuban commission, called upon the president.

Senor Gonzales de Quesada, who presented Gen. Garcia and his associates to the president and acted as interpreter in the conference that followed, said Friday evening, that, as the conference was of a private nature, it manifestly would be improper to make public any of its details. He was satisfied, he said, that the interview was entirely satisfactory to both the members of the Cuban commission and the president.

Friday evening Maj. Gen. Miles, commander of the army, called upon Gen. Garcia at his hotel. The call was unofficial. The two soldiers spent a pleasant half hour together.

The Joint Session Friday.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The joint session of the peace commission Friday lasted two hours. No real progress was made. The Spaniards are awaiting instructions. Spain's proposition for commercial privileges in the West Indies was not settled and was scarcely considered Friday. The Americans have also asked for instructions on certain matters. The Caroline islands questions were not considered. The joint commission adjourned until Saturday.

ALMOST AGREED.

The Work of the Peace Commissioners Will Terminate Soon.

It Will Not Be Necessary, it is Hoped, to Send a Joint Evacuation Commission to Manila as Was Done in the Evacuation of Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—While it is beginning to be recognized here that the chances are against the conclusion of the work of the peace commissioners in Paris in time for the Americans to take the steamer of the 10th for home, the officials are not discouraged at the outlook, knowing that the delay in the proceedings of the commission admits of a reasonable explanation at some points. For instance, there has been some difficulty in reaching an agreement as to the disposition of the public property in the Philippines, including war material, guns and stores. It seems, however, likely now that the commissioners will agree to adopt a plan for the disposition of these claims based upon the procedure that governed in the case of the Spanish properties in Porto Rico It will not be necessary, it is hoped, to send a joint evacuation commission to Manila, as was done in the evacuation of Porto Rico, but simply to adopt the plan laid down by the Porto Rican commission.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The United States and Spanish peace commissioners held private sessions Sunday. Afterward representatives of both sides predicted confidently that the treaty would be signed within a week unless unforeseen complication arise.s

The American commissioners say there is no foundation for the reports circulated in the United States and cabled back that President McKinley has forwarded to the American commissioners instructions to insist unyieldingly upon a coaling base in the Carolines, and that the Spaniards are endeavoring to renew their opposition to a cession of the Philippines.

Both commissions recognize that the latter question is settled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Advices from Judge Day of the Paris peace commission received during Saturday nights cabinet meeting are of a gratifying character and hopeful of the signing of the peace treaty within a reasonable time. Members of the cabinet express satisfaction at the progress being made and say negotiations are progressing smoothly. There are various details, however, concerning which the chairman desires to learn fully of the president's wishes and it was an inquiry of this character which formed the burden of the latest communication from Paris.

WIND STORM AT BALTIMORE.

Fully 800 Houses Were Unroofed—Telegraph, Telephone, Electric Light and Trolley Poles Down.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—The most severe wind and rain storm that has visited Baltimore for many years prevailed Sunday and did thousands of dollars damage. Sixty miles an hour is the wind velocity given out by the weather bureau, the highest for 19 years. Fully 800 houses in the city and vicinity were unroofed, chimneys innumerable were blown down, trees uprooted and poles leveled. Telegraph, telephone, electric light and trolley poles were blown down like so many ten pins. Large sections of the city were in darkness Sunday night and the telegraph and telephone systems are badly wrecked.

During the height of the hurricane a large gas supply tank at the corner of Scott and Ostend streets exploded and created a panic in the neighborhood. No damage was done.

IMPORTS INTO GUATEMALA.

The United States Has Maintained Her Lead—She Practically Controls the Foreign Trade There.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Mr. Beaupre, consul general at Guatemala, in his annual report to the state department, says that the United States has maintained her lead in imports into Guatemala during the past year, and in some important lines the gain has been most gratifying. With Great Britain and Germany, she practically controls the foreign trade of Guatemala. He says that the bulk of United States goods is to good for this market. They should be made to sell cheaply, but should be showy with colors and tinsel. Most of the graniteware comes from Germany, because of the low price; but it is so light and cheap that it can not last long.

This was House's third trial. Maj. Moreland, who was sentenced to three years in the western penitentiary, was recently pardoned after serving 18 months of his sentence.

AMERICAN MEATS IN PRUSSIA

An Amelioration of the German Inspection Laws Prepared for Action in Reichstag—Government Inspection.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The state department, through Ambassador White at Berlin, for some time past has been in correspondence with the German government in an effort to secure an abatement of the many vexatious conditions which surround the importation of American meat products into Germany. At present these products are required to pass under the closest examination, in some cases a dozen times before reaching the consumer, notwithstanding the fact that the goods have been thoroughly tested, as certified by the seal of the American government before leaving the United States. The German inspections begin at the port of entry and are renewed every time the goods change hands. As this involves the breaking open of original packages, even when the latter are of the smallest compass, and taking many samples, and the payment of a fee at each inspection, the aggregate loss of the American meat packer and exporter is very large. For several years the state department at intervals has sought to secure an abatement of the evils of the German practice, which was ostensibly founded upon fear that infected meat might be imported into Germany, notwithstanding the fact that the testimony of all the experts and the statistics went to show that not a single case of trichinosis, the most dreaded of swine disease, could be traced to an American hog. Finally Ambassador White secured the promise of what he regarded as a great amelioration of the Germany inspection laws, and it is this, embodied in the shape of a bill prepared for the action of the reichstag, which is reported to have aroused the opposition of the sausage interest in America. What the department has obtained, for one thing, is substitution of one general governmental inspection for the numerous local and municipal inspections to which American meat products are now subjected, and the special ground of complaint of sausage exporters in the premises is not clearly perceived by the officials here but the state and agricultural departments of course will do their best to protect all American interests.

Secretary Wilson Friday said: "The department of agriculture is laboring incessantly, through the state department, with our foreign representatives, to take care of our exports. No opportunity is missed in watching and protecting the interests of all our exports. We now have an expert in Berlin, Mr. Stiles, who is attached to the United States embassy there, whose duty it is to give us direct and complete information along these lines."

Further than this the secretary would not talk, as the subject is being prosecuted through diplomatic channels.

PROF. ANDREE HEARD FROM.

A Bottle Picked Up By an Engineer in the Ural Mountains—"Give This Letter to the Consul or to the Police."

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 3.—An engine driver named Detke has written to the Swedish-Norwegian minister at St. Peters burg, a letter in which he says he found in the vicinity of the Ural mountains a bottle containing two papers, one of which bore the following message written in French:

"Andre's balloon has crossed the Ural mountains." [Signed,]

"ANDRE."

The paper inscribed in Russian, was as follows:

"Give this letter to the consul or to the police."

The balloon Eagle, with Prof. Asdre and two companions. Strindberg and Frenkel in the car, left Danes island, of the Spitzbergen group, on July 11, 1897, in an attempt to cross the pole. Since then no definite news of the aeronauts has been received beyond a message found attached to a carrier pigeon found by the whaling ship Falken which arrived at Copenhagen on Sept. 2. The message read: "July 13, 12:30 p. m., Lat. 82.2 north, Long. 12.5 east. Good voyage eastward. All well."

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 3.—Wm. Foster shot and probably fatally wounded Miss Myrtle Gorman Friday evening. They had a quarrel, and Foster becoming enraged, drew a revolver and fired two shots, the second taking effect in the girl's abdomen. He escaped and the police are looking for him. Foster is a private of Company C, 8th Pennsylvania regiment, and is home on a furlough. Both he and his victim reside at Green Castle and were here visiting friends Friday.

NEW YORK FIRE.

The Losses Are: Rogers, Peet & Co. Building, $350,000; Home Life Insurance Co., $500,000; Postal Telegraph Building, $100,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Fire broke out in the basement of the building occupied by Rogers, Peet & Co., clothiers, about 9:30 o'clock. The policemen standing within half a block of Warren street heard a loud explosion and a moment later saw a thin line of smoke curling up from the side of the Rogers, Peet & Co. building. At that time the rain was falling in torrents and the wind blew a gale. An alarm was sent in but before the first engine turned into Broadway the Rogers, Peet & Co.'s basement was a roaring furnace with great flames bursting through the floors above and rushing fiercely to the roof. Within ten minutes five alarms had been sent in, bringing engine after engine to the scene.

By 10 o'clock so rapidly and fiercely did the flames make progress that there was nothing but the shell of the Rogers-Peet building left with mountains of flames roaring a hundred feet in the air and encircling the adjoining structure, the Home Life Insurance Co. building. In the blinding rain the fireman worked, stretching the black and slippery lines of hose through the building, fighting the flames from every side. Soon a great wave of fire swept across Warren street and caught the United States Life Insurance Co. building at the west corner of Broadway, numbering 259 and 261. The woodwork on a dozen windows was afire in a moment, and from that time on several streams were played on this building to save it from destruction. When the Warren street wall of the Rogers-Peet building fell at 10.30 o'clock, a dozen firemen were di rectly beneath. Several of the men were struck by bricks; but none was more than slightly injured. Acting Chief Perle fell, but was dragged to safety by some of his men.

Just before 11 o'clock the Home Life Insurance Co.'s building, 16 stories high, at 255 and 257 Broadway, caught fire. The firemen already had their lines in this building up to the seventh floor. They were greatly handicapped by the many stories. Flames had eaten their way through the side wall in many places, and the huge white structure burned fiercely. The elevators made trips up and down until the men running the cages were compelled to flee for their lives and in this way many of the effects of the offices were saved. The three top floors were on fire almost simultaneously from the beginning. The smoke was dense. Flames shot high above the roof and over the massive brown stone postal building on the corner below. All the operators of the postal building and everybody at work in the structure had been ordered out of this building long before.

At 11:15 the postal building of 14 stories caught fire. Chief Bonner, who had charge of the firemen, took the elevator and went to the roof to give personal directions. At this time there were a few operators who had ignored the orders of the fire chief, two or three clerks and a few boys at work in the building in the stifling smoke, and messages were sent until the flames came and all were forced to rush for their lives. The unsent messages were left at the telegraph keys.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning the fire was still burning fiercely in front and, although not observable by the thousands of spectators, was burning still more fiercely and extending lower down in the rear.

An insurance man roughly estimated the losses at about as follows:

Rogers, Peet & Co., building and stock and losses to other tenants in the building, $850,000.

Home Life Insurance Co., building and losses to other tenants, $500,000.

Postal Telegraph Co., building and losses to other tenants, $100,000.

Losses to surrounding buildings, $50,000.

Chief Bonner thought that this estimate, on the basis of a million dollars loss, was about as near correct as it was possible to make.

At 2.30 o'clock Fire Chief Bonner went home saying that the fire would burn itself out in a short time, and that it could not spread, and was practically out.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

His Peculiar Phase of Lunacy Was Developed During a Trial in Court.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to the story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little southern town, and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney. The old fellow was perfectly honest, and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgeling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend, 'just slip in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross-examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high could you build—' I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Expert and Able to Speak Intelligently.

Expert Stephen Little, who has just returned from an extended trip over the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western systems, says: "No one who has not recently examined these properties has any idea of their value and infinite progress. The service on the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western is unexcelled. There is nothing in the East to compare, much less to equal it, and it towers monumentally over any other transportation in any part of the world. The train service of these three corporations is superb. Until recently the Pennsylvania limited, out of New York, to Chicago, was believed to be ideal, but so thorough is the service of the Chicago Great Western, with the buffet cars, with their bulk heads, stained glass windows, and complete electrical equipment, that the Pennsylvania people have ordered their renowned 'Chicago Limited' into the shops that it may be rebuilt, or rather, modernized, after the cars that are in service on the Chicago Great Western. I think the future of this property is very great. The earnings are away ahead of what they were a year ago and the outlook is brighter."

OUR WAR WITH SPAIN.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Notwithstanding the added burdens rendered necessary by the war our people rejoice in a very satisfactory and steadily increasing degree of prosperity, evidenced by the largest volume of business ever recorded. Manufacture has been productive, agricultural pursuits have yielded abundant returns, labor in the fields of industry is better rewarded, revenue legislation passed by the present congress has increased the treasury's receipts to the amount estimated by its authors; the finances of the government have been successfully administered and its credit advanced to the first rank; while its currency has been maintained at the world's highest standard. Military service under a common flag for a worthy common purpose has strengthened the national spirit and served to cement more closely than ever the fraternal bonds between every section of the country. A review of the results of the war with Spain, in other powers, always appropriate, is this year of primary importance in view of the momentous issues which have arisen, demanding in one hour the ultimate decision of the mighty arms and involving far-reaching consequences which will require the earnest attention of the congress.

In my last annual message very full consideration was given to the question of the duty of the government of the United States toward Spain and the Cuban insurrection as being by far the most important problem with which we were then called upon to deal. The considerations advanced and the exposition of the views therein expressed, disclosed my sense of the gravity of the situation, the plain duty, logically unfounded or practically inadmissible, the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, the recognition of the independence of Cuba, its intervention to put an end to war by imposing a rational compromise between the contestants, intervention in favor of one or the other party, and forcible annexation of the island. I concluded it was our duty to exert our friendly relations with Spain that she should be given a reasonable chance to realize her expectations of reform to which she had become irrevocably committed, which in a few weeks previously she had announced comprehensive plnns which it was confidently asserted would be efficacious to remedy the evils so deeply affecting our own country, so injurious to the interests of the entire country as well as to those of Cuba, and so repugnant to the universal sentiment of humanity.

The ensuing month brought little sign of real progress toward the pacification of Cuba. The autonomous administrations set up in the capital and some of the principal cities appeared not to have the favor of the insurgents, to be able to extend their influence to the large extent of territory held by the insurgents while the military arm, obviously unable to cope with said active rebellion, continued many of the most objectionable and offensive policies of the government that had preceded it. No tangible relief was afforded to the reconcentrados of unhappy reconcentrados despite the reiterated professions made in that regard and the amount appropriated by Spain to that end. The offered expedient of a zone of cultivation proved illusory; indeed, no less practical nor more delusive promises of succor could well have been tendered to the exhausted and destitute people, stripped of all means of life, and home dear and bereft in a strange region among nasympathetic strangers hardly less necessitous than themselves.

By the end of December the mortality among them had frightfully increased. Conservative estimates from Spanish sources placed the deaths among these distressed people at over 40 per cent. From the time Gen. Weyler's decree of reconcentration was enforced. With the acquiescence of the Spanish authorities a scheme was adopted for relief by charitable contributions raised in the country and distributed, under the direction of the consul general and the several consuls, by noble and earnest individual effort through the organized agencies of the American Red Cross. Those hands of lives were thus saved, but many thousands more were inaccessible to such forms of aid.

The war continued on the old footing without comprehensive plan, developing only the same spasmodic encounters, barren of strategic result, that had marked the course of the earlier ten years' rebellion—as well as the present insurrection from its start. No alternative save physical exhaustion of either combatant, and therewithal the practical ruin of the island, lay in the future, but for distant no one could venture to conjecture.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE MAINE.

At this juncture, on the 15th of February last, occurred the destruction of the battleship Maine while rightfully lying in the harbor of Havana on a mission of international courtesy and good will—a catastrophe the suspicious nature and horror of which stirred the nation's heart profoundly. It is a striking evidence of the poise and sturdy good sense distinguishing our national character that this shocking blow, falling upon a generous people, already deeply touched by preceding events in Cuba, did not move them to an instant, desperate resolve to tolerate no longer the existence of a condition of danger and disorder at our doors that made possible such a deed, by whomsoever wrought. Yet the instinct of justice prevailed and the nation anxiously awaited the result of the searching investigation at once set on foot. The finding of the naval board of inquiry established that the origin of the explosion was external, by a submarine mine, and only halted, through lack of positive testimony, to fix the responsibility of its authorship.

All these things carried conviction to the most thoughtful, even before the finding of the naval court, that a crisis in our relations with Spain had come and that the instant in hand. So strong was this belief that it needed but a brief executive suggestion to the congress to receive immediate answer to the duty of making ingiant provision for the possible and perhaps speedily probable emergency of war, and the remarkable, almost unique, spectacle was presented of a unanimous vote of both houses on the 9th of March, appropriating fifty million dollars "for the national defense and for each and every purpose connected therewith, to be expended at the discretion of the president." That this act of provision came none to soon was disclosed when the application of the fund was undertakes. Our coasts were practical undefended. Our navy needed large provision for increased ammunition and supplies, and even numbers to cope with any sudden attack from the navy of Spain, which comprised modern vessels of the highest type of consructionial perfection. Our army also required enlargement of men and munitions. It is sufficient to say that the outbreak of war, when it did come, found our nation not unprepared to meet the conflict.

Nor was the apprehension of coming strife confined to our own country. It was felt by the continental powers, which, April 6, through their ambassadors and envoys, addressed to the executive an expression of hope that humanity and moderation might mark the conduct of this government and people, and that further negotiations would lead to an agreement which, while securing the maintenance of peace, would afford all necessary guarantees for the re-establishment of order in Cuba. In responding to that representation, I said I shared the hope the envoys had expressed that peace might be preserved in honor and to terminate the chronic condition of disturbances in Cuba so injurious and menacing to our interests and tranquility, as well as shocking to our sentiments of humanity.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH SPAIN.

Still animated by the hope of a peaceful solution and obeying the dictates of duty, no effort was relaxed to bring about a speedy ending of the Cuban struggle. Negotiations to this object continued actively with the government of Spain, looking to the immediate conclusion of a six months' armistice in Cuba with a view to effect the recognition of her people's right to independence. Besides this, the boon of revocation of the order of reconcentration was asked, so that the sufferers, returning to their homes and aided by United American aid to reconstruct, might be in a way to support themselves, and by orderly resumption of the well nigh destroyed productive energies of the island, contribute to the restoration of its tranquility and well-being.

Negotiations continued for some little time at Madrid, resulting in offers by the Spanish government which could not but be regarded as inadequate.

Grieved and disappointed at this barren outcome of my sincere endeavors to reach a practicable solution, I felt it my duty to remit the whole question to congress and did so in my message of April 11, 1898.

In view of all this, the congress was asked to authorize and empower the president to take measures to secure a full and final termination of hostilities between Spain and the people of Cuba and to secure in the island the establishment of a stable government, capable of maintaining order and observing its international obligations, insuring peace and tranquility, and the security of its citizens as well as our own, and for the accomplishment of those ends to use the military and naval forces of the United States as might be necessary, with added authority to continue generous relief to the starving people of Cuba.

The response of the congress, after nine days of earnest deliberation, during which the almost unanimous sentiment of your body was developed on every point save as to the expediency of declaring the proposed action with a formal recognition of the republic of Cuba as the true and lawful government of that island—a proposition which failed of adoption—the congress, after solemn reference, on the 19th of April, by a vote of 42 to 35 in the senate and 311 to 6 in the house of representatives, passed the memorable joint resolution recognizing the people of Cuba as and of right ought to be, free and independent, and directing the president to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, if necessary, to carry the resolution into effect.

SPANISH MINISTER LEAVES WASHINGTON.

This resolution was approved by the executive on the next day, April 20. A copy was at once communicated to the Spanish minister at this capital, who forthwith asked for his passports and withdrew from Washington, leaving the Spanish interests in the hands of the French ambassador and the Austro-Hungarian minister. Simultaneously with its communication to the Spanish minister, Gen. Woodford, the American minister at Madrid, was charged the confirmation of the text of the joint resolution and directed to communicate it to the government of Spain with the formal demand that it at once relinquish authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its forces therefrom, coupling this demand with announcements of the intentions of this government in the event of refusal, which would be formity with the fourth clause of the resolution, and giving Spain until noon of April 23 to reply.

That demand, although, as above officially shown, officially made known to the Spanish envoy here, was not delivered at Madrid. After the instruction reached Gen. Woodford on the morning of April 21, but before he could present it, the Spanish minister of state had notified him that upon the president's approval of the joint resolution the Madrid government, regarding the act as "equivalent to an evident declaration of war," had ordered the minister in Washington to withdraw, thereby breaking off diplomatic relations between the two countries and ceasing all official communication between their respective representatives. Mr. Woodford thereupon demanded his passports and quitted Madrid the same day.

RELATIONS RUPTURED AND WAR DECLARED.

Spain having thus denied the demand of the United States and initiated that complete form of severance of diplomatic intercourse which attends the outbreak of a state of war, the executive powers authorized by the resolution were at once used by me to meet the enlarged contingency of actual war between sovereign states. On April 22, I proclaimed a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including ports on said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda and the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba; and on the 23d I called for volunteers to execute the purpose of the resolution. By my message of April 25, the congress was informed of the situation and I recommended formal declaration of the existence of a state of war between the United States and Spain. The congress accordingly voted on the same day that it approved April 25, 1898, declaring the existence of such war from and including the 21st day of April, and re-enacted the provision of the resolution of April 20, directing the president to use all the armed forces of the nation to carry that act into effect. Due notification of the existence of war as aforesaid was given April 25 by telegraph to the representatives with which the United States maintain relations, to order that their neutrality might be assured during the war. The various governments responded with proclamations of neutrality, each after its own methods. It is not among the least gratifying incidents of the struggle that the obligations of neutrality were impartially discharged by all, often under delicate and difficult circumstances.

In further fulfillment of international duty, I issued, April 26, a proclamation announcing the treatment proposed to be accorded to vessels and their cargoes as to blockade, contraband, the exercise of the right of search, and immunity of neutral flags and neutral goods under enemy's flag. A similar proclamation was made by the Spanish government in the conduct of hostilities the rules of the declaration of Paris, including abstention from resort to privateering, have constantly been observed by both belligerents, although neither was a party to that declaration.

ENGAGED IN DEADLY CONFLICT.

Our country thus, after an interval of half a century of peace with all nations, found itself engaged in deadly conflict with the power of army. Every nerve was strained to meet the emergency. The response to the initial call for 125,000 volunteers was instant and compliance with the requirement for a second call of May 25 for 75,000 additional volunteers. The ranks of the regular army were increased to the limits provided by the act of April 26 and the total force of the regular army, on the 1st of August, when it reached its maximum, numbered 24,123 men and upprentices. One hundred and three vessels were added to the navy by purchase, one was presented to the government, one leased, and the four vessels of the International Navigation Co., the St. Paul, St. Louis, New York and Paris, were chartered. In addition to these vessels, seven cutters and lighthouse tenders were turned over to the navy department and became temporarily a part of the auxiliary navy.

Four battle ships of the first-class; one battle ship of the second-class; two armored cruisers; six coast defense monitors; one armored ram; 12 protected cruisers; three unprotected cruisers; 18 gunboats; one dynamite cruiser; 11 torpedo boats; 14 coil vessels of the old navy, including monitors. Auxiliary navy: Eleven auxiliary cruisers; 28 converted yachts; 27 converted tugs; 19 converted colliers; 18 revenue cutters; four lighthouse tenders and 19 miscellaneous vessels.

THE COAST DEFENSE.

Much alarm was felt along our entire Atlantic seashore lest some attack might be made by the enemy. Every precaution was taken to prevent possible injury to our great cities lying along the coast. Temporary defenses were provided, drawn from the state militia; infantry and light batteries were drawn from the volunteer force. About 12,000 troops were thus posted and a good signal service was established for observing the approach of an enemy's ships to the coast of the United States, and the life saving and light house services, on which enabled the navy department to have all portions of the Atlantic coast, from Maine to Texas, under observation.

The auxiliary navy was created under the authority of congress, and was officered and manned by the naval militia of the several states. This organization patrolled the coast, and performed the duty of a second arm of defense.

Under the direction of the chief of engineers submarine mines were placed at the most exposed points. Some submarine mines were placed was 1,535 at the principal harbors from Maine to California. Preparations were also made for the planting of mines at certain other harbors, in the event of the appearance of the Spanish fleet these mines were not placed.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

The signal corps was promptly organized, and performed service of the most difficult and important character. Its operations included the rapid extension of electrical connection of all coast fortifications, the establishment of telephonic and telegraphic facilities for the camps at Manila, Santiago and in Porto Rico.

In Cuba direct cable communications were opened over a disconnected route, and on land the headquarters of the commanding officer was kept in telegraphic and telephonic connection with the five division commanders on four different lines of operations.

There was placed in Cuban waters a completely outfitted cable ship, with war cables sufficient for the connection of the fleet, destruction of communications belonging to the enemy and the establishment of our own. Two ocean cables were destroyed under the enemy's batteries at Cienfuegos. On the previous day the landing of Gen. Shafter's corps at Caimanera, within 30 miles of the landing place, cable communications were established and cable station opened for secret open communication with the government at Washington. This service was invaluable to the executive in directing the operations of the army and navy. With a total force of over 1,340 the loss was by disease in camp and field, officers and men included only five.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE WAR.

The national defense fund of $50,000,000 was expended in large part by the army and navy and the objects for which it was used are fully shown by reports of the several secretaries. This fund, being inadequate to the requirements of equipment and for the conduct of the war, the patriotism of the congress promptly supplied the deficiency by the act of June 13, by authorizing a three per cent. popular loan not to exceed $400,000,000, and by levying additional imposts and taxes. Of the authorized loan, $200,000,000 were offered and promptly taken.

It is not within the province of this message to narrate the history of the extraordinary war that followed the Spanish declaration of April 21, but a brief recital of its more salient features is appropriate. The first encounter of the war in point of date took place April 27, when Commodore Dewey, on the blockading squadron, shelled the harbor forts and demolished several new works in construction at Matanzas.

THE BATTLE OF MANILA.

The next engagement was destined to mark a memorable epoch in maritime warfare. The Pacific fleet, under command of Commodore George Dewey, was at the time in the harbor of Hongkong. Upon the colonial proclamation of neutrality being issued and the customary 24 hours' notice being given, it repaired to Mirs bay, near Hongkong, and thence it proceeded to the Philippine islands under telegraphed orders to capture or destroy the formidable Spanish fleet then assembled at Manila.

The memorable battle of Manila followed. The whole Spanish squadron under command of Adm. Montejo was annihilated by the vessels commanded by Admiral Geo. Dewey.

On the evening of the day the government was advised officially of the victory at Manila, and at once inquired of the commander of our fleet what troops would be required. The information was received on the 4th day of May, and the first army expedition sailed May 25, and arrived off Manila June 30. Other expeditions soon followed, the total force consisting of 641 officers and 15,000 men.

Only reluctance to cause needless loss of life and property prevented the early storming and capture of the city, and more with the subsequent development of the military problem speedy and sure means to win a peace, divided victory was not permissible, for no partition of the rights and responsibilities attending the enforcement of just and advantageous peace could be thought of.

THE FIGHTING IN CUBA.

Not until Admiral Cervera took refuge in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, about May 9th, was it practicable to plan a systematic military attack upon the Antillean possessions of Spain.

Several demonstrations occurred on the coasts of Cuba and Porto Rico in preparation for the larger event. On May 13th the North Atlantic squadron bombarded San Juan de Porto Rico. On May 31th Commodore Schley's squadron bombarded the forts guarding the mouth of Santiago harbor. Neither attack was successful, but the one and the other of well-ordered land operations were indispensable to achieve a decisive advantage.

The president next tells of the bombardment of Lieut. Hobson and seven volunteers who sank the Merrimac in the mouth of the harbor at Santiago under a fierce fire from the shore batteries, escaping with their lives by a miracle, but falling into the Spaniard's hands.

By June 7, the cutting of the last Cuban cable isolated the island. Thereafter the invasion was vigorously prosecuted. On June 10, under a heavy protecting fire, a landing of 650 marines from the Oregon, Marblehead and Yankee, was effected in Guantanamo bay, where it had been determined to establish a naval station.

This important and essential port was taken from the enemy after severe fighting by the marines, who were the first organized force of the United States to land in Cuba.

The position so won was held despite desperate attempts to dislodge our forces. By June 16 additional forces were landed and strongly intrenched. On June 22 the advance of the invading army under Maj. Gen. Shafter, landed at Daiquiri, about 15 miles east of Santiago. This was accomplished under great difficulties but with marvelous dispatch. On June 23 the movement against Santiago was begun. On the 24th the first serious engagement took place, in which the 1st and 10th cavalry and the 1st United States volunteer cavalry, Gen. Young's brigade of Gen. Wheeler's division, participated, losing heavily. By nightfall, however, ground within five miles of Santiago was won. The advance was steadily increased. On July 1 a severe battle took place, our forces gaining the outworks of Santiago; on the 2d El Caney and San Juan were taken after a desperate charge, and the investment of the city was completed.

The navy co-operated by shelling the town and the coast forts.

DESTRUCTION OF SPANISH FLEET AT SANTIAGO.

On the day following this brilliant achievement of our land forces, July 3, occurred the decisive naval combat of the war. The Spanish fleet, attempting to leave the harbor, was met by the American squadron under command of Commodore Sampson. In less than three hours all the Spanish ships were destroyed, the two torpedo boats being sunk, and the Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and the Christobal Colon driven ashore. The Spanish admiral and over 1,300 men were taken prisoners, while the enemy's loss of life was deplorably large, some 600 perishing. On our side but one man was killed.

Although our ships were repeatedly struck, not one was seriously injured. Where all so conspicuously distinguished themselves, from the commanders to the gunners and the unnamed heroes in the boiler rooms, each and all contributing toward the achievement of this astounding victory, for which no just encomium nor modern history affords a parallel in the completeness of the event and the marvelous disproportion of casualties, it would be invidious to single out any for special honor. Deserved promotion has rewarded the more conspicuous actors—the nation's profoundest gratitude is due to all of these brave men.

With the catastrophe of Santiago Spain's efforts upon the ocean virtually ceased. A spasmodic effort toward the end of June to send her Mediterranean fleet, under Adm. Camara, to relieve Manila was abandoned, the expedition being recalled after it had passed through the Suez canal.

CAPITULATION OF SANTIAGO AND OCCUPATION OF PORTO RICO.

The capitulation of Santiago followed. The number of Spanish troops surrendered was 22,000, all of whom were subsequently conveyed to Spain at the charge of the United States.

With the fall of Santiago the occupation of Porto Rico became the next strategetic necessity. Gen. Miles had previously been assigned to organize an expedition for that purpose. Fortunately he was already at Santiago, where he had arrived on the 11th of July, with reinforcements for Gen. Shafter's army.

On July 27th he entered Ponce, one of the most important ports in the island, from which he thereafter directed operations for the capture of the island.

With the exception of encounters with the enemy at Guayama, Hormigueros, Coamo and Aibonito, and an attack on the forts at Cape San Juan, there was no serious resistance. The campaign was prosecuted with great vigor, and by the 12th of August much of the island was in our possession and the occupation of the remainder was only a matter of a short time. At most of the points in the island our troops were enthusiastically welcomed. Protestations of loyalty to the flag and gratitude for delivery from Spanish rule met our commanders at every stage.

The total casualties in killed and wounded in the army during the war were as follows: Officers killed, 23; enlisted men killed, 257; total, 280; officers wounded, 113; enlisted men wounded, 1,461; total, 1,577. Of the navy: Killed, 17; wounded, 67; died of wounds, 1; invalided from service, 6; total, 91.

It will be observed that while our navy was engaged in two great battles and in numerous perilous undertakings in the bombardment and more than 50,000 of our troops were transported to distant lands and engaged in assault and siege and battle and many skirmishes in the field, the navy we lost in both arms of the service a total of 1,058 killed and wounded, and in the entire campaign by land and sea we did not lose a gun or a flag or a transport, or a ship of any kind, with the exception of the crew of the Merrimac, not a soldier or sailor was taken prisoner.

On August 7, 46 days from the date of the landing of Gen. Shafter's army in Cuba and 23 days from the surrender of Santiago, the United States troops commenced embarkation for home and our entire force was returned to the United States in surprisingly quick time. They were absent from the United States about two months.

The president then mentions, in terms of cordial appreciation, the timely and useful work of the American National Red Cross, both in relief measures preparatory to the campaigns, in sanitary assistance at several of the camps of concentration.

The annihilation of Adm. Cervera's fleet, followed by the capitulation of Santiago, having brought to the Spanish government a realizing sense of how hopeless the continuance a struggle now become wholly unequal, it made overtures of peace through the French ambassador, who, with the assent of his government, had acted as the friendly representative of Spanish interests during the war.

SPAIN SUES FOR PEACE.

On the 26th of July M. Cambon presented a communication signed by the duke of Almodovar, the Spanish minister of state, inviting the United States to state the terms upon which it would be willing to negotiate peace. On July 30, by a communication addressed to the duke of Almodovar and handed to M. Cambon, the terms of this government were announced, substantially as in the protocol afterwards signed.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the protocol, I issued a proclamation of August 12 suspending hostilities on the part of the United States. The necessary orders to that end were at once given by telegraph. The blockade of the ports of Cuba and San Juan de Porto Rico was at the same raised. On August 18, the muster out of 100,000 volunteers, or as near that number as was found to be practicable, was ordered.

The message then recites the appointment of evacuation commissioners to Cuba and Porto Rico; also of the appointment of Wm. R. Day, late secretary of state, Cushman K. Davis, Wm. P. Frye and Geo. Gray, as members of a commission to proceed to Paris and arrange terms of peace with a commission appointed with Spain.

OUR NEW POSSESSIONS.

I do not discuss at this time the government or the future of the new possessions which will come to us as the result of the war with Spain. Such discussion will be appropriate after the treaty of peace shall be ratified by the senate, and until the congress has legislated otherwise, it will be my duty to continue the military government which have existed since our occupation and give to the people security for life and property, and encouragement under a just and beneficent rule.

As soon as we are in possession of Cuba and have pacified the island, it will be necessary to give aid and direction to its people to form a government for themselves. This should be undertaken at the earliest moment consistent with safety and success. It is to be hoped that our relations with these people shall be of the most friendly character and our commercial relations close and reciprocal. It should be our aim to assist the people in every proper way to build up the waste places of the island, encourage the industry of the people and assist them to form a government which shall be free and independent, and thus realizing the best aspirations of the Cuban people.

Spanish rule must be replaced by a just, benevolent and humane government, created by the people of Cuba, capable of performing all international obligations, and which shall encourage thrift, industry and prosperity, and promote peace and good will among all of the inhabitants, whatever may have been their relations in the past. Every effort to excite race or religious animosity should be sternly discountenanced. Until there is complete tranquility in the island and a stable government inaugurated military occupation will be continued.

OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS.

With the exception of the rupture with Spain, the intercourse of the United States with the great family of nations has been marked with cordiality and the close of the present year finds us at peace with the world, necessarily arise in the complex relations of sovereign states adjusted or presenting no serious obstacle to a just and honorable solution by amicable negotiation.

The Nicaragua canal commission, under the chairmanship of Rr. Adm. John G. Walker, appointed July 24, 1895, under the authority of a provision in the sundry civil act of June 4 of that year, has nearly completed its labors, and the results of its exhaustive inquiry into the proper route, the feasibility, and the cost of construction of an inter-oceanic canal by a Nicaragua route will be laid before you. In the performance of its task the commission received all possible courtesy and assistance from the governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, which thus testified their appreciation of the importance of giving a speedy and practical outcome to the great project. It has for so many years engrossed the attention of the respective countries.

A convention providing for the revival of the late United States and Colombia claims commission and the consideration of claims which were duly presented to the late commission, but not considered because of the expiration of the organization, and for the duration of the commission, was signed May 24, 1897, and has remained unacted upon by the senate. The term therein fixed for effecting the exchange of ratifications has since elapsed, the convention falls unless the time be extended by amendment, which I am endeavoring to bring about, with the friendly concurrence of the Chilian government.

EVENTS IN CHINA.

The United States has not been an indifferent spectator of the extraordinary events transpiring in the Chinese empire, whereby portions of its maritime provinces are passing under the control of various European powers, but the prospect that the vastcommerce which the energy of our citizens and the necessity of our staple productions for Chinese uses has built up in those regions may not be prejudiced through any exclusive treatment by the new occupants has obviated the need of our country becoming an actor in the scene.

Our position among nations, having a large Pacific coast and a constantly expanding direct trade with the farther Orient, gives us the equitable claim to consideration and friendly treatment in those regards, and it will be my aim to subserve our large interests in that quarter by all means appropriate to the constant policy of our government.

ENGLAND'S FRIENDSHIP.

Our relations with Great Britain have continued on the most friendly footing. Assenting to our request, the protection of Americans and their interests in Spanish jurisdiction was assumed by the consular and diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, who fulfilled their delicate and arduous trust with tact and zeal, eliciting high commendation.

It will give me especial satisfaction if I shall be enabled to communicate to you a favorable conclusion of the pending negotiations with great Britain in respect to the Dominion of Canada. It is the earnest wish of this government to remove all sources of discord and irritation in our relations with the neighboring dominion. The trade between the two countries is constantly increasing and it is important to the interests that all reasonable facilities should be granted for its development.

THE ANNEXATION OF HAWAII.

The president tells of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, and states that this was simply but impressively accomplished on August 12 last. Pursuant to the terms of the joint resolution and in exercise of the authority therein conferred upon me, I directed that the civil, judicial and military powers theretofore exercised by the officers of the government of the Republic of Hawaii should continue to shall provide a government for the islands as long as necessary for the present until congress territory, subject to my powers to remove such officers and to fill such vacancies.

The question heretofore pending between Hawaii and Japan, growing out of the alleged mistreatment of Japanese treaty immigrants, were, I am pleased to say, adjusted before the act of transfer by the payment of a reasonable indemnity to the government of Japan.

Under the provisions of the joint resolution, the existing customs relations of the Hawaiian islands with the United States and with other countries, remain unchanged until legislation shall otherwise provide. It would be desirable that all foreign consuls in the Hawaiian islands should receive new exequiturs from this government.

The attention of congress is called to the fact that consular offices having ceased to exist in Hawaii, and being about to cease in other countries coming under the sovereignty of the United States, the provisions for the relief and transportation of destitute American seamen in these countries under our consular regulations will in consequence terminate. It is proper, therefore, that new legislation should be enacted upon this subject, in order to meet the changed conditions.

The message recommends some amendments to our extradition statute. This matter was mentioned in a previous president's message, but not acted upon by congress.

PARIS EXPOSITION.

There is now every prospect that the participation of the United States in the universal exposition to be held in Paris in 1900 will be on a scale commensurate with the advanced position held by our products and industries in the world's chief marts.

The commercial arrangement made with France on May 28, 1898, under the provision of section 3 of the tariff act of 1897, went into effect on June 1 following. It has relieved a portion of our export trade from serious embarrassment. Further negotiations are now pending under Section 4 of the same act, with a view to the increase of trade between the two countries and to their mutual advantage. Negotiations with other governments, provided for by the same act, with Spain, are in progress under both sections of the tariff act. I hope to be able to announce some of the results of these negotiations during the present session of congress.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH GERMANY.

Negotiations to the same end with Germany have been set on foot. Meanwhile no effort has been relaxed to convince the imperial government of the expediency of the restoration of pork products for exportation, and it is trusted that the efficient administration of this measure by the department of agriculture will be accepted as a guarantee of the healthfulness of the food staples we send abroad to countries where their use is large and necessary.

OUR RELATIONS WITH MEXICO.

The president suggests that congress consider the advisability of authorizing and inviting a conference of representatives of the treasury departments of the United States and Mexico to consider the subject of reciprocal legislation of the two countries looking to the protection of the revenues by harmonious measures operating legally on either side of the boundary line.

OUR RELATIONS WITH PERU.

The government of Peru has given the prescribed notification of its intention to abrogate the treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation concluded with this country August 31, 1887. As that treaty contains many important provisions necessary to the maintenance of commerce and good relations, which could only directly be replaced by the negotiation of renewed provisions within the brief twelve months intervening before the treaty terminates, I have invited suggestions by Peru as to the particular provisions it is desired to annul, in the hope of reaching an arrangement whereby the remaining articles may be provisionally saved.

THE CZAR'S PEACE PROPOSAL.

The president calls attention to the proposal of the czar of Russia to reduce the military establishments of the different nations and expresses the hope that the contemplated conference will accomplish such a desirable reform.

OTHER FOREIGN MATTERS.

The claims of owners of American sealing vessels for seizure by Russian cruisers in Behring sea are being pressed to a settlement. The equity of the case justifies the expectation that a measure of reparation will eventually be accorded in harmony with precedent and in the light of friendship.

Immediately upon the outbreak of the war with Spain the Swiss government proposed to the United States and Spain that they should severally reconsider the charge laid on exports to belligerent land, during the continuance of hostilities, the additional articles proposed to the International Red Cross conference of Geneva, October 26, 1868, exempting the effects of the existing Red Cross convention of 1864 to the conduct of naval war. The Swiss proposal was promptly and cordially accepted by us and simultaneously by Spain.

This government feels a keen satisfaction in having thus been enabled to testify to its adherence to the broadest principles of humanity even amidst the clash of war.

CONTROVERSY WITH TURKEY.

The new accreditation of envoy of the United States to the Ottoman Porte carries instructions looking to the disposal of matters in controversy with Turkey for a number of years. He is especially charged to press our claims for indemnity by reason of the destruction of the property of American missionaries resident in that country during the Armenian troubles of 1895, as well as for the recognition of older claims of equal justness.

THE ISSUING OF COMMERCIAL REPORTS.

During the past year the important work of collecting information of practical benefit to American industries and trade through the agency of the diplomatic and consular officers has been steadily advanced, and in order to lay such data, before the public with the least delay, the practice was begun in January, 1898, of issuing the commercial reports from day to day as they are received by the department, which it is believed that for promptitude as well as fullness of information the service thus supplied to our merchants and manufacturers will be found to show sensible improvement and to merit the liberal support of congress.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY REPORT.

The secretary of the treasury reports that the receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898, including $64,751,223 received from sale of Pacific railroads amounted to $405,321,335 and its expenditures to $443,368,382. There was collected from customs $149,575,062 and from internal revenue $170,900,641. Our dutiable imports amounted to $324,635,479, a decrease of $68,136,600 over the preceding year, and importations free of duty amounted to $361,414,175, a decrease from the preceding year of $60,524,068. Internal revenue receipts exceeded those of the preceding year by $24,212,067.

The quantity of distilled spirits was 82,5 6,999, on manufactured tobacco 836,220,522, and on fermented liquors 39,515,421. We exported merchandise during the year amounting to $1,231,482,230, an increase of $180,488,774 from the preceding year.

The provisions made for strengthening the resources of the treasury in connection with the war have been carried into effect with due promptness and power of the government to maintain the present standard, and has established more firmly than ever the national credit at home and abroad.

REDEMPTION OF UNITED STATES NOTES.

I renew so much of my recommendation of December, 1897, as follows:

"That when any of the United States notes are presented for redemption in gold, and are redeemed in gold, such notes shall be kept and set apart and only paid out in exchange for gold. The holder of notes paid out in order of the United States note prefers the gold, and gets it from the government, he should not receive back from the government the United States note without paying gold in exchange for it. There is no for this is made all the more apparent when the government issues an interest-bearing debt to provide gold for the redemption of United States notes—a non-interest bearing debt. Surely it should not pay them out again except on demand and for gold. If they are put out in any other way the banks would have to be followed by another bond issue to redeem them—another interest bearing debt to redeem a non-interest bearing debt.

INCREASE STANDING ARMY.

The importance of legislation for the permanent increase of the army is manifest, and the recommendation of the secretary of war for that purpose has my unqualified approval. There can be no question that at this time and probably for some time in the future 100,000 men will be none too many to meet the necessities of the situation. At all events, whatever number shall be authorized permanently or not, the power should be given to the president to enlist that force if in his discretion it should be necessary; and the further discretion should be given him to recruit for the army within the above limit from the inhabitants of the islands with the government of which we are charged.

MUSTERING OUT THE VOLUNTEERS.

It is my purpose to muster out the regular volunteer army as soon as the congress shall provide for the increase of the regular est blishment. This will be only an act of justice and will be most gratefully received by the brave men who left their homes and employment to help the country in its emergency.

YELLOW FEVER.

In my last annual message I recommended that congress authorize the appointment of a commission for the purpose of making systematic investigations with reference to the cause of yellow fever and the means of its control. This matter has acquired an increased importance as a result of the military occupation of the island of Cuba and the commercial intercourse between that island and the United States which we have every reason to expect.

I renew my recommendation that the authority of congress may be given and a suitable appropriation be made to provide for a commission of experts to be appointed for the purpose indicated.

A MARITIME POLICY.

The annexation of Hawaii and the changed relations of the United States to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, resulting from the war, compel the prompt adoption of a maritime policy by the United States. There should be established regular and frequent steamship communication, encouraged by the United States under the American flag, with the newly acquired islands. Spain furnished to its colonies a mail service of about 62,000 steamship lines communicating with a portion of the world's markets as well as with trade centers of the home government. The United States will find materials to do less. It is our duty to furnish the people of Hawaii with facilities under national control for their export and import trade. I will be conducive to that end. The present session calls for legislation which shall be prompt, durable and liberal.

The president calls attention to the condition of the department of justice building. It is too small for the transaction of increased business. New buildings should be erected.

ENLARGE THE NAVY.

The message recommends the construction of three new battleships, three armored cruisers, three protected cruisers and numerous other vessels.

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

The president urges legislation for the taking of the twelfth census.

The public lands disposed of by the government during the year reached 8,312,863 acres, an increase of 614,780.26 acres over the previous year.

The department of agriculture has been active in the past year. Explorers have been sent to many of the countries of the eastern and western hemispheres for seeds and plants that may be useful to the United States and with the further view of opening up markets for our surplus products.

The weather bureau forecast and observation stations have been extended around the Caribbean sea to give early warning of the approach of hurricanes from the south seas to our fleets and merchant marine.

The president recommended an appropriation for a national celebration in the year 1900 of the anniversary of the founding of the permanent capital of the United States at Washington.

The alien contract law is shown by experience to need some amendment; the rightful application of the eight hour law for the benefit of labor and of the principle of arbitration are suggested for consideration and I commend those subjects to the careful attention of the congress.

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Executive Mansion, December 5, 1898.

SIMPLE fire extinguishers can be produced by anybody at a slight cost. Dissolve 20 pounds of common salt and 10 pounds of salammoniac in 30 liters of water and fill the mixture in quart bottles of thin glass. The extinguishers thus prepared are highly suitable to smother small fires. The bottles which should be securely corked up and sealed, to prevent the contents from evaporating, are thrown into the flames of the starting fire or its immediate vicinity with enough vehemence to cause them to break.

Seven hundred blankets were stolen from the military camp at Lexington.

At Cynthiana a man was fined $25 and sent to jail for 10 days for pointing a pistol.

Will Tutt, colored, found guilty of wife-murder at Mayfield, Ky., and sentenced to death.

David Arnold, of Nicholasville, borrowed $3,000 from the local banks and then left for parts unknown.

Oscar Dunning, 19, of Christian county, committed suicide by hanging. No cause for the act can be assigned.

The Secretary of the Treasury has approved the appointment by Collector Sapp of fourteen storekeepers and gaugers.

A Shelbyville man has returned from the Klondyke, and advises everybody to give that place and Alaska a wide birth.

Citizens of Louisville held the controlling interest in the Birmingham Rolling Mill Company, which assigned at Birmingham.

Four murder trials and thirty divorce cases are among the items on the docket of the Madison Circuit Court, which convened Monday.

Matilda Noland, of Albany, was 100 years old on the 30th ult. She is in good health, and expects to live until the world comes to an end by fire.

Hawesville has a colored man who probably wears the largest shoe in the world. When they are turned out of the shop they measure fifteen and one-half inches in length and six inches in breadth.

Lucy Hatzte, aged 112, of Hendenson, died last week. She was brought from Virginia, and claimed that she remembered her mother going to Yorktown to witness the surrender of Cornwallis. She was then 8 years old.

In the Powell Circuit Court every practicing physician has been indicted for failing to comply with the law requiring them to make a report of all the births. Dr. Williams was tried as a test case and fined five dollars, and the others then marched up and pleaded guilty.

Last Thursday State Treasurer Long sent out checks to the county Superintendents aggregating $273,982, to be disbursed by them to school teachers. He also sent to Treasurers of County School Boords $28,382. This money is to be disbursed to school teachers. The amounts paid out are in full to November 30. The next payment will be issued January 1, 1899.

Some unknown person set fire to the new Mormon church building at Pleasant Hill, three miles south of Vanceburg, totally destroying the building. It was the first Mormon church in the county, and a great many Mormon elders from different parts of the State had gathered, preparatory to dedicating it last Sunday. Threats have been made recently that the church would be destroyed. The Mormons are numerous in that locality, and trouble is feared if the guilty party is found out and an attempt is made to convict him.

Brilliant, the fine combined stallion owned by W. F. Owsley & Son, of Burksville, was killed by Red Squirrel, another fine stallion owned by the Owsleys, at their farm near that place last Monday morning. The stallions got together in a stable lot just after they had been fed in the morning, and a few hours after the handler went into the lot and found Brilliant dead, with his throat terribly mangled. He had been choked to death by Red Squirrel. Brilliant was one of the finest stallions in Southern Kentucky. He was foaled at Versailles in 1884, and his owners paid $1,000 for him. He had taken premiums all over Kentucky.—Richmond Climax.

A novel point in the criminal law of Kentucky is raised in the case of Henderson vs Commonwealth, filed in the Court of Appeals by Attorney Hobbs, of Lexington. The statutes provide that where a man is convicted three times for three offenses of the same act the third sentence to the prison shall be for life. Henderson, who is a negro, was recently sentenced for the third time, and for life, and his attorney claims the sentence is unconstitutional, because it puts his life and liberty in jeopardy more than once for the same offense. Another point raised is whether a pardon by the Governor of the first or second offense bars that conviction from being counted to make the third conviction, necessary for the life sentence. If the Court of Appeals sustains Hobbs' contention several convicts now serving life sentences under the third conviction law will be released.

CROP AND STOCK.

Geo. Cogar bought 8,000,000 lbs. of hemp in Boyle county at 4 cents a pound.

Two or three-year-old turkeys are better for breeding stock than young birds. It is a mistake to sell off all the old stock every fall.

Mules are being held generally for higher prices. A good many are on the market at the county courts in Kentucky, but owners take them back home if bids are low.

It is considered by many that overfeeding fowls on corn is the cause of apoplexy. When chickens fall off the roost at night they are generally affected with this disease.

The Farmers Institute held at Lancaster, one day last week, was a great success. The attendance was large; many subjects of interest to the farmers were discussed. Some of the speakers were from neighboring States.

At Lexington the once mighty Spokane, who defeated Proctor Knott in the Kentucky and American Derbies, was sold for $70. Forester, the sire of Lieber Karl, favorite for last year's Kentucky Derby, brought only $15.

Wm. P. Bedford delivered Friday to Jonas Weil 71 1,580-lb. cattle at $4.85. Ashby and John Leer sold to same 17 head of 1,460-lb. cattle at $4.60. Horace Purdy sold to same 16 head of 1,475-lb. cattle at $4.60.—Bourbon News.

The tobacco barn of James Wilson, who lives about four miles from town, on the Slater place, was destroyed by fire Monday night together with its contents, consisting of about 25,000 pounds of tobacco, a lot of farming implements, &c. His loss is heavy, as he only had $1,800 insurance on barn and contents.—Carrollton News

It is estimated by competent judges that Clark county farmers have marketed, or will market, this season 7,500 fine, fat cattle at prices that will bring $450,000 to $500,000 into the county. Many of these cattle are exported to England. Bourbon is the only county in the State that exceeds Clark in this respect this year, having marketed, it is said, about 10,000 head for over $650,000.—Democrat.

The midwinter sales of thoroughbreds closed at Lexington, Nov. 30. Woodard & Shanklin sold 342 head for $52,525, a general average of $124.34. Adding to this 301 head for $72,370 at the Easton sale, makes a grand total of 643 head of thoroughbreds for $124,895 Of this stock the Breeders' Mutual Benefit Association, got 12 head for a total of $2,455, the association having secured at the sale just closed a total of 79 head for $2,170. Fifty-three of these mares bought for which $1,525 was paid. There are a number of mares of good breeding included in the lot, the association preferring to go deep into the brood mares' ranks rather than miss any that might prove worthless in the future.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These painssre symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Corsicana, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

NOTICE.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1898. NO. 8.

VERY great dissatisfaction exists among the citizens of this county along the Kenton line, on account of being required to pay taxes in Kenton county on large portions of their farms on which they had paid taxes in Boone previous to 1898. The Boone and Kenton county fiscal courts have attempted to establish the line between the two counties, and many claim Boone has lost considerable territory to which she was entitled under an act of the Legislature establishing the line many years ago, and question the right of fiscal courts to locate county lines and signify their intention to test the matter in the courts before they pay any more taxes in Kenton county. The proper location of the Boone and Kenton line ought to be settled, finally, as soon as possible, as contentions involving the line will be continually coming up, and in some instances may be of a very serious nature and result in expensive litigation to either the counties or private individuals.

EDITOR BUCHANAN, of the Trimble Banner is waging a war in the columns of his paper against young couples hying themselves to neighboring States to be united in marriage. His advice to those contemplating matrimony is: "Let the home clerk issue your license and receive the fee and make the record. Let your home preacher perform the ceremony, receive the fee and turn in the certificate of marriage to be recorded in your county. Save toll, ferriage and hotel bills, pay the preacher enough to compensate him for his time and horse-hire, and buy something for your table or house with the rest of the money. If you have only a dollar to pay the preacher take your prospective bride to the parsonage and be married there. Don't have the preacher to hire a horse and buggy, drive five or six miles in the cold, make you happy for life and receive one dollar."

THE Cubans are pleased with the President's message. They consider it the declaration of the policy of the United States toward the island. Rafael Portuondo, the President of the Cuban Assembly, says: "This is most satisfactory to the Cuban aspiration and will have an excellent effect here. It provides beyond further cavil and dispute the honest intentions of the United States toward Cuba. It will quiet many of our more violent associates, who have talked loudly about America and been suspicious of her intentions, and it will enable these, like myself, who have believed and trusted in her, to cooperate more fully with her officials in their work. It is a good message and fully satisfies us."

THAT fellow who made the incendiary speech before the Tobacco Growers' Convention at Lexington, last week, deserved being kicked out of the hall. Those composing the convention were not assembled for the purpose of encouraging unlawful acts as a means of reducing the production of tobacco, and the man who advocated the destruction of plant beds to that end disgraced himself,

As a scheme to increase the population of Vermont, the Governor favored limiting the amount of taxes to be paid by immigrants, and the Lower House of the Legislature passed a bill in accord with his plan, but the Senate, not being willing to discriminate, in the matter of taxes, in favor of new comers, defeated the proposed law, and no new inducements will be held out by that State to attract the home seekers.

PENO VS. PENO.

Joel Peno Sues His Brother, John Peno for Shooting His Cow.

Tried Before Judge Roberts and A Juyy.—Verdict for Defendant.

The suit of Joel Peno against John Peno, for shooting his cow on the 14th day of last October, was put on trial last Wednesday in the Quarterly Court before Judge Roberts and the following jury: W. T. German, Anthony Bentler, James L. Clore, Charles McKim, John M. Henderson and Robert Wilson.

The plaintiff claimed that he was damaged in the sum of $30 by reason of John Peno shooting his cow while she was on his (John Peno's) premises on the above date, alleging that the product of the cow (a two teated animal) at the time she was shot was three gallons of milk per day and six pounds of butter per week.

The defendant pleaded not guilty of shooting the cow, and by way of a counter-claim and set off asked judgment against the plaintiff for sixty-six dollars and some cents as a remuneration for damages the cow had done him by the numerous trespasses she had perpetrated on his enclosure previous to the day she carried a load of shot home, and the schedule of damages as set out in his pleading represented the animated milk emporium to be, in the matter of destructibility, a rival to Uncle Sam's famous dynamite gunboat, Vesuvius, truck patches, grape arbors, shrubbery, fruit trees, &c., belonging to the defendant, having been victims of this voracious animal.

To the counter-claim and set-off the plaintiff's attorney interposed a vigorous protest, and they were defended with equal vigor by the attorney for the defendant, and after a protracted legal argument by the attorneys the court sustained the demurrer to the counter-claim and set-off, thus leaving the jury to decide, only, as to whether John Peno shot the cow, and if he did, to assess the damages Joel Peno had sustained by reason of the unlawful act.

A long array of witnesses were introduced, those for plaintiff, who were acquainted with the unfortunate animal, rating her as the pink of perfection as a milk and butter producer, while those for the defendant represented her as a superanuated member of the bovine family, with a very diminutive market value, and constantly prowling about seeking what she might devour.

As to the shooting, Joel Peno swore that he saw John Peno shoot the cow, and walk back into the house. John swore that he did not shoot the cow, and was corroborated by one of his sons, their theory being that the cow was shot by some hunters whom it was proven were seen on the premises about the time the cow was shot; the defendant and his son each swore that there was no gun in the house that day.

When the testimony was all in the court adjourned the jury until Thursday morning by which time the instructions would be prepared.

The court convened promptly at the appointed hour, and the jury was given the instructions, and after two hours' argument by the attorneys, it retired to its room where the deliberations were protracted until 3:15, when, in solemn procession, the six men filed into court and announced that a verdict had been made which was as follows: "We, the jury, find for the defendant."

The plaintiff ordered a transcript for the purpose of an appeal, and a trial in the circuit court will be next in order. D. E. Castleman for plaintiff; S. W. Tolin for defendant.

RESOLUTIONS

Passed By the Tobacco Growers Convention at Lexington.

The Tobacco Growers Convention held at Lexington, last week, was an enthusiastic assemblage, and the following resolutions that were adopted, show the result of its work:

Resolved, That, owing to the conditions of the tobacco market, it is the sense of this committee that it is advisable for all tobacco growers of this State to hold their tobacco, if possible, until they can sell their crops at a living price.

"Resolved further, That we, the tobacco growers of Kentucky, extend a hearty welcome to all buyers of tobacco."

"Whereas the farmers of Kentucky, who produce one-half of the tobocco of this country, have heard with dismay that a gigantic trust has been formed for the purpose of contolling the price of every pound of tobacco raised in the United States; and whereas prompt and vigorous action is necessary to prevent or dissolve this unlawful and monstrous organization;

"Therefore be it resolved by the tobacco growers in convention assembled:

"First, That an organization of the tobacco farmers in the State of Knetucky is necessary to protect our interests.

"Second, That the organization this day formed be made permanent.

"Third, That a committee of three be appointed to wait upon the Attorney General of the State and the United States District Attorney, and urge them to appropriate action to dissolve or enjoin said trust and that said committee be empowered to employ associate counsel if necessary.

"Fourth resolved, That a committee of five intelligent, conservative and practical tob cco farmers be appointed by the chair as a board of directors, of which the Chairman and Secretary will be ex-officio members, whose duty it will be to draft rules and regulations for the government of an association to be known as The Tobacco Growres League; said board is hereby empowered to elect a treasurer, to employ a clerk, rent an office, and to collect funds by donation or membership fees to defray its expenses.

"Fifth, That said board is empowered to employ a State organizer to visit every county in which tobacco is grown, and to assist if necessary, to organize local leagues in every voting precinct whose members or delegates will compose the County League, whose members or delegates will compose the State League, which will assemble at Lexington or anyother place named by the Chairman."

Why Few Wounded Men Die.

In his report Secretary Alger called attention to the fact that of 1,431 men wounded at Santiago only thirteen afterward died of their wounds. He might have added that the percentage of those who died of wounds in the whole war was only ninety-seven thousandths of 1 per cent., as against 2 2-3 per cent. in the civil war.

Mr. Alger's inference from the fact he quotes is that the surgical attendance was so admirable that the men simply had to get well. There is, however, another reason which has some bearing on this amazing decrease of mortality. One Assistant Surgeon General was asked how he accounted for the decrease. He replied:

"The small number of men killed in the Spanish war can be attributed to the humane character of the modern steel bullet. Experience in this war proved that the bullets could enter and pass through some vital parts, inflicting wounds, but not necessarily causing death as the old large-bore 45-caliber leaden bullet did. Again, these bullets were entirely void of bacteria and left no disease germs in the system after penetrating the body. It has been shown that those who were not killed outright in the field by being shot through the heart or through the brain always recovered when removed to the hospitals and given treatment by the army surgeons."

The statistics of mortality from wounds in the Spanish war are simply an addition to the evidence that has been accumulating for several years that the modern soldier, while far more likely to be wounded than the soldier of a generation ago, is in far less danger of death.—New York World.

CROP AND STOCK.

Tobacco has been selling at 7 cents a pound in Scott county.

The probable area of winter wheat sowed in Kansas is 4,640,000 acres, which is an increase of three per cent over last year's acreage. The combined home values of corn, wheat and oats this year in that State is $735,211 more than that of 1897.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT.

Condition Of Crops And Live Stock Dec. 1, 1898.

Replies Received this Month from 145 Correspondents, Representing 104 Counties.

WHEAT.—The wheat crop as a result of the continued rainfall during the month of October, is divided into two distinct parts—the early and the late—with the separating interval of such extent and clear definition as rarely occur. The early portion of the crop will average a date much in advance of the ordinary, and, as was noted in the November report, was becoming too rank to withstand freezing temperature. The arrival winter conditions have, however, set at rest any apprehension on that score. This part of the crop suffered somewhat from insects early in the season, but has escaped serious injury and is in excellent condition to withstand the severe winter which appears imminent. The late wheat, which was mainly sown after November 1st, comprises the largest half of the acreage. It has been subjected to some severe weather tests of late, and since much of it is either below ground or is just beginning to make its appearance, that it would escape injury would be assuming too large a measure of good fortune.

The condition of the crop averages 94 for the State, which is two points below the November average. On December 1st, 1897, the condition was 85, and for same date of 1896 it was 101. By sections the following percentage of conditions are shown: Western, 82, which is a decline of five points during the month; central, 102, which is an increase of seven points, and southeastern, 100, which is the same as the condition reported November 1st. The falling off in condition in the western section and the increase in the central is due to the fact that in the western section far the largest portion of the acreage is late, while the reverse is true of the central section.

The preliminary estimates of the average on Nov. 1st was 107, as compared with the acreage of 1897. The acreage has increased until now (Dec. 1st) it is estimated at 111, similarly compared. It should be borne in mind, however, that the increase is only in the southeastern district, where an increased percentage would have but a slight effect on total acres. In Pike county the correspondents estimate the increase at 250 per cent. In Magoffin county the increase is 105 per cent., while a number of counties of this section report acreage increase 50 per cent. The average for the southeastern section places the acreage at 158 as compared with acreage of 1897. This is an increase of 11 per cent. since Nov. 1st. In the central section the acreage, as compared with the acreage of '97, is 102, which is a decline of 1 per cent. from the preliminary estimate of Nov. 1st. In the western section the acreage by a similar comparison is 104, also a falling off of 1 per cent. The estimate of number of acres seeded will not be made until the return by the assessors of acres harvested in 1898, which will give the basis.

Many correspondents report as late as Nov. 30th that farmers are not yet through sowing, but it is safe to assume that little or no wheat will be sown after that date.

CORN.—Corn husking has progressed rather slowly and considerable portion of the crop yet remains in the field. While the general tenor of reports is to modify first estimates of damaged or rotten corn, still the estimates show the damage is not inconsiderable. The average estimate of loss is 14 per cent. In the western section the loss is estimated at 12 per cent. In the central at 14, and in the southeastern at 17. A few counties report the crop disappointing as to yield, and the general opinion is that the quality is below average.

The average price of corn for the State December 1st is estimated at 28 cents. The average for the western section is 24 cents; 24 cents for the central, and 33 cents for the southeastern.

In view of the sappy condition of corn a little precaution in regard to seed corn for next year may prove of benefit. A careful selection should be made at once of a sufficient amount of ears which should be placed where they will become thoroughly dried out. Hard freezing while the sap remains will destroy the germ and render it worthless for seed purposes, but after it has become dried it will withstand any temperature which may occur in this latitude without injury.

LIVE STOCK—All classes of live stock show an improvement over condition December 1st, 1897. The following comparisons show per cent. of improvement, each being condition compared with average years: Horses, December 1st, 1897, 95; December 1st, 1898, 98. Cattle, December 1st, 1897, 92; December 1st, 1898, 101. Sheep, December 1st, 1897, 94; December 1st, 1898, 98. Hogs, December 1st, 1897, 92; December 1st, 1898, 98.

CONCLUSION—This issue concludes the monthly crop report until opening of spring. I desire to again thank correspondents for their faithful services during the past year and to express the hope that with the beginning of the work next year I may again have their assistance.

LUCAS MOORE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

The Court of Appeals has decided that the Goebel election law is constitutional. Now what are Mr. Bronston and others going to do about it?

CANDIDATES for the Legislature have announced in many of the counties in the State, and the legislative bee is quietly reposing in the head gear of several gentlemen in this county, and in a few months, at the longest, its presence there will become known to the public, and the RECORDER predicts a lively contest before the Democratic nomination is made.

THE tobacco growers of this county have manifested little or no interest in the movement in this State to organize for the purpose of fighting the trust. They ought to be, and it is believed they are, willing to shoulder their part of the work, and press forward in the effort which many consider will be successful. They will be given an opportunity to show their hands at an early date.

MR. C. J. BRONSTON, of Lexington, is wabbling in and wabbling out. He is fighting the Goebel election law with all his might, and at the same time proclaiming that he is for Judge Pryor for Governor, and Judge Pryor is not only holding an office created by the despised law, but is friendly to it. But Mr. Bronston is one of these fellows who goes to the mountain as soon as he discovers the mountain will not come to him.

THE attempt of the Chicago Street Car Co. to force through the City Council an ordiuance extending their franchise for a period of fifty years, is about to create a rebellion in that city, the Mayor being among the insurgents. Open threats have been made to lynch the Aldermen who vote in favor of the measure, and the following advertisement was published in one of the daily papers, which is a new departure in the matter of protection against the anticipated action of a legislative body:

"WANTED—Ten thousand strong-limbed, fearless men. Apply at the City Council Chamber with ropes on the night the Aldermen attempt to pass the fifty-year franchise robbery. Come prepared to do business."

SENATOR PERKINS, of California, who has considerable personal knowledge of the Philippines, says, that while he knows all about the Philippines he knows little or nothing that is good. He was asked if the trade of the islands was not valuable, and he replied: "In 1895 the exports of the islands amounted to only a little more than $20,000,000. The revenues to Spain in that year only aggregated $13,500,000, even under Spanish taxation and it cost $13,200,000 to collect this revenue, leaving a net balance of $300,000. When you remember that it cost us $8,000,000 last year to provide for 188,000 Indians in this country, you can estimate how much it will cost us to maintain the Philippine with no balance from the islands in our favor."

THE LORD'S "SHUT IN"

Compensations of Sickness as Seen by Dr. Talmage.

A Sermon for Invalids from the Story of Noah and the Ark—God's Designs for Our Betterment.

This discourse of Dr. Talmage, which is helpful to all who find life a struggle, is especially addressed to a class of persons probably never before addressed in a sermon. The text is Genesis vii. 16. "The Lord shut him in."

Cosmogony has no more interesting chapter than the one which speaks of that catastrophe of the ages, the submersion of our world in time of Noah, the first ship carpenter. Many of the nations who never saw a Bible have a flood story — Egyptian flood story, Grecian flood story, of which Deucalion was the Noah; Hawaiian flood story, New Zealand flood story, Chinese flood story, American Indian flood story—all of which accounts agree in the immersion of the continents under universal ruins, and that there was a ship floating with a select few of the human family and with specimens of zoological and ornithological and reptilian worlds. Although I could have wished that these last had been shut out of the ark and drowned.

All of these flood stories represent the ship thus afloat as finally stranded on a mountain-top. Hugh Miller in his "Testimony of the Rocks" thinks that all these flood stories were infirm traditions of the Biblical account, and I believe him. The worst thing about that great freshet was that it struck Noah's Great Eastern from above and beneath. The seas broke the chain of shells and crystal and rolled over the land, and the heavens opened their clouds for falling columns of water which roared and thundered on the roof of the great ship for a month and ten days. There was one door to the ship, but there were three parts to that door, one part for each of the three stories. The Bible account says nothing about parts of the door belonging to two of the stories, and I do not know on which floor Noah and his family voyaged, but my text tells us that the part of the door of that particular floor on which Noah staid was closed after he had entered. "The Lord shut him in." So there are many people now in the world who are as thoroughly shut in, some by sickness, some by old age, some by special duties that will not allow them to go forth, some surrounded by deluges of misfortune and trouble, and for them I often receive messages, and this sermon, which I hope may do good to others, is more especially intended for them. To-day I address the shut in. "The Lord shut him in."

Notice first of all who closed the door so that they could not get out. Noah did not do it, nor his son Shem, nor did Ham, nor did Japheth, nor did either of the four married women who were on shipboard, nor did desperadoes who had scoffed at the idea of peril which Noah had been preaching close that door. They had turned their backs on the ark and had in disgust gone away. I will tell you how it was done. A hand was stretched down from heaven to close that door. It was a divine hand as well as a kind hand. "The Lord shut him in."

The world has no statistics as to the number of invalids. The physicians know something about it, and the apothecaries and the pastors, but who can tell us the number of blind eyes, and deaf ears, and diseased lungs, and congested livers, and jangled nerves, and neuralgic temples, and rheumatic feet, or how many took no food this morning because they had no appetite to eat or digestive organs to assimilate, or have lungs so delicate they cannot go forth when the wind is in the east, or there is a fog rising from the river, or there is a dampness on the ground or pavement because of the frost coming out? It would be easy to count the people who every day go through a street, or the number of passengers carried by a railroad company in a year, or the number of those who cross the ocean in ships. But who can give us the statistics of the great multitudes who are shut in? I call the attention of all such to their superior opportunities of doing good.

Those of us who are well, and can see clearly, and hear distinctly, and partake of food of all sorts, and questions of digestion never occur to us, and we can wade the snowbanks, and take an equinox in one face, and endure the thermometer at zero, and every breath of air is a tonic and a stimulus, and sound sleep meets us within five minutes after our head touches the pillow, do not make so much of an impression when we talk about the consolations of religion. The world says right away: "I guess that man mistakes buoyancy of natural spirits for religion. What does he know about it? He has never been tried." But when one goes out and reports to the world that that morning on his way to business he called to see you and found you, after being kept in your room for two months, cheerful and hopeful, and that you had not one word of complaint and asked all about everybody and rejoiced in the success of your business friends, although your own business had almost come to a standstill through your absence from store or office or shop, and that you sent your love to all your old friends and told them that if you did not meet them again in this world you hoped to meet them in dominions seraphic, with a quiet word of advice from you to the man who carried the message about the importance of his not neglecting his own soul, but through Christ seeking something better than this world could give him—why, all the business men in the counting room say: "Good! Now, that is religion." And the clerks get hold of the story and talk it over, so that the weigher and cooper and hackman, standing on the doorstep, say: "That is splendid! Now, that is what I call religion."

It is a good thing to preach on a Sunday morning, the people assembled in most respectable attire and seated on soft cushions, the preacher standing in neatly upholstered pulpit surrounded by personal friends, and after an inspiring hymn has been sung, and that sermon, if preached in faith, will do good; but the most effective sermon is preached by one seated in dressing gown in an arm-chair into which the invalid has with much care been lifted, the surrounding shelves filled with medicine bottles, some to produce sleep, some for the relief of sudden paroxysm, some for stimulant, some for tonic, some for anodyne and some for febrifuge, the pale preacher quoting promises of the Gospel, telling of the glories of a sympathetic Christ, assuring the one or two or three persons who hear it of the mighty reenforcements of religion. You say that to such a sermon there are only one or two or three hearers. Aye, but the visitor calling at that room, then closing the door softly and going away, tells the story, and the whole neighborhood hears it, and it will take all eternity to measure the grand and uplifting influence of that sermon about God and the soul, though preached to an audience of only one man of one woman. The Lord has ordained all such invalids for a style of usefulness which athletics and men of 200 healthy avoirdupois cannot affect. It was not an enemy that fastened you in that one room or sent you on errinches, the longest journey you have made for many weeks being from bed to sofa and from sofa to looking glass, where you are shocked at the pallor of your own cheek and the pinchedness of your features; then back again from mirror to sofa and sofa to bed, with a long sigh saying: "How good it feels to get back again to my old place on the pillow!" Remember who it is that appointed the day when for the first time in many years you could not go to business and who has kept a record of all the weary days and all the sleepless nights of your exile from the world. O weary man! O feeble woman, it was the Lord who shut you in! Do you remember that some of the noblest and best of men have been prisoners? Ezekiel a prisoner, Jeremiah a prisoner, Paul a prisoner, St. John a prisoner, John Bunyan a prisoner. Though human hate seemed to have all to do with them, really the Lord shut them in.

No doubt, while on that voyage Noah and his three sons and all the four ladies of the antediluvian world often thought of the bright hillsides and the green fields where they had walked and of the homes where they had lived. They had had many years of experiences. Noah was 600 years old at the time of this convulsion of nature. He had seen 600 springtimes, 600 summers, 600 autumns 600 winters. We are not told how old his wife was at this wreck of earth and sky. The Bible tells the age of a great many men, but only once gives a woman's age. At one time it gives Adam's age as 130 years, and Jared's age at 162 years, and Enoch's age as 365 years, and all up and down the Bible it gives the age of men, but does not give the age of women. Why? Because, I suppose, a woman's age is none of our business. But all the men and women that tossed in that oriental craft had lived long enough to remember a great many of the mercies and kindnesses of God, and they could not blot out, and I think they had no disposition to blot out the memory of those brightnessses, though now they were shut in. Neither should the shut in of our time forget the blessings of the past. Have you been blind for ten years? Thank God for the time when you saw as clearly as any of us can see, and let the pageant of all the radiant landscapes and illumined skies which you ever looked upon kindle your rapturous gratitude. I do not see Raphael's "Madonna di San Sisto" in the picture gallery of Dresden, nor Rubens', "Descent from the Cross" at Antwerp, nor Michael Angelo's "Last Judgment" on the ceiling of the vatican, nor Saint Sophia at Constantinople, nor the Parthenon on the Acropolis, nor the Taj Mahal of India. But shall I not thank God that I have seen them? Is it possible that such midnight darkness shall ever blast my vision that I cannot call them up again? Perhaps you are so deaf that you cannot hear the chirp of bird or solo of cantatrice, or even organ in full diapason, though you feel the foundations tremble under its majestic roll, or even the thunderstorm that makes Mount Washington echo. But are you not grateful that once you could hear trill and chant and carol doxology?

Do you forget when in childhood you danced and skipped because you were so full of life you had not patience to walk, and in after years you climbed the mountains of Switzerland, putting your alpenstock high up on glaciers which few others ever dared and jumped long reaches in competition, and after a walk of ten miles you came in jocund as the morning? Oh, you shut-ins! Thank God for a vivid memory of the times when you were free as the chamois on the rocks, as the eagle going straight for the sun. When the rain pounded the roof of the ark, the eight voyagers on that craft did not forget the time when it gayly pattered in a summer shower, and when the door of the ark shut to keep out the tempest they did not forget the time when the door of their home in Armenia was closed to keep out the spring rains which came to fill the cups of lily and honeysuckle and make all the trees of the wood clap their hands.

Again, notice that during that 40 days of storm which rocked that ship on that universal ocean of Noah's time the door which shut the captain of the ship inside the craft kept him from many outside perils. How those wrathful seas would like to have got their wet hands on Noah and pulled him out and sunk him! And do all of you of the great army of the shut-in realize, though you have special temptations where you are now, how much of the outside style of temptation you escape? Do you, the merchant incarcerated in the sickroom, realize that every hour of the day you spend looking out of the window or gazing at the particular figure on the wall paper or listening to the clock's ticks men are being wrecked by the allurements and uncertainties of business life? How many forgeries are committed, how many trust funds are swamped, how many public moneys are being misappropriated, how many bankruptcies suffered? It may be, it is, very uncomfortable for Noah inside the ark, for the apartment is crowded and the air is vitiated with the breathing of so much human and animal life, but it is not half as bad for him as though he were outside the ark. There is not an ox, or a camel, or an antelope, or a sheep inside the ark as hardly off as the proudest king outside. While you are on the pillow or lounge you will make no bad bargains, you will rush into no rash investments, you will avoid the mistakes which thousands of men as good as you are every day making.

Notice also that there was a limit to the shut-in experience of those ancient mariners. I suppose the 40 days of the descending and uprising floods and the 150 days the passengers could go ashore must have seemed to those eight people in the big boat like a small eternity. "Rain, rain, rain!" said the wife of Noah. "Will it never stop?" For 40 mornings they looked out and saw not one patch of blue sky. Floating around amid the peaks of mountains, Shem and Ham and Japheth had to hush the fears of their wives lest they should dash against the projecting rocks. But after awhile it cleared off. Sunshine, glorious sunshine! The ascending mists were folded up into clouds, which instead of darkening the sky only ornamented it. As they looked out of the windows these worn passengers clapped their hands and rejoiced that the storm was over, and I think if God could stop such a storm as that He could stop any storm in your lifetime experience. If He can control a sundurge in mid-sky, He can stop a summer hail that flies in at your window. At the right time He will put the rainbow on the cloud and the deluge of your misfortunes will dry up. I preach the doctrine of limitation, relief and disenthrallment. At just the right time the pain will cease, the bondage will drop, the imprisoned will be liberated, the fires will go out, the body and mind and soul will be free. Patience! An old English proverb referring to long continued invalidism, says: "A creaking gate hangs long on its hinges," and this may be a protracted case of valetudinarianism, but you will have taken the last bitter drop, you will have suffered the last misinterpretation, you will feel the gnawing of the last hunger, you will have fainted the last time from exhaustion, you will have felt the cut of the last lancet, you will have wept under the last loneliness. The last week of the Noachian deluge came, the last day, the last hour, the last moment. The last drop of the rain on the roof ceased, and the dashing of the billows on the side of the ship quieted, and peacefully as a yacht moves out over quiet Lake Cayuga, Como or Lucerne, the ark with its illustrious passengers and important freight glided to its mountain wharfage.

Notice also that on the cessation of the deluge the shut-ins came out, and they built their houses and cultured their gardens and started a new world on the ruins of the old world that had been drowned out. Though Noah lived 350 years after this world-wide accident and no doubt his fellow passengers survived centuries, I warrant they never got over talking about that voyage. Now, I have seen Dore's pictures and many other pictures of the entrance into the ark, two and two, of the human family and the animal creation into that ship which sailed between two worlds, antediluvian world and the postdiluvian world, but I never saw a picture of their coming out, yet their embarkation was no more important than their disembarkation. Many a crew has entered a ship that never landed. Witness the steamer Portland, a short time ago, with 100 souls on board, going down with all its crew and passengers. Witness the line of sunken ships reaching like a submarine cable of anguish across the ocean depths from America to Europe. If any ship might expect complete wreckage, the one Noah commanded might have expected it. But no. Those who embarked disembarked. Over the plank reaching down the side of the ark to the Armenian cliffs on which they had been stranded the procession descended. No other wharf felt so solid or afforded such attractiveness as that height of Ararat when the eight passengers put their feet on it. And no sooner had the last one, the invalided wife of Japheth, been helped down the plank upon the rock than the other apartments of the ship were opened, and such a dash of bird music never filled the air as when the entire orchestra of robin redbreast, and morning lark, and chaffinch, and mocking bird, and house swallow took wing into the bright sky, while the cattle began to low and the sheep to bleat, and the horses to neigh for the pasture, which from the awful submergence had now begun to grow green and aromatic. I tell you plainly nothing interests me more in that tragedy from the first to the last not than the "exit" and the "exeunt," than the fact that the "shut ins" became the "go outs." And I now cheer with this story all the inmates of sickrooms and hospitals, and those prisons where men and women are unjustly endungeoned, and all the thousands who are bounded on the north and south and east and west by floods, by deluges of misfortune and disaster. The ark of your trouble, if it does not land on some earthly height of vindication and rescue, will land on the heights celestial.

HANNA'S TAX TALK.

A pleasant Reminder of the Insanity of Republican Ideas in General.

Mark Hanna's patronizing way of telling the people what he thinks should be done for them is truly amusing. He favors an indirect tax by means of a tariff, because "when the people do not know they are paying a tax they are better satisfied." This is an old principle which has been the gulding star of monarchs and despots for many centuries, but Mark seems to have just made the discovery, and it comports so well with his natural disposition to do mean things in an underhand way that he gushes over it. We advise him, however, not to fool the American people too much, for they have a way of finding things out, and then making it warm for the "fooler." We have known them on such occasions to give the fool-killer employment for quite a length of time, and circumstances might arise that would make life a burden to Mark.

The senator's latest information vouchsafed to a waiting public is to the effect that he "favors putting duties on tea, coffee and other articles which we cannot produce." This is a pleasant reminder for those insane persons who voted the republican ticket at the late election "just as a compliment to President McKinley's management of the war." We are not only to have an indefinite prolongation of the existing war taxes, which are all the more exasperating because they were unnecessary, but we must also pay a tax, "without knowing it," on the few free luxuries that are left to us. While the senator from Ohio is acquiring historical knowledge for the benefit of the country that he has kindly consented to hold up, we advise him to read the account of a certain people who once lived in a town called Boston, who stirred up an awful row about paying a tariff on tea, and threw a lot of the stuff into the sea. There are descendants of these very people now living in the United States, and when Mark lays on his tax that they are not expected to know about they may box his pendant ears and make him bray.—Mississippi Valley Democrat.

The Wool Industry Injured.

While some of our protectionist friends are explaining to the country the success of the Dingley tariff law, and are eloquent in declaring its beauty of adjustment and scientific basis, some others, even of those who helped make the law, are more candid. Thus Mr. S. N. D. North, secretary of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, is quoted by the Bradford (England) Observer as writing the following to a friend in that city: "I trust you are well, but I should be sorry for you all if I thought that the wool manufacture of Bradford was in as unhappy a condition to-day as it is in the United States." Mr. North, as the secretary of the association, an expert tariff authority in woolen schedules, was in Washington to assist Mr. Dingley in making the bill so scientific. And now, after piling protection sky high, it is found that woolen goods are being protected off the backs of the people, and the industry is unhappy. What a shock this will be to Mr. Dingley, who believed that the only curse to the industry was free wool!—Utica Observer.

—Chairman Dingley is perfectly safe in declaring that the war taxes will not be repealed for at least another year. In the first place, government expenses have been greatly increased by the war with Spain, and they are likely to remain heavy for an indefinite period. In the next place, protective duties can no longer be depended on to yield the revenue they formerly did, for imports are declining. In the third place, repeal of the war taxes would cause another enormous deficit, and this drain away the gold reserve, as was the case during the second Cleveland administration. Lastly, no one objects to the war taxes.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser (Rep.).

—President Garfield, it will be remembered, in his early career in congress, defined his position as favoring "that protection which tends to free trade." It looks as if Mr. Dingley had unconsciously got on to this Garfield platform.—Boston Herald.

CZAR REED AGAIN IN SESSION.

FALSE PROPOSITIONS.

Arguments of Goldbug Mouthers Which Are Contradictory of Themselves.

It is certainly amusing to hear a gold standard advocate seriously proclaiming with great emphasis that the free coinage of silver would certainly drive gold out of circulation, eliminating the more than $700,000,000 which the treasury department insists there is gold in the money supply of the country, amounting to about nine dollars of the $24 per capita we are told there is in circulation, and that the effect of this retirement of one-third of the total money in the country would be to reduce the purchasing power or exchange value of the dollars that were left! Ordinary intelligence would reason differently. It would say:

"If 27 dollars, 27 men or 27 teams were required to do a given quantity of work, the withdrawal of one-third of the dollars, men or teams would increase by one-half the amount of work to be done by 18 dollars, men or teams, and to that extent must increase their value as producing forces. If it requires 24 dollars per capita to do the business of the country, and one-third of that money is withdrawn, then the remaining two-thirds must do all the business, and it cannot be that the dollars that do more business will be worth less than the dollars that do less business."

But why should the gold dollars go away? Dollars, like men, go where they are most needed and can earn most, and all the gold, silver and paper money we have is needed to do the business to be done, then the withdrawal of any considerable quantity of either must increase the work and the value of the others, and this will bring back the wanderers, or others to take their places. If there are now too many dollars to do the work to be done, as some gold standard advocates hold, then the withdrawal of a part must help rather than harm the conditions. Another thing seems to be clear: Gold is not the money of trade, the money that is in daily business transactions of the people, and its withdrawal would result in far less injury to business than the withdrawal of either treasury notes or silver certificates, that with silver now do four-fifths of all the business. In support of this proposition the history of the country from 1862 to 1873 furnishes the proof.

Still at the Head.

Russell A. Alger, secretary of war in the cabinet of William McKinley, has given to the people of the United States an official history of the war of '98. It has been edited carefully by Mr. Alger's chief, and aside from its historical matter is a plea for an enlarged standing army, the necessity of which will not be disputed if the authority of the United States is to be maintained completely and satisfactorily in the Antilles and the Philippines. But that official communication which would meet greatest welcome would be the resignation of Russell A. Alger as secretary of war and its acceptance by the president, who ought never have given Alger opportunity to inflict his incompetence upon citizens of the United States who volunteered at the call of his chief to fight their battles. While Russell A. Alger remains secretary of war how is it possible to hope that other than the most desperate of the citizenry of the United States will enlist in its enlarged army? They do not fear the perils of battle, but the perils of Algerism are more than any man ought to be asked by a humane nation to encounter.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Secretary Alger has supplied an issue upon which the democracy can appeal with confidence to the national judgment. By asking for over $166,000,000 for the support of the regular army in time of peace he has raised two questions that touch the heart and the pocket of every American citizen who does not profit by legalized injustice and oppression. These questions are: Shall the United States be more heavily taxed for military purposes than any other country on earth? Shall this unheard-of burden of taxation be carried almost exclusively by people of small means, while the wealth our armaments protect goes free?—N. Y. Journal.

SEX IN BANQUETS.

History Shows That Women Have Seldom Been Welcome Attendants on Formal Feasts.

When the last supper was partaken of by the Lord and his disciples no woman participated, although the great teacher numbered many among his friends. This was in strict accordance with the law of the passover, which forbade women attending their feasts. And the last supper was eaten on the eve of the passover, according to the synotic gospels.

Going further afield into the remote past we find women are not permitted to sit at meat with the philosophers at their Utopian banquets. Socrates improved the opportunity to speak his mind freely concerning Xantippe, for it was on one of these occasions when he made his cynical remark that he married Xantippe in order that her society might inure him to the trials of life. An after-dinner speech that has never been equaled for meanness.

Hawthorne, in describing his attendance at some public banquets in England, has this to say of one given by the lord mayor of London:

"One very pleasant characteristic which I never met with at any other public dinner was the presence of ladies."

He does not tell us what they did or said, but confines himself to the gastronomic features of the banquet. He says:

"There fell to my lot three delectable things—a red mullet, a plate of mushrooms, exquisitely stewed, and part of a ptarmigan."

And then the lord mayor passed the loving cup, and it is easy guessing the delight of Hawthorne at seeing that dignified and ancient custom for the first time.

At the head of civil banquets stands the inaugural entertainment at the Guild hall on November 9, to which the wives and daughters are invited, and at which the lady mayoress presides. A masculine description of this yearly banquet, which is provided for by the government, says that it is the most "vague, aristocratic, unsatisfactory and uncomfortable" of all the public banquets given within the sound of "Bow Bells." Query. Because women are present? Be that so or no, that particular banquet interests all London. At 11 the women retire to the ladies' room and a scene of noise and gormandizing ensues, and it is early next day when the last banqueter departs.

Fraternity, masonic and civil banquets cling to the old idea that woman, being "the lesser man," has no place at their feasts. That argument does not hold good in these days, and is simply begging the question. The women can retort with justice and the truth: "We know why you want us to absent ourselves from your banquet. You desire to smoke freely, drink till you drown your sorrows, and tell risque stories. Well, have these special occasions once a year, but do not ask us to sit in the boxes and galleries, so near and yet so far, that we merely choke and blink and watch you through the incense, wondering why people are always at their worst when feeding!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Cheetul.

The axis, or cheetul, deer of the Indian jungle can claim to be the most ornamental of all the 36 races of deer to be seen gathered together at Woburn. In the early summer, when all the other deer except the wapiti are either shedding their horns or "in the velvet," the axis are in perfection, both of color and antlers. The large herd of this species looks as if carpet out of ivory and red gold in the sunshine and verdure of English scenery. Their horns are almost white, their eyes and muzzles of jet black, their throats white and their backs and sides a brilliant golden tan, spotted with round dots of purest white. It is worth a pilgrimage to Woburn to see these deer alone. They breed constantly, sometimes producing two fawns in the twelvemonth.—London Spectator.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

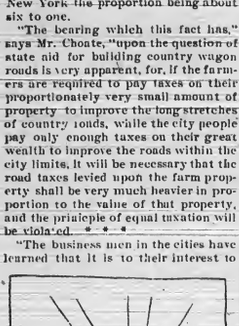
The Principal Points of the Question as Summed Up by the L. A. W. Highway Committee.



That highways should be built and maintained by those who live along them is an ancient doctrine, but an unjust one. Fifty years ago Macaulay described how unfairly the practice operated in the seventeenth century; how toll roads succeeded it and, finally, free turnpikes. But in this country we have only recently begun to see its injustice, and to realize that the relatively sparsely-settled country, with its comparatively small amount of taxable property, cannot equitably shoulder the burden of constructing and maintaining the major part of the highways of the country for the use of everybody.

This subject is treated by A. B. Choate, of the L. A. W. highway committee, in circular No. 31 of the Government Office of Road Inquiry, on "State Aid." "After years of agitation," he says, "and condemnation of the farmers for failure to build good country roads, the agitators have discovered that they have been trying to work an injustice upon the farmers. The mistake was not in demanding good roads, but in asking the farmers to build good country roads without taxing city property to help pay for them."

Equality of taxation is a familiar principle, yet nothing could be more unequal than to tax farm property alone for the construction of roads which ultimately benefit the entire community. In the newer states the taxable property is more nearly equally divided between town and country; but in the older ones the preponderance is greatly in towns and cities, in New York the proportion being about six to one.

"The bearing which this fact has," says Mr. Choate, "upon the question of state aid for building country wagon roads is very apparent, for, if the farmers are required to pay taxes on their proportionately very small amount of property to improve the long stretches of country roads, while the city people pay only enough taxes on their great wealth to improve the roads within the city limits, it will be necessary that the road taxes levied upon the farm property shall be very much heavier in proportion to the value of that property, and the principle of equal taxation will be violated. * * *

"The business men in the cities have learned that it is to their interest to have better country roads. * * * The whole state is interested in the improvement of all the roads, and since the city people are insisting that they shall be improved, it would be fair to levy a tax on city property as well as country property for the improvement of country roads. This is what is meant by state aid. * * * The state does not undertake to conduct the country district schools, but it does say that, if any school district shall run a school of a certain character a certain number of months in the year, it will contribute to the expense. The state aid proposition, then, is an application to building country roads, of the practice now in operation for running country schools."

Summing up the principal points, Mr. Choate finds that:

1. All taxes should be equal.

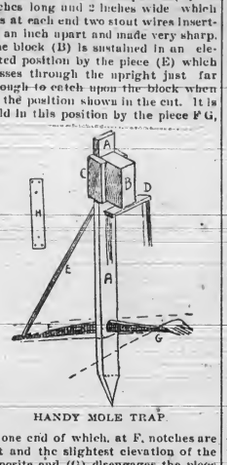
2. Taxing farm property to improve all country roads, and city property to improve city roads only, results in unequal taxation.

3. City people desire to have country roads improved; equal and just taxation requires that they contribute toward the expense.

4. State aid simply requires all benefited property owners to contribute to the expense of road improvements that benefit them.

5. State aid for road building is the same in principle as state aid for public schools.

6. State aid is not a new experiment in road building, but has proved successful in New Jersey, Massachusetts and elsewhere.



White Worms in the Soil.

If plants are troubled with white worms in the soil an easy method of extermination is said to be sulphur matches stuck well down into the soil, sulphur end down. A few drops of carbolic acid in a dipper of water is also good, and lime water in the proportion of a cupful of unslacked lime to pail of water is the old standby. Put a cork in drainage hole of pot and saturate the soil thoroughly with the clear lime water before allowing it to run away.—National Stockman.

A TRAP FOR MOLES.

Description of a Simple Contrivance That is Almost Sure to Prove Effectual.

To make a mole trap as illustrated below, the upright piece A is 1 by 3 inches, 2½ to 3 feet long and sharpened so as to be driven firmly into the ground. It sustains a heavy oak block (B) attached to it by two wooden clamps (C), which allow it to slide up and down with great freedom. Nailed on the block is a crosspiece (D) 10 inches long and 2 inches wide which has at each end two stout wires inserted an inch apart and made very sharp. The block (B) is sustained in an elevated position by the piece (E) which passes through the upright just far enough to catch upon the block when in the position shown in the cut. It is held in this position by the piece F G, in one end of which, at F, notches are cut and the slightest elevation of the opposite end (G) disengages the piece (E) and lets the block fall.

HANDY MOLE TRAP.

The trap is so arranged that when the block drops the pins will enter the mole track, which is undisturbed except by flattening it down with the foot even with the surface, just at the place where the end (G) of the piece (F G) will come. The block is lowered once or twice to make sure the pins will penetrate the soil without difficulty. The trap is set and G just touches the ground where it is trodden down over the mole track. The block must have a fall of 12 to 14 inches. The pieces (E and F G) are each about 15 inches long and made very light. The slightest lifting at G will throw E out of the notch in F and let the block fall. The mole approaches from either direction, and when he raises the ground before him springs the trap and the points will pierce his body.

Experiments have proved that the best distance apart for the pairs of wires is 9 inches, letting them enter the ground about 4½ inches from the piece G. The block (B) is a piece of rough scantling with the piece (C) nailed on. It is a good plan to put another wire into the middle of the piece (D) at each end about 2½ inches from the two outer ones, which will prevent any chance of its failing to catch the mole when sprung. Arsenic mixed with corn meal and dropped into mole runs usually soon destroys the animals. Grains of corn pricked at the heart and a little arsenic put in and raw potatoes with arsenic introduced usually prove effectual also, but require careful preparation.—Farm and Home.

MAKING CIDER VINEGAR.

Plan Now in Vogue is to Run It Over Shavings at a Fairly High Temperature.

The Virginia experiment station has been conducting some experiments to determine if it be feasible for the ordinary farmer to attempt to ferment his own vinegar. As is known by most of our readers, the old way of making cider vinegar is to allow the cider to stand in barrels for from one to two years before using it. The more recent plan is to run it over shavings in a moderate heat. By this means fermentation progresses rapidly and the cider is soon changed into commercial vinegar. In the case of the Virginia experiments the generators used consisted of a 4x8-foot wooden tank filled with beech shavings. The tank was provided with holes near the bottom for the admission of air, and fitted one foot from the top with a wooden disc, perforated to allow the entrance of the cider, which was distributed evenly over it by means of a dumper. The vinegar was drawn from the tank by means of a syphon of glass tubing inserted in a hole near the bottom. The temperature of the fermenting cider in the mass of shavings was controlled by regulating the supply of air, some of the air holes being shut off when the temperature rose too high and opened when it fell too low.

In order to acidify the shavings and start the process of fermentation, the generator was charged with strong vinegar and again with vinegar in which some concentrated grape juice was dissolved. The stock solution, a mixture of weak vinegar and fermented cider, was then run through the generator at the rate of 20 gallons in 24 hours. The resulting product was a very good vinegar, ranging from 4.05 to 5.37 per cent. acid. A mixture of half vinegar and half fresh cider failed to produce good vinegar without being run through the generator twice. Better results were obtained by allowing the vinegar to ferment for some time in casks before running it through the generator. The temperature within the generator two feet from the bottom ranged from 88 to 106 degrees. The higher temperature caused the loss of alcohol and lowered the acidity of the product. Temperature below 90 did not give good results. The best is thought to be about 95.—Farmers' Review.

BURMESE MEDICAL SKILL.

An English Writer Says It is of a Very Low Order with But Few Exceptions.

The Burmese pharmacopoeia as a whole is a subject for laughter and tears; but there is no gainsaying the fact that it includes a few medicines for such diseases as jungle fever and dysentery which, if used by the light of common sense, and not by that of astrological calculation, are productive of excellent results. I have heard an English M. D. speak highly of one simple decoction prepared by a Burmese druggist for use in cases of dysentery. It was, if I remember rightly, made from the thick rind of the mangosteen, and my medical friend had found it sufficiently efficacious to recommend in his own practice. However deplorable may be the character of Burmese internal treatment, we find more than a little skill displayed in dealing with wounds, sores, and other external troubles.

I recall a case in which an English-speaking Burman, much above the average in intelligence and education, roused the ire of his employers by asking for a month's leave to be treated by a Maulmain doctor. The man was suffering from badly inflamed eyes, and the treatment given him for some two months in an out-patient at the Rangoon hospital had produced no beneficial effect. He was offered leave to Calcutta that he might place himself in the competent hands of a specialist there, and earnestly advised not to trust his eyes to a "native quack." He was not to be moved, however, and eventually got his own way. In five weeks he was back at his desk, without his green shade and with his eyes completely cured. It is worth adding that he wore tinted glasses for six months by the advice of that Maulmain drug doctor, who must have been a man of some breadth of mind as well as a clever herbalist. Much skill is often shown in the treatment of the obstinate boils and ulcers to which Europeans are naturally more liable than natives of the country.

I have never known a pure European to seek the advice of a Burmese druggist for such, but the half-caste does so frequently, and a wharf "tally clerk" once told me he would go to nobody else when he suffered thus. It is due to him to say that his confidence was justified by results, even if the drug doctor did begin the diagnosis by inquiring the date and hour of his birth. Maternal influence and nominal fees are no doubt the predisposing causes of the poor half-caste's preference for native advice in the first instance.—Chamber's Journal.

MOUNT LOWE SEARCHLIGHT.

Its Bright Rays Cover a Distance of About One Hundred and Fifty Miles.

All European travelers will recall with pleasure the charming effects obtained at the mountain resorts in Switzerland by turning flashlights of colored rays on near by mountain cascades. At the summit of Mount Lowe, in California, this idea is applied on a scale and under atmospheric conditions never before available. The gigantic searchlight, which was placed on the top of the Liberal Arts building, was one of the well-remembered sights of the world's fair. As its rays were projected up to the northward on the passing steamer or on the merry crowds of the "Midway," it constituted an unfailing source of comment and awakened endless curiosity, but it is doubtful if the inventor of that appliance himself had any idea of the latent possibilities of his instrument under conditions such as obtain at the summit of Mount Lowe.

Until this great searchlight was established in its present location its powers could not be brought out on account of its location so near the general level of the surrounding country. Here, however, it is so located that its rays can be seen for 150 miles out on the ocean, and the most distant mountain peaks can be made visible. The beam of light is so powerful that its full sweep illuminates the peaks of mountains, which are hundreds of miles apart.

It is of 3,000,000-candle power and stands on a wooden base, built in octagon form, which has a diameter of about eight feet. The searchlight itself stands about 11 feet high and its total weight is 6,000 pounds, yet it is so perfectly mounted and balanced that a child can move it in any direction.

The reflecting lens is 3½ inches thick at the edges and one and seventeenth of an inch thick at the center, and weighs about 800 pounds. The metal ring in which the lens is mounted weighs about 700 pounds, the total weight of lens, ring and cover being about 1,500 pounds. This great mirror is mounted at one end of a big drum, the outer end of which is furnished with a door, consisting of a narrow metal rim, in which are fixed a number of plate glass strips five-sixteenths of an inch thick and six inches wide.—Electrical Review.

Curious Discovery in Mashonaland.

Much interest has been aroused among numismatists by news just received from Rhodesia respecting the discovery of ancient Venetian coins in proximity to one of the Mashonaland rivers. The coins in question have, in the meantime, been sent down to Natal, and submitted to expert scrutiny at Pietermaritzburg, with the result that casts of the originals are to be sent on to London. The coins have been declared to be medals struck at Venice between 1570 and 1577 A. D. On one side is the figure of St. Mark, with the inscription: "Thus dukedom be thine, O Christ, and the giver be Thine;" while on the reverse side are three figures, two in a kneeling position, the other upright, with a halo, on which the inscription is: "The Doge Aloys Mocenigo, first magistrate of Venice." —St. James Gazette.

TO USE TIDES.

New York Insurance Adjuster Has Secured a Patent on a Machine to Harness the Waves.

The latest invention for turning the rise and fall of the tide and the power of the waves to practical use has been patented by William Reed, an insurance adjuster of New York city.

Mr. Reed is the father-in-law of Harry B. Smith, the comic opera librettist, and his son-in-law, he says, has as much faith in his invention as he. He talked freely of his invention.

"I was allowed a patent on my appliance by the patent office at Washington on October 18," he said. "By my method the power of the tide in its rise and fall may be utilized at small cost, and by its application the use of coal to manufacture steam and generate electricity will be no longer necessary.

"This power can be utilized at any place where there is a tide. The greater the rise and fall of the tide the greater will be the power secured. A plant by which this power can be secured will cost no more than an ordinary electric plant. There will be no cost to operate it, as the tide will operate it automatically. No engineer will be required. This power, I think, will come in an unbroken chain."

Mr. Reed sold a five per cent. interest in his invention to a business man for $5,000 cash. He is now negotiating with Englishmen capitalists for the sale of a further interest.

The invention has never been given a practical test.

DID NOT DIE WITH HIM.

Believed That Keeley Revealed His Secrets in a Manuscript Prepared Before His Death.

Stockholders of the Keeley Motor company have not abandoned the hope that the secret of the life work of John W. Keeley was not buried with the inventor. B. L. Ackerman, of New York, the president of the company, has gone to Philadelphia in response to a telegram from Mrs. Keeley.

He said: "I have been closely associated with Mr. Keeley in his work for 25 years, and I was among the first to see the value of his plans. As a mechanical engineer I have frequently examined his machines, and I have often discussed his experiments with him. Therefore, to-day I have greater faith than I ever had in the practical value of his discoveries. During the last few years I have learned that Mr. Keeley prepared a manuscript of more than 2,000 pages, which reveals all the secrets discovered by him.

"That manuscript, I understand, was in the possession of Mr. Keeley, and therefore, while it is almost too early to discuss the future of the work, it seems to me that with the information in the manuscript and the knowledge in the possession of Lancaster Thomas and Charles B. Collier, there need be little doubt but that the work of Mr. Keeley will be carried forward.

IN MOVING PICTURES.

Pope Leo XIII. Caught by the Camera in Many Different Attitudes.

Pope Leo XIII. has posed before a moving picture machine. In pictures now he may be seen to walk, bow, take off his hat, smile, drive in his landau through the alleys of the vatican gardens, and give, with his right hand raised, the apostolic benediction.

To the faithful that apostolic benediction reproduced in pictures will have the same effect as if it were conferred directly, personally. The camera was blessed.

In Baltimore and in Washington before Cardinal Gibbons, the apostolic delegate; Mgr. Martinelli; Dr. Garrigan, rector of the University of America; the rector of the Georgetown university, and many other dignitaries of the Roman Catholic church, the moving pictures are to be shown.

They are to be displayed on these two occasions before they are displayed elsewhere. They may not be displayed elsewhere if they are considered adversely there. The exhibitions are to be absolutely under the control of the church in America.

Without a thought of pride;
I part the gathered thoughts of men,
And liberally divide.
I set the soul of Shakespeare free,
To Mitton's thoughts give liberty,
Bid Sidney speak with fiver speech,
Let Spenser rise and Taylor preach.
Though through all hearing swift I glide,
No wisdom doth with me abide."

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. This hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system, which may be easily removed. Address,

W. H. Hensley and Trunnell Passous, both reputable gentlemen, saw the same light in the same locality Thursday night and they could see the sparks flyiug from the embers, but on going to the spot nothing could be seen to show that any wood or timber had been burning. Through the kindness of mate Sidney Pease, we shipped as rouster on the good Str. Lavi J. Workum, (she has got the right name,) last Thursday morning for the city of Vevay, Ind. Nothing unusual happened on the way down, so far as we know, having shoveled coal from the time we left Pete till she arrived at Rising Sun. From there down to Hamilton we were introduced to the balance of the rouster crew, and made the acquaintance of such august personages as Dried Apples, Big Tom, Possum Jaw, Peter Snooks, Martin Luther, Warm Breeches and Big Head Jim. They all treated me very kindly, and at no time did they let me carry more than three fourths of the load that two men had to tote. Arriving at Vevay, the wharf boat was found packed with freight of all kinds to be shipped to Cincinnati. Just as the Workum got loaded in, the Str. Lizzie Bay landed along side of her, and the mate of that crew used such eudearing language to his crew it made us feel like we wanted to trade places with some of them. Hogs, cattle and sheep were the principal freight at this place. After the bawling round in the mud with a lot of hogs for half an hour, Capt. Fenton sounded the gong for our return up the river. Now the troubles of a rouster commenced. The boat landed first on one side of the river, then the other and freight of all kinds was received. At the mouth of Sugar Creek, in a downpour of rain, there were a lot of cattle to be loaded, and the stage plank was as slick as ice. The crew finally got four of the Sugar Creek rangers on the stage but the plank was so slippery they could not stand up, and they fell against the railing, breaking it down and all went tumbling into the river, carrying Peter Snooks with them. Peter came out on a steer's back and had to go to the St. Nicholas for repairs. (The St. Nicholas is where the rousters sleep under the boilers.) At the mouth of Steel's creek was found nothing but rabbits and chickens. One fellow had a tobacco hogshead full of dressed rabbits, which weighed 2,000 pounds. Here John Davy sprained his back and had to go to the St. Nich for repairs. The next sound of the whistle brought the rousters to the front, when they spied what they thought was a circus tent, but no, it was a pile of blackjack with water-proof covering over it. Now "blackjack" is a bale of clover hay, 8 feet long aud 2 ft. in diameter. "What you got?" asked Wallace Grant, as the boat landed in. "10,789 bales of hay," was the answer. It took our breath. We got one bale on the boat and the other fell in the river. "You can pull the guy rope," said the mate. That struck us, for a guy was pulling the rope sure enough. At 3 a. m., in the morning the hay was loaded and the boat on her way to the Queen City, with its cargo of squealing, bawling freight and weary rousters. At Petersburg it looked like the whole shore, for a mile up and down, was covered with whisky barrels and cased goods. Saturday we resigned at this point, and went home to anoint our back with arnica.

Circuit Court.

The December term of the Boone Circuit Court convened Monday before noon, Judge John W. Greene presiding.

It was about eleven o'clock when Judge Greene arrived, in the driving snow storm. He repaired to the court house immediately upon his arrival, and opened court. A very short time was required in which to organize the grand jury, which is composed of the following gentlemen: Edgar Cropper, foreman; Legrand Gaines, A. C. Porter, James E. Duncau, Albert Beemon, Wm. Adams, M. C. Carroll, E. J. Aylor, Wm. Brown, Courtney Waltou, B. C. Bedinger, John P. Utz.

The Court gave the jury a lengthy charge, in which he referred to all the statutory offenses, and impressed the jury with the great responsibility with which it is surrounded, and the duty it owes to the county in looking after the infractions of law and putting under way prosecutions therefor.

Monday afternoon was devoted to the making of preliminary motions in cases pending.

At the close of the motion hour Tuesday morning the Court organized the petit juries for the term, and they are as follows:

Besides the local bar only the following attorneys were present when court opened Monday morning: Tomlin and Curley, of Walton.

J. M. Eddins was excused from jury service on account of deafness, but D W. Newman's rheumatism was not annoying him sufficiently to induce the Court to excuse him.

C Y. Dyas filed J. E. Botts' certificate of honesty, probity, etc., and moved the Court to appoint a committee to examine Mr. Botts with a view to granting him a license to practice law, and the Court appointed Attys. J. C. Clore and B. F. Menifee as said committee, and they accepted the appointment and were sworn according to law.

When Court opened Tuesday morning the number of attorneys had been considerably augmented, the following having arrived: C. Y. Dyas, B. F. Menifee, M. D. Gray, J. C. Clore, O. M. Rogers, and John Wentzel, the latter of Delhio, Ohio.

It is said that Aylor and Story each want to have their trial at this term of the court. This is street talk.

Cases have been set for trial as late in the term as the middle of next week.

Judge Greene announced from the bench that litigants and witnesses must he in the court room when the cases in which they are interested are called. Two or three parties have already come very near having the costs of attachments to pay.

Monday was a very uncomfortable day, and the people were very slow about coming to town, only those who were compelled to come putting in appearance.

W. J. Rice set a grate in the County Clerk's office that is a powerful heater—just the kind of a heat producer that has been needed in that sanctum for quite a while.

Those who own sleighing outfits have been given a chance to enjoy them some already this winter. If the predictions of those who profess to have a foreknowledge of the weather in store for this winter can be relied on, there will be considerable good weather for sleighing during the next few months.

A few days since a lady, who has long been a subscriber to the RECORDER, discontinued her paper because she had been receiving it very irregularly on account of it being taken out of the office and retained by the parties who desired to read it. Now, here is an instance in which the publisher and the subscriber are both wronged by parties who want to appropriate the publisher's labor to their enjoyment without cost to themselves, but at the expense of a patron of the paper. There is no pleasure in calling attention to such things, but the RECORDER does not like to see those who are supporting it imposed on by persons who depend on reading it at the expense and annoyance of patrons. Subscribe for your county paper if you are interested in county affairs and the news of the several neighborhoods.

The hop given at the Boone House, last Friday night, was attended by quite a good crowd of young people, many of whom were from a distance. The dancing was continued until long after midnight when the journey homeward was reluctantly begun by the devotees of terpsichore.

The dwelling house on the farm of John H. Ryle, down on Lick creek, was destroyed by fire about noon, last Friday. The house was occupied by John Wingate, who saved the most of his property. The fire originated in an unoccupied part of the building, and can not be accounted for. The house was not insured, and the loss will be considerable to Mr. Ryle, who is now residing in Florence.

A land mark many years older than the tow of Erlanger was destroyed last Saturday morning when the old Bedinger homestead was burnt to the ground. The house was occupied by Robert Ingram and Theodore Riley, who were fortunate enough to save their household goods. The fire was caused by a defective flue. The house was an old styled brick structure, which was built many, many years ago for Bartlett Graves, by Jesse Kelly, who burnt and laid the brick.

A few days ago a tramp appeared at the residence of W. S. Underhill, who lives about three miles south of town, and was going to enter the house in spite of Mrs. Underhill's protest, her husband not being at home. Her little son aged about 10 years, seeing the persistency of the tramp, ran and got his father's revolver, and leveling it at the stranger, forbade him coming another step towards the room to which he had been denied admittance. The earnest and determined manner of the little boy bluffed the tramp, and he took his departure without further ceremony.

As Legrand Gaines was going home from Burlington, one day last week, he escaped, without injury, in an accident which in nine cases out of ten would have been attended with serious results. He was going down the hill to the second covered bridge on the Petersburg pike, when the front axle of his buggy broke, letting the vehicle drop, the top falling forward until nearly on the horse, which was stopped without trouble, it being, apparently, unaware of what had happened. Mr. Gaines being a corpulent person, it was with considerable trouble that he extricated himself from the perilous position in which he was placed. Having released himself from the wreck it required some time in which to unhook his horse, which exhibited no signs of fright until lead out of the shafts and got a view of the disabled conveyance, and then it was that Mr. G. began to realize the danger to which he was subjected before he succeeded in releasing himself from the wreck.

'Tis true and it is not true—'Tis true that honesty is said to be the best policy; it is not true because honesty is not a policy, 'tis each and every ones duty, first to themselves, then to their fellow creatures. It is preached that you also, should forgive those who do you a wrong, whether they want you to forgive them or not; but the Bible does not teach forgiviness without repentance therefore, the wrong-doer has a duty to do before he can be forgiven. See Luke 17th, 3-4.

BIBLICAL.—"It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of a living God, for our God is a consuming fire."

"He that has small understanding and feareth God is better than one that hath much wisdom and transgresseth the law of the most high." There is no sacrifice for willful sin.

H.

One day last week Ed Chambers started from home to the old farm to help slaughter hogs. In his overcoat pocket he carried a butcher knife nicely sharpened for the occasion. As he was riding quietly along the pike, his horse stumbled and fell violently to the ground. Ed was not hurt much by the fall, but upon gathering himself together and looking at the horse he discovered that the animal was bleeding. Closer examination disclosed the fact that the butcher knife had penetrated the horse's lungs and he was so deeply cut that he died. It is certainly a marvel how Ed. escaped, and equally strange that the horse was thus killed, but it is a fact, nevertheless.—Aurora Independent.

Miss Nannie D. Bristow, teacher of the Grange Hall (dist. 22) school, reports 40 pupils enrolled. This is her second term there, during which time, aided by the ladies of the district, she has secured a first-class International Dictionary; Primary Reading Club, and 22 volumes in a school library. The patrons are interested, and the pupils remarkably diligent and well behaved, consequently the school is prosperous.

A very delightful euchre party was given Monday evening by Mrs. J. M. Lassing in honor of her guests, Misses Willis and Gaines. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Clutterbuck, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hughes, Mrs. M. L. Riddell, Misses Anna Garrison, Katharine Furlong, Katie Smith, Olga Kirkpatrick, and Messrs. E. S. McKim, Roy Clutterbuck, Joel C. Clore and Dr. J. G. Furnish.

Jerry Delph, who lives about 2 miles southeast of town, came very near being rendered houseless last Thursday night. He built a large fire just before retiring, and some time in the night he awoke and found the fire had been communicated to the walls near the fire place. A few buckets of water put an end to what in a few minutes would have been a destructive fire.

The following accidents have happened to Petersburg people in the last few days: Mrs. Ed Pease fell and broke her leg at the ankle; W. F. Hensley fell off of the corn chute and broke his leg; Claud Holton collided with toll-gate while coasting, and got one of his legs badly mashed.

The Eagle, King of All Birds, is noted for its keen sight, clear and distinct vision. So are those persons who use Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve for weak eyes, styes, sore eyes of any kind or granulated lids. Sold by all dealers at 25 cents.

Some fear that the ice that was on the wheat before the snow fell will scald the plant, and thereby injure it very considerably.

In the Sandwich islands there is a spot called the Rock of Refuge. If the criminal reaches this rock before capture he is safe so long as he remains there. Usually his family supply him with food until he is able to make his escape, but he is never allowed to return to his own tribe.

Consul Williams, reporting on the recent exports from the Philippines to the United States, says that during the quarter ended September 30, 1898, the value of the declared exports from that consular district to the United States were: Hemp, 4,000 bales, $57,503.35; hats, 12,803, at 20 cents, $2,960.60; cigars, 34 cases, $1,329.02; grass cloth, $156.41; total, $62,950.37.

Bavaria can boast of 28 pencil factories, which employ 10,000 people, including men, women and children. Together they produce no fewer than 4,000,000 black and 300,000 colored pencils per week. The total output last year reached the enormous quantity of 330,000,000 pencils, in the manufacture of which over 1,800 acres of cedar were used.

The fact has recently been pointed out by a Russian geographer that the shores of Siberia are not flat and water-soaked as represented in the text books, and even on the latest maps, but on the contrary, are high, and in many places even hilly. With the exception of the Obi region and the deltas of a few rivers, Siberia meets the Arctic ocean with a bold and lofty coast line.

German experiments have succeeded in producing an alloy of aluminum, the precise composition of which is not revealed, that is said to be superior in many respects to pure aluminum. The statement is made that this alloy, which goes under the name of vastadium, weighs only one-third as much, bulk for bulk, as aluminum. It is white, can be easily polished and does not tarnish on exposure to the air.

Collectors of antique furniture have struck a bonanza in Havana. In preparing to return to Spain army officers are placing on the market pieces of fine workmanship and ancient pattern, which are being eagerly snapped up by dealers. A correspondent cities a handsome old walnut wardrobe, with three full-length bevel mirrors, valued at $150, which sold for less than $15, and that is simply one of many examples.

Thomas Ryan, whose discovery of the Republic mines in Washington converted a poor man into one of fabulous wealth, says of his find: "Thousands of experts would have passed the ledge as worthless, for the quartz is of such a peculiar appearance that not one miner in a million would have suspected that one ounce of gold could have been found in a ton of the stuff. I didn't at first.

It has been decided by the trustees of the Chicago temple to make that institution a memorial to the life and work of the late Miss Frances Willard. To this end, Willard memorial circles will be formed all over the country, the purpose being to raise sufficient money to enable the temple trustees to buy all the outstanding stock and bonds held by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Building association.

A new experiment has been tried in the New York penitentiary on Blackwell's island, and so far it has proved wonderfully successful. A thousand entertaining and instructive volumes have been added to the library, and the prisoners are allowed to read from 5:30 to 9 p. m. The privilege is eagerly embraced. If a man be rebellious he is deprived of his respite in the reading-room, and as a consequence the number of insubordinates has dropped pretty nearly 75 per cent.

A native mendicant, who has been arrested in Patiala while eating an exhumed corpse of a child, has confessed that he and two comrades had subsisted for a quarter of a century on corpses exhumed from village cemeteries. Cases of actual ghouls who live on the flesh of corpses occur in India now and again. These Patiala horrors are not by any means unique, but it is not often that they are discovered at their hideous feast. Religion is at the root of the practice.

Under the Petersburg hill, at Maestricht, in Belgium, are the most extensive subterranean stone quarries in the world, there being 115,000 passages, each 50 feet high and 12 feet wide, and the whole covering a space 6 miles wide by 12 miles long. They are supposed to have been first worked by the Romans. The galleries, running generally at right angles, and lined by many thousand massive pillars, left by the excavators to support the roof, cross and intersect each other so as to render it exceedingly difficult to the way to find out; and it is dangerous to enter the singular labyrynth without a guide.

REFORMS IN PORTO RICO.

Municipal Officers to Be Elected, and American Policemen to Be Introduced in the Different Towns.

San Juan de Porto Rico, Dec. 8.—Gen. Guy V. Henry, the new governor of the military department of Porto Rico, is beginning energetically. He intends to hold elections of mayors and councilmen in every town, and if necessary to secure fairness, the elections will be under military supervision.

He will appoint a commission to compel the local courts to bring to trial and punish persons now in detention on charges of incendiarism and assault. This measure will be actively pushed. Another proposal of Gen. Henry is to send his representatives to the various mayors to gain their co-operation in his plan for installing several American policemen in every town.

Capt. Lemly, of the 7th artillery, has been detailed to visit the schools, with a view of installing American teachers. Gen. Henry holds the resignations of the members of the insular cabinet to act upon as he sees fit. His policy will be to generalize responsibility among the subordinates and to break up the centralization of power in the cabinet. The 18 army posts have been grouped under three main heads and eventually the same course will be pursued with regard to the mayors of the insignificant towns, thus eliminating unnecessary civil expenditure and fixing the responsibility of these minor officials to the mayor of the nearest important place.

Orders have been issued demanding a thorough patrol of the country and directing the patrol officers to work in conjunction with the mayors to bring offenders to trial. Soldiers are no longer to be allowed to obtain exchange at the custom house at 200 per cent., and measures are to be taken to keep the boisterous men under proper control. Porto Ricans here are favorably impressed by Gen. Henry's activity in these directions.

The German training ship Moltke arrived here Wednesday. Salutes and official visits were promptly exchanged.

EX-BANK PRESIDENT MARSH.

Former Fugitive From Justice Pleads Guilty in Court—Cashier Steele Also Arraigned Before the Bar.

Philadelphia, Dec. 8.—In the United States district court Wednesday, Gideon W. Marsh pleaded guilty and was remanded by Judge Butler for sentence on Tuesday next. Marsh was the fugitive bank president, who returned on the promise that mercy would be shown to him.

Marsh was president of the Keystone national bank, when it failed in 1891. He disappeared in May of that year, forfeiting his bond of $30,000. He remained a fugitive from justice until last month, when he suddenly returned and surrendered. It was believed that Marsh would make some sort of confession, but he did not do so.

William Steele, former cashier of the Chestnut Street national bank, was also arraigned Wednesday. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of aiding and abetting the late William M. Singerly in misusing the bank's funds.

TELEPHONE LINE IN MANILA.

Pittsburgh Firm Receives an Order From a Spanish Company, Anxious for American Progress.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 8.—The Pittsburgh reduction Co. has just received an order for a new telegraph and telephone line to be erected in Manila, in the Philippine islands. The order came through Seale & Co., of Yokohama, the Japanese agents of the company, and is for a Spanish company that is anxious to take advantage of the progressiveness of American rule. It is understood, however, that all future lines will be built and maintained by the government. The line will be built through the city of Manila, proper, and will connect Cavite. The shipment will be made direct to Manila and will be the first from Pittsburgh since Dewey crushed the Spanish power.

OUR TROOPS ARE IN DANGER.

Terrible Sanitary Conditions in Havana Pictured by Officers—The Death Rate in the City is Very High.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Advices received by the war department give a terrible picture of the sanitary conditions in Havana. The death rate is higher for the last month than for any preceding period of 12 months, the months of the war not included.

Emphasis is placed on the danger to the United States troops, who will be landed soon, but it is said that the camps outside of Havana have been well selected. It is feared that any troops quartered in Havana will soon be in great peril.

Daugherty Denies It.

Columbus, O., Dec. 8.—Harry Daugherty says there is nothing in John Mallory's statement that he is a candidate for United States judge in Porto Rico. He says he would not live in Porto Rico for three judgeships. He denied that he is a candidate for anything at present.

Whipping-Post for Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 8.—State Senator Walcott, if re-elected to the Ohio legislature, promises to introduce a whipping-post bill.

The Work of the Peace Commissioners at Paris Completed.

The Spaniards Refuse to Cede the United States a Coaling Station on the Caroline Islands—The Treaty Contains Little Outside of the Protocol.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The treaty has been finished. The Spaniards have declined to grant most of the requests of the United States which were unsettled at the beginning of the session.

They refuse to cede a coaling station in the Caroline islands to the United States.

Judge Day said Thursday: "We have settled all the points on which we can agree. It only remains to engross and sign the treaty. That will be done in two or three days."

The members of the commissions say the treaty will contain little outside the scope of the Washington protocol and the matters directly based thereon, like the provisions for the evacuation of the ceded territories, the transfer of public property therein, and guarantees of the safety of the property and rights of the Spanish citizens remaining there.

The details of the last class of questions covered by the statement which the Americans handed to Senor Montero Rios at the last meeting were considered Thursday, but all the commissioners refuse to divulge the details of the conference.

Several points upon which they were unable to agree were left open for diplomatic negotiations.

The Spaniards refuse to admit that they had failed to respect former treaties guaranteeing religious freedom in the Caroline islands or that there was a necessity for new guarantees.

The conclusion of the work was, according to the commissioners, marked by politeness and all outward evidences of good feeling and relief at the fact that the work was accomplished.

When all the propositions had been discussed, Judge Day, president of the American commission, remarked:

"There seems to be nothing more to do but to engross and sign the treaty."

Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission, acquiesced to this and the Americans bowed themselves out before the Spaniards, according to their custom.

THE DEMANDS OF ENGLAND.

The Britains Insist That the Nicaragua Canal Shall Be Controlled Jointly or By Neither.

London, Dec. 9.—No one would wish to predict a clash between England and the United States over the question of who is going to control the Nicaraguan canal. The Britishers, however, feel strongly that Great Britain has a sound claim to part control of the proposed waterway, and that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is still binding.

A leading official here, who wishes his name unpublished, said Thursday:

"The reports that England is going to waive her rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is directly contrary to the truth. Communications are proceeding between the foreign office and Secretary Hay on the British claims. The point of demand is briefly: 'Control by neither or both.'"

"British traders with Central American ports are pointing out to the foreign office the necessity for preventing the United States having sole control of the canal, and consequently the power to impose a tariff and charges unfavorable to them, which they believe she would do."

The official said further that England would demand that the United States undertake not to fortify the entrances to the canal.

He Wasn't Dead.

Dover, Del., Dec. 9.—Theodore Hopkins went into a cataleptic state, and many of his friends, being positive that he was dead, proceeded to raise money to give him a decent burial. All preparations were being completed when Hopkins sat up in bed and exclaimed to his fleeing friends: "I ain't dead, thank the Lord, but heard every word you said, but couldn't move." The man is still paralyzed from his hips down.

Off for the South Pole.

London, Dec. 9.—The Royal Geographical society promise the most important results from the Anaretic exploring expedition soon to be fitted out. Fifty thousand dollars is already subscribed and more than as much again is expected shortly to be available, some of which will be contributed by Australia and New Zealand. It is pointed out that the south polar region is as unexplored to-day as the Arctic and Africa were 50 years ago.

New York at Havana.

Havana, Dec. 9.—Crowds thronged the wharves Thursday to view the formidable United States cruiser New York, which arrived in the harbor Wednesday. There was no demonstration of any character when the ship came to anchor, though big crowds gathered at the Punta and along the wharves. The visits of courtesy between Capt. Chadwick and Adm. Manterola were exchanged. The American flag which is to be hoisted over Morro Castle, arrived Wednesday night.

POWDER EXPLODES IN A MILL.

Three Men Killed and Eight Injured, Three of Them Probably Fatally—Five Successive Detonations.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 10.—Three men were killed and eight injured, three of them probably fatally, by the explosion of a press mill and four grinding mills in the Hagley yard of the Dupont powder works a few minutes after 10 o'clock Friday.

The dead are: Robert Mellhenny, 45 years old, married, leaves widow and four children; John Wright, 50 years old, married; John Moore, 40 years old, married, leaves widow and five children.

The seriously injured are: Thomas McCann, John Mulhern, Samuel Stewart, Thomas Knox, James McLaughlin and Michael Maloney.

Of the injured men Stewart, McCann and Mulhern are in a serious condition.

Immediately after the explosion the telephones were brought into service and every Wilmington physician who could be communicated with was summoned to render aid to the wounded.

The explosion occurred in the press room of the Hagley, or lower yard works. A car load of powder that was being wheeled into the room was accidentally overturned, and the car wheels running into the loose powder caused a friction that set the powder afire. The explosion quickly followed, all the powder that was in the press room going off in five successive detonations.

The shock of the explosion shattered windows and damaged property in all directions.

THINGS CRITICAL IN CHINA.

America and England Must Act at Once if Their Vast Trade Interests are to Be Preserved There.

Shanghai, Dec. 10.—John Barrett, formerly United States minister to Siam, has returned here after visiting Pekin and the principal Chinese ports. He says the situation in China is of the most critical nature and that Manchuria is no longer Chinese, but Russian territory. He asserts that Newchwang, the chief northern port for the movement of American products is also practically Russian and is liable to be closed any day. The only permanent safeguard to the paramount American and British interests, Mr. Barrett says, is immediate and united action by the interested governments to defend the integrity of the Chinese empire, to enforce reforms in the government, to prevent further cessions of ports and provinces and to insist upon the "open door" policy in all ports of China, including the spheres of influence claimed by Russia, Germany and France. Otherwise, Mr. Barrett contends, the impending partition of the Chinese empire will seriously curtail the field of trade by disastrously affecting American and British influence in Asia.

HE PREFERS ARMY LIFE.

Gen. Wheeler Will Resign as Congressman, and Will Retain His Commission—Feels as Young as a Boy.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Maj. Gen. Wheeler will resign his seat in congress and retain his commission in the army. He said:

"I have considered the matter carefully, and have decided to resign from congress and retain my commission. My reasons for this step are many. It is probable that a bitter opposition would be raised if I attempted to retain both positions, and I prefer to settle the matter in this way. I have not yet decided just when I shall resign, but it will be soon, probably within a few weeks. I prefer the army life to the life of a member of congress. I feel as young as when I was a boy, and, although some little discussion has been raised as to my age, I hope to soon be old enough to make a good soldier. I have been re-elected to the Fifty-sixth congress, but I will not serve one day of my new term.

Private Soldier's Punishment.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 10.—In the city court Friday Judge Thomas M. Norwood, former United States senator from Georgia, fined Private J. E. Moore, of Battery A, 1st Maine artillery $500 or six months on the chain gang, for embracing the wife of a prominent county official on the street while the soldier was intoxicated. Judge Norwood administered a severe lecture and characterized the conduct as that of a heathen.

Steamer Vedamore Rescues 45 Persons From a Wrecked Vessel.

Twenty-Five Others Went Down With the Londonian—Among the Missing Are Twenty-Two Cattlemen—Over Six Hundred Head of Cattle Lost.

Baltimore, Dec. 9.—The Johnston line steamship Vedamore, of Liverpool, Capt. Robert Bartlett, for whose safety fears were beginning to be felt, as she was several days over due, arrived Thursday morning at Pier 31, Locust Point, with 45 shipwrecked mariners which she had picked up at sea. Twenty-five others went down with their ship.

In addition there were 22 cattlemen. Patrick Ward, of Boston, foreman for Swift & Co., who had 263 head of cattle on the vessel, and Daniel Calnan, of Somerville, Mass., foreman for Nelson Morris & Co., who had 392 cattle. The cattlemen in the gangs were: A. Mungel, John J. Neville, of Waterbury, Ct.; Michael Malone, of Fall River; John F. Kenny, John Sloan, Frederick Wallace, Thos. Higgins, Henry Welsh, Andrew Smith, John Martin, John Bibby, George Bell, John Ward, all of Boston; John Potts, of Malden; Henry Boucher and Peter Lamont, of Lawrence; John Jones, of London; H. Panpipian, of Armenia; — Mciklejohn, of Russia, and Wm. Langley, jr., of Hallowell. Daniel Coveney, of Boston, and Thos. McCoy, of Worcester, Mass., also cattle men, are among the missing.

The Londonian left Boston November 15, and on November 23, in a violent gale, her cargo shifted and she almost capsized, she finally resting on her beam ends, with big seas breaking over her. Her luckless crew were helpless to right her, and for two days she drifted about at the mercy of the winds and waves. Assistance came at 5 o'clock on the morning of November 25. The Vedamore hove in sight five miles distant, and as it was still quite dark the Londonian burned signal fires and fired distress rockets. The signals were seen aboard by the officers on the Vedamore bridge and reported to Capt. Bartlett, who gave immediate orders that the Vedamore's course be changed. The Londonian was then to the southward of the Johnston liner. It did not take the Vedamore long to cover the five miles that lay between them, and as soon as she arrived alongside she was signaled to stand by.

"Do you wish to abandon the ship?" was signaled from the Vedamore, as soon as daylight would permit her signals being seen, and Capt. Lee, of the Londonian, signaled back that he wanted the Vedamore to tow his ship. Capt. Bartlett saw at a glance that this was an impossibility and refused to attempt it as it would have endangered his own ship. Capt. Lee then signaled asking that the Vedamore stand by to render assistance. Soon afterward he signaled: "Will abandon ship," and at noon in the teeth of a stiff gale Second Officer Hobbs and a volunteer crew gallantly launched one of the Vedamore's boats and attempted to reach the sinking Londonian. For three hours the sturdy Britons battled with wind and wave in a vain attempt to reach her, but finally were forced to return to their ship. Capt. Bartlett then steamed to windward of the doomed steamer and several other attempts to rescue the Londonian's crew were made fruitlessly.

As it grew too dark to do anything more Capt. Bartlett signaled, "Will stand by you until morning."

The pitcous signal "For God's sake don't leave us," came back in reply. During the night the wind increased, and by morning it was blowing very hard. Then it was that another means of rescue was decided upon. For hours life buoys, with lines attached, were floated toward the Londonian, and at last her crew succeeded in getting one aboard. One of the Vedamore's life boats, improvised as a life car, made a trip successfully and 22 half frozen, exhaustsd men were hauled up over the side of the Vedamore and given every comfort the ship afforded. As the boat was going back to the Londonian wreck a big sea demolished it. The lines were carried away and the communication broken.

Chief Officer Doran of the Vedamore volunteed to launch another life boat to attempt the rescue. The seas were by this time terrific and it was only owing to the splendid manner in which the boat was handled that she lived it out. For two hours the boat's crew struggled at the oars but could not get closer than 50 yards of the wreck. They were at last forced to give it up and return to their ship and in doing so the boat was smashed against the ship's side and lost.

He Jumped Overboard.

New York, Dec. 9.—David Page, 23 years of age, a native of Scotland, a cabin passenger on the State of Nebraska, jumped overboard while the steamer was in midocean and was lost. No cause is known for the suicide.

Life Insurance Suit.

Railroad Trains to Run Slower.

Railroad officials claim that it is very expensive to run their lightning express trains, and are talking about reducing the speed. It is likewise expensive to the health to rush and struggle and compete in business affairs as men do nowadays. The brain, the nerves, the muscles, the whole system gives out. For restoring strength after business worries, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the proper remedy. It is an ideal tonic for the tired, the run-down and the weak.

THE CANAL BILL.

Senator Morgan Hopes to Have Action Taken on the Measure Soon.

It is Thought the House Will Pass the Pension Appropriation Bill Before the Holidays—The Army Reorganization Bill Called.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The course of proceedings in the senate this week will depend upon the disposition that is made of the Nicaragua canal bill. It is Senator Morgan's intention to call up this measure Monday, and he has expressed the hope that he will secure action at the Monday session. Few of his most sanguine co-workers agree with him in this opinion, and the best indication is that unless an agreement can be reached for postponement, several days at least will be consumed in its consideration. The opponents of the measure will meet its supporters with a proposition to defer consideration until after the Christmas holidays, and they will give as their reason for this request the fact that the report of the government commission appointed to investigate the feasibility of the canal has not yet been made, urging the importance of receiving the information which the commission will be able to furnish before acting upon so important a question. If the bill is taken up in earnest it will consume the greater portion of the senate's time until finally disposed of.

Another subject on the calendar is the anti-scalping bill which Senator Cullom has informed the senate he will seek to get up at an early day, but he will meet with opposition if he makes the effort and is not likely to succeed thus early in the session.

The special order for Monday at 2 o'clock is the bill providing for the registry of foreign built ships, but if the Nicaragua bill should be taken up, the registry bill would not be allowed to consume much time. Senator Morrill has given notice of a motion Tuesday to consider the bill providing for the purchase of a site for the United States supreme court, but the proceedings with reference to this measure will be confined to a speech by the Vermont senator.

The urgent army deficiency bill will receive attention early in the week. The committee on appropriations will meet Monday, and it is not believed that more than one meeting on the bill will be necessary.

Senator Allison, chairman of the committee, hopes, therefore, to get the bill before the senate for consideration Tuesday.

It has been prophesied that the army bill would be used as a pretext for discussion of the Spanish war, and the fear of such a course has not entirely subsided.

Beyond the first three days there is no programme mapped out for the house this week. Monday will be devoted, under the rules, to the consideration of business relating to the District of Columbia and on Tuesday the District of Columbia appropriation bill will be taken up. This is in pursuance of the determination of the leaders to give the appropriation bills the right of way whenever one is ready. There is nothing in the district bill this year to attract opposition and unless the unexpected happens the bill ought to pass Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest. The appropriations sub-committee on pensions will commence work on the pension appropriation bill Monday, but it can hardly be read before next week. It is confidently expected, however, that it will be passed before the holidays. It is possible that Chairman Hull, of the military affairs committee, will be able to bring in the army reorganization bill as soon as the district appropriation bill is out of the way. He is exceedingly anxious to get the bill into the house at the earliest possible moment, as he is particularly solicitous that it should pass the house before the holidays. If it should follow the district bill a very interesting debate will be precipitated. The future policy of the government is ordained in the bill for the increase of the standing army, and the whole subject will be opened up. The democrats are divided upon the question of increasing the regular army, but how far the opposition will go in antagonizing the measure it is impossible to forecast. Only last week during the debate on the urgent deficiency bill, Mr. De Armond, of Missouri, one of the leaders, evaded a direct reply when the question was put fairly at him by Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee. If the army reorganization bill does not come up the various committees, under the call, will probably be allowed to clean up business which they have on the calendar.

THE PEACE TREATY SIGNED.

To the American It Was a Happy Ending of the Epilogue of the War; For the Spaniards, a Bitter Tragedy.

PARIS, Dec. 12. The signing of the treaty Saturday night would have afforded a subject for a great historical painting. The group gathered about the table in the stately chamber of the foreign office was impressive in itself, while the fact that the sense of the momentousness of the issues which the act decided was deeply felt by all the participants gave an impressive and solemn tone to the scene.

Around the great mahogany table sat the ten arbiters of the destinies of an old and a young nation. Ranged, standing, behind them were numerous attaches of the American commission.

The jets from the crystal chandeliers above the heads of those present magnified the brilliant green and scarlet of the upholsterings into gaudiness. There was a theatrical contrast between the black-clothed actors and the scenery. To the Americans it was a happy ending of the epilogue of war; for the Spaniards it was plainly a bitter tragedy, none the less painful because long foreseen. They sat silently as though almost crushed, and none could withhold sympathy from Senor Montero Rios, the president of the Spanish commission, who, coming from his bed, was bundled in a great overcoat, though logs were burning in the fireplace near by. The spirits of the two bodies were symbolized by the clothes worn by the members of the commissions for the Americans were attired in evening dress for the dinner given them immediately after the meeting by the Duc de Lonbat, and the Spaniards wore black frock coat.

BAD DISASTER BY WATER.

A Great Water Main in Brooklyn Bursts, Washing Out Foundations of Houses and Doing Other Damage.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—For several days an area of 20 blocks in the 28th ward in Brooklyn was inundated by raging waters, which washed out the foundations of houses, tore down trolley and telephone poles, imprisoned people in their houses and nearly drowned some who were caught by the flood. The damage will reach several hundred thousand dollars; the police think $500,000. The greater water main at Hobart street and Central avenue burst at 5 o'clock in the morning. This main is four feet in diameter, and when the pressure became too great the water shot up eight feet in the air, tearing a hole in the pipe itself seven feet long and a half of its circumference. For the first hour 1,500,000 gallons, it is estimated, rushed through the streets and there was little diminution for three hours. The flood came so suddenly that several persons were caught and three were rescued by life lines.

Every house in the 20 blocks was flooded and a number of them so badly damaged that they will fall if they are not pulled down. Hundreds of others were damaged so badly that it will be a costly matter to repair them. Ten families were homeless Sunday night because the commissioner of buildings would not let them enter their shaky houses.

SAD TRAGEDY IN MICHIGAN.

William Hitchings Kills His Brother-in-Law, His Wife, a Hired Man, and Cuts His Own Throat.

FREESOIL, Mich., Dec. 12.—A man named William Hitchings, a brother-in-law of John Hunt, a farmer who lived about two miles west of this place, killed Mr. Hunt, Mrs. Hunt and their hired man, Thomas Hayward, Friday afternoon and cut his own throat. Hunt and Hayward were in the woods cutting wood and Hitchings splitting it, when the latter struck Hunt with his ax killing him instantly. Hayward started to run but fell and was struck by Hitchings while lying on the ground, also killing him instantly. Hitchings then went to the house and killed Mrs. Hunt by stabbing her in the neck with a jack knife.

After killing Mrs. Hunt Hitchings went upstairs and cut his throat from ear to ear and must have died at once from the way blood was splashed about the room.

M'KINLEY'S TRIP.

Can a Chief Magistrate Leave the Boundaries of His Own Country?

This, However, Would Not Hold Good in This Case Inasmuch as Cuba and Porto Rico Are, or Soon Will Be, Under Our Flag.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A report that the president intends to visit Cuba and Porto Rico at the first favorable opportunity has become known in the state, war and navy departments, and was quickly made the subject of serious speculation among various officials on account of the exceedingly interesting questions it raised. Among other things there was a spontaneous revival of the fiction that the chief executive could not pass the boundaries of the United States without forfeiting his office. It is peculiar how persistent is the notion even among higher officials that some constitutional or statutory restriction confines the executive to American soil, when, as a matter of fact, although none of President McKinley's predecessors have ever left the country during their terms of office, their actions were alone affected by considerations of propriety or precedent which no one could hold to apply in the present instance.

It was generally recognized that the president might naturally wish to make a personal tour of inspection in those islands as soon as he could spare time from pressing public business in Washington, and that no valid objection could stand against such a tour as he was understood to contemplate. It is pointed out, however, that it would be practically impossible for him to spare the time requisite for such an extended voyage as that to Porto Rico before congress adjourns on March 4, which is, fortunately, about the best time of the year to make a short stay in the tropics. During the first six weeks of the new year, in addition to the continuous executive routine business, the social obligations involved in the programmes of public receptions and state dinners would restrict the president closely to Washington, and after next week's southern tour he will hardly find it possible to leave the white house for more than two days at a time before the beginning of lent, in the middle of February. For the ensuing two weeks, with the rush of legislation which marks the closing days of a short session of congress, there will be no leisure for the executive and therefore his pennant could hardly fly in the harbor of Porto Rico before the middle of March.

With Havana only a single night's run for the dispatch boat Dolphin from Tampa, there might be a chance for the president to spend two whole days there in a week's absence from Washington, and remain always in close communication with the executive departments so that if a critical emergency occurred he could be in a railway train speeding toward the capital within 12 hours. No thought is entertained, however, of a presidential trip to Havana before the Spanish flag is hauled down on January 1.

Practical unanimity of opinion prevails among officials that the contemplated visit of the president to Havana has a full warrant as his trip to Porto Rico so long as the American flag flies over Cuba, although a few quibblers may hold that Porto Rico itself is not actually a part of the United States territory until congress has made a declaration to that effect, either in so many words or by ratifying the peace treaty of Paris. This fine point is not seriously raised except to show that Porto Rico and Cuba must be considered identical in view of the fact that they are governed precisely alike—by military officers under the immediate direction of the president as commander-in-chief. The belief is expressed that the president would not care to set foot in Cuba if it were held to be foreign territory, much as he might wish to see the country, for that might be a perilous precedent to establish, but no one appears to controvert the right as well as the advisability of an executive visit to the new American possessions, provided it does not involve too long an enforced absence from Washington.

Gen. Lee and Staff Sail.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 12.—Gen. Lee and staff sailed for Cuba Sunday afternoon on the transport Panama. Crowds of people lined the wharves as the transport passed down the river. As the tug boats cut loose the Siren, taken from the Spanish cruiser Almirante Oquendo after the battle of Santiago, and now on the tug Cambria, screeched the Panama a parting salute. Gen. Lee will remain outside of Havana until January 1, when he will enter the city.

FIFTEEN NEW WAR VESSELS.

Three Monster Men of War, Three Great Cruisers and Nine Other Vessels Recommended by Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The naval committee of the house has practically decided to bring in a bill for the construction of 15 new naval vessels. Also to increase the enlisted force of the navy as recommended by Secretary Long to 20,000 men. The naval committee does not wish to be behind the military committee of the house in carrying out the president's recommendations and it is expected that a bill will soon be ready for the house.

The new construction is for three battle ships of 13,500 tons and great steaming radius; three 12,000 ton armored cruisers; three 6,000 ton armored cruisers, and six protected cruisers of 2,500 tons each, for service in the waters around our insular possessions. These were recommended by the bureau of construction, and while the committee had not finally acted upon the matter the fact that it will do so has been very clearly indicated at the two informal meetings of the committee held this week.

A Car Load of It Reported Lost From Camp Hamilton Hospital Quartermaster Department.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 10.—In settling up accounts a car load or more of government property is reported lost from Camp Hamilton hospital quartermaster department. Nobody seems to know where it is. In issuing supplies for hospital wards it is claimed paper receipts were taken, but one by one blankets and all kinds of property were missed and it was declared they were stolen.

In a farm house, near the hospital, up under the roof, nearly a two-horse wagon load of blankets, guns, buckets and clothing have been found. Lost and missing property is worth over $5,000.

FLAT HOUSE FIRE

Four Persons Known to Be Dead and Several Others Reported Missing.

The House Was Occupied by Five Families, and a Boys' Club Had Rooms in the Basement—Supposed the Boys Accidentally Started It.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—By a fierce fire which occurred Sunday night in a flat house at No. 134 Prospect place, Brooklyn, four persons met death and the firemen were still searching the ruins in fear of finding more bodies before morning.

The house was occupied by five families, and a boys' club had a room in the basement. It is supposed that in some way the boys accidentally set the place on fire, as the flames were at first discovered coming from the basement. The dead are:

S. L. Robertson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Noblett.

Thomas Winne.

Unidentified woman, supposed to be the mother-in-law of Joseph Noblett, of Brooklyn.

At a late hour it was reported that six persons were killed and six are missing.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Noblett and that of Mrs. Mary Stedhorn, the mother-in-law of Joseph Noblett, were found by firemen on the fourth floor of the house after the flames had been extinguished. Noblett's body was hanging across the window sill, burned almost beyond recognition.

At 1 o'clock Monday morning six persons were reported missing, two of whom at that hour were reported dead. The supposed dead are:

Joseph Noblett and his wife.

The missing are:

A. Frank and wife and brother and child.

At 1:30 the police said that the bodies of Joseph Noblett and wife had been found.

GEN. CALIXTO GARCIA DEAD.

The Distinguished Cuban Warrior and Leader Died of Pneumonia in Washington Sunday Morning.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Gen. Calixto Garcia, the distinguished Cuban warrior and leader and the head of the commission elected by the Cuban assembly to visit this country, died here Sunday morning shortly after 10 o'clock at the Hotel Raleigh, where the Cuban commission has had its headquarters. The sudden change from the warm climate of Cuba with the hardships he had there endured to the wintery weather of New York and Washington is responsible for the pneumonia which resulted in his death. He contracted a slight cold in New York, which did not assume an alarming stage until the early part of last week. On Tuesday night Gen. Garcia, in company with two other members of the commission, attended a dinner given in his honor by Gen. Miles, and it was a result of the exposure that night which culminated in his death.

During the 12 hours or more preceding dissolution Gen. Garcia was unconscious most of the time. At intervals he recognized one or more of those about him. In his lying moments, as all through his busy and active life, his thoughts were for his beloved country and its people, and among his last words were ration.. mutterings, in which he gave orders to his son, who is on his staff, for the battle which he supposed was to occur Monday and in which he understood there were only 400 Spaniards to combat. Just before he died he embraced his son. Rev. Father Magee, of St. Patrick's church, was called in during the day and was with Gen. Garcia until the end, administering the last rites of the Catholic church.

Gen. Garcia left a large family, only one of whom, Justo, a captain on his staff, was with him when he died. His widow and Mercedes, a daughter, 17 years of age, are at Thomasville, Ga., where the girl is quite ill; Mario, a son, 19 years of age, is with the mother at Thomasville; and Col. Carlos Garcia, another son, is in Cuba. A daughter Leonora, who married an American, is now living in Paris. Gen. Garcia's mother is still alive and resides in Havana.

Letters of condolence were received from President McKinley, Secretary Hay, Gen. Miles and Senator Foraker. Secretaries Hay, Alger and Postmaster General Smith left their cards, as also did Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn and Gens. Miles and Gilmore.

Dwelling and Baby Burned.

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 12.—The 18-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. King, of Madison township, while alone, burned to death. Its clothing caught fire from an open grate. The house and contents were also burned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The following Ohio postmasters were appointed Saturday: Glasgow, Columbiana county, James E. Davidson; Middle Fork, Hocking county, S. P. Thompson; Rosemont, Mahoning county, Henry E. Noble.

Fire at Munfordville.

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., Dec. 12.—The storehouse, residence and entire stock of goods of J. W. Woodson, grocer, burned Sunday morning. Loss, $2,500. No insurance, except $1,000 on building.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—SENATE—When the senate convened Monday to begin the closing session of the fifty-fifth congress, the chamber presented a notable and beautiful appearance. By 11 o'clock the public and private galleries were filled almost to their capacity with a distinguished assemblage, including many ladies in brilliant attire. On the floor of the senate the display of flowers was unusually beautiful even for the opening day of a session of congress. The odor of the flowers filled the chambers. The reading of the president's message, which occupied two hours and eighteen minutes, was received with very careful attention for an hour, but after that the senators drifted to the cloak rooms or to the committee rooms where they could peruse the message at their leisure in the printed copies which had been furnished them. The senate adjourned at 3:30.

HOUSE—Speaker Reed received a warm welcome from both sides of the house when he ascended the rostrum to call the house to order; but perhaps the greatest personal ovation to any member was that given Maj. Gen. Wheeler, of Alabama, who has not been seen by many of his old colleagues since he went to the front at the head of the cavalry division of Gen. Shafter's army. Mr. W. A. Stone (Pa.), Mr. McMillin (Tenn.), and Mr. Sayers (Tex.), elected governors of their respective states since congress adjourned, were also overwhelmed with congratulations. The floral tributes Monday were unusually numerous and made the hall a veritable bower of beautiful flowers. The proceedings themselves were all interest centering in the reading of the president's message. For over two hours the clerk droned through the long document but the interest of members and spectators never flagged. With rapt attention they followed the president's review of the war and listened eagerly to every suggestion of recommendation he had to offer. No expressions of approval or disapproval interrupted the reading.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—SENATE—First notice of anti-expansionism was sounded in the senate Tuesday when Senator Vest, of Missouri, introduced the following joint resolution: "That under the constitution of the United States no power is given to the federal government to acquire territory to be held and governed permanently as colonies. The colonial system of European nations can not be established under our present constitution but all territory acquired by our government, except such small amount as may be necessary for coaling stations, correction of boundaries and similar governmental purposes, must be acquired and governed with the purpose of ultimately organizing such territory into states suitable for admission into the union." A brief discussion of the navigation laws was precipitated by the consideration of a bill amending those laws by the addition of a provision that foreign built vessels wrecked in the United States, purchased by citizens of this country and repaired to the extent of three-fourths of their value, shall be subject to forfeiture if they engage subsequently in the coasting trade of the United States.

HOUSE—The house was in session less than half an hour Tuesday when the deaths of Representatives Northway, of Ohio, and Love, of Mississippi, were announced and an adjournment was taken until Wednesday out of respect to their memory. The customary resolution for the distribution of the president's message to the several committees having jurisdiction was adopted and the deficiency bill carrying the appropriations for the extraordinary expenses of the army and navy from January 1 to July 1, 1899, was reported and will be taken up by the house Wednesday. The report of the Hawaiian commission transmitted by the president was laid before the house and referred to the committee on territories, together with a bill offered by Mr. Hitt to carry out the recommendations of the commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—SENATE—No business was transacted by the senate Wednesday in open session. A few minutes after the senate convened it went into executive session. At 2:15 business in open session was resumed. The death of Representative Northway, of Ohio, and Love, of Mississippi, was announced and the senate adjourned as a mark of respect to their memories.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday passed the anti-ticket scalping bill by a vote of 119 to 101. This action is the culmination of a long years' struggle on the part of the railroads to put an end to the business of ticket scalping. The interstate commerce commission first called attention to the subject in its report of 1888, and it has been before congress ever since in one form or another. During the last session executive interviews were given both to the representatives of the railroads and the scalpers, and Mr. Sherman, of New York, secured the pledges for the measure. It was, however, deemed inadvisable to bring the measure forward until the present session. The debate Wednesday lasted four hours and was spirited upon both sides. None of the amendments offered were adopted and the bill passed as reported by the committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—SENATE—The senate held a short session Thursday and then adjourned until Monday, after making the Nicaraguan canal bill the unfinished business before that body. Mr. Morgan called up the measure, whereupon Mr. Pettigrew moved to adjourn. This motion failed, 13 ayes to 42 noes, and the bill was then brought forward. Adjournment was immediately taken. During the session Mr. Vest stated his opposition to the hurried manner of passing pension bills in the senate, and gave notice that he would insist upon a quorum being present when pension bills were being acted upon.

HOUSE—The urgent deficiency bill to provide for the support of the military and naval establishment was passed by the house Wednesday practically without opposition. The only point upon which an issue was raised Thursday was as to whether the bill, providing as it did for the pay of the volunteers until July 1, 1899, might not be construed as a modification of the law under which the volunteers were mustered into service. Mr. McRae (Ark.) offered an amendment providing that it should not be so construed, and upon it there was a general discussion as to the advisability of mustering the volunteers out before the regular army was increased. Mr. Cannon finally accepted the McRae amendment and that removed the only shadow of opposition to the bill. A number of amendments were adopted upon the recommendation of the appropriations committee, which received some supplement 1 estimates after the bill was prepared. The largest of these was an item of $3,000,000 for an emergency fund for the war department and $578,000 for the ordnance department, increasing the amount carried by the bill to $8,823,922. The conference report upon the bill to render the salaries of consuls, vice consuls and consular agents liable for damages in suits at law was adopted. The house adjourned over until Monday to give the committees an opportunity to work without interruption.

Senate Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Senator Morgan moved to take up the Nicaragua canal bill in the senate Thursday, when a motion to adjourn was made by Mr. Pettigrew. The roll was called and the motion was defeated, 13 to 42. The bill was then taken up. The senate then adjourned until Monday on motion of Senator Morgan.

If Bob Blanks hangs it will be the first legal execution that has taken place in Barren county since 1848, when John Adwell was hanged. There have been a number of men lynched by mobs since that time, but none hung by judgment of the court.

A remarkable but well-authenticated story comes from Knottsville, Daviess county, of a fatal epidemic among horses. The animals are first seized with blindness, then die with convulsions. Farmers can not assign a cause and are alarmed over the rapid spread of the epidemic. They claim that unless the disease is checked many farmers will be entirely left without work beasts.

William M. May, Jr., of Perryville, has just been presented a pair of spectacles by his father, Rev. William May. These spectacles were worn by his grandfather, and are supposed to be nearly 200 years old. The temples are of silver and are unusually heavy, having enough material in them to make half a dozen pairs like are used now. The only really meritorious argument in favor of expansion is the fact that Grover Cleveland is against it.—Anaconda (Mont.) Standard.

With nothing to do and Tom Reed on hand to prevent it being done, the chances are that the present session will be a very pacific affair.

Capt. Sigsbee says that when the Maine was blown up he was in his cabin and had just discovered that he had carried in his pocket for ten months a letter to his wife from one of her friends. Many a man has been blown up under similar circumstances.—C. J.

Mr. McKinley is more of a follower than a leader. He was led into the sound-money ranks. He was led into the war with Spain. He was led into expansion. If Congress will pass a bill to reform the currency he will sign it. But will he do anything to secure its passage by Congress?—C. J.

It is probable that the common people of Spain will be kept in ignorance for some time yet of the graceful manner in which the Peace Commissioners of that country yielded to the demands of the United States. This is the kind of news that must be broken gently in Madrid as an educational protection to Spanish honor.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mr. McKinley was drunk with glory when he seized the Philippines, or he would have brought Dewey home after defeating the Spanish fleet. As he did not, it is his duty to discover the best manner of using the victory. We, who disapproved of the whole business, ought not to be compelled to find a way for him out of his scrape.—N. Y. Evening Post.

Just six lines of good square United States English from Mr. McKinley on the subject of imperialism would have been better appreciated by the American people than the whole six columns of his war diary. But, alas, not one word is vouch-safed on a theme which trenches upon the very foundation principle of our national structure and antecedents.—Boston Globe.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1898. NO. 9.

To one kind of expansion there will be no objections—that of the Christmas stocking.

AND 50,000 troops are wanted in Cuba. It was thought that the war on that island was over.

THE first regiment of Kentucky volunteers arrived home just in time to enjoy the holidays.

W. J. BRYAN is an anti-expansionist, and does not hesitate to make his views known on the subject.

WONDER what Senator Foraker thinks of President McKinley's address delivered before the Georgia Legislature?

MR. SHERMAN says Aguinaldo is the George Washington of the Philippines. He has a very high regard for the insurgent to be sure.

THE holidays are now about to break upon this county, and in a few hours the air will be laden with savory fumes of the Christmas turkey, and big dinners and good cheer will be the order.

THE President has driven some pegs in the South that will be very hard to move if anyone should desire to make the attempt when he calls on the South for its delegates in the next national convention.

THE contest for the Democratic nomination for representative in Franklin county has reached white heat and continues to grow hotter. An attempt was made to draw Judge W. S. Prior into the muss, but it proved a failure.

IT is said that Roosevelt's message to the New York legislature will contain a strong appeal for civil service reform. Roosevelt has been an advocate of civil service all along, and the State of New York affords a splendid field in which to put his ideas in practice.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY made a tour of some of the southern cities, last week. At Atlanta he addressed the Georgia legislature, and among other things said:

"Every soldier's grave made during our unfortunate civil war is a tribute to the American valor, and while when those graves were made we differed widely about the future of this Government, those differences were long ago settled by the arbitrament of arms, and the time has now come in the evolution of sentiment and feeling, under the Providence of God, when in the spirit of fraternity we should share with you in the care of the graves of the Confederate soldiers."

The sentiment contained in the above was received with great enthusiasm, and created for the President a warm place in the hearts of southern people.

Circuit Court.

The case of the Commonwealth against James W. Aylor, indicted for killing Bert Roberts at a picnic at Big Bone springs on the fourth day of last July, was called for trial last Tuesday afternoon. Both sides announced ready for trial, and the work of securing a jury was begun, and the regular panel of jurors was exhausted about night without securing the requisite number of jurymen. The court entered an order directing the sheriff to summon a special venire of 75 men to appear at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The sheriff had J. F. Blyth appointed and qualified as a special deputy sheriff, and about dark they started to the country to execute the order of the court, which required the entire night. About 9 o'clock Wednesday morning those who had been summoned as jurors began to arrive in town, and the proceedings in the case were resumed, and when court adjourned for noon the jury was completed, and composed of the following persons: W. C. Weaver, John Taneous, Wm. Batterson, Ed Farrell, J. C. Hankins, C. G. Smith, John Bentham, Woodford Sullivan, Geo. Kreylich. Lee Eddins, Will Goodridge and John Manning.

Hearing testimony was begun immediately afternoon and occupied the attention of the court until the adjournment hour Thursday evening, when the jury was adjourned and the preparation of the instructions was begun.

Interest in this trial grew as the proceedings progressed, and when the arguments began Friday morning the court room was filled. M. D. Gray, J. M. Lassing John, S. Gaunt and S. W. Tolin prosecuted and D. E. Castleman defended. The first argument was made by S. W. Tolin for the prosecution, who spoke for one hour. He was followed by Castleman who spoke two hours, and at the conclusion of his speech court adjourned for dinner. Two hours of the afternoon's session was occupied by Commonwealth Attorney Gray's argument, at the conclusion of which the jury was sent to its room, where it remained, except during the supper hour, until near 11 o'clock that night when it was adjourned until next morning. By this time it was generally believed that the jury would be unable to agree upon a verdict, and when the jury filed into the court room about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and announced it had made a verdict there was considerable surprise. William Batterson, foreman of the jury, was ordered to read the verdict, which he did, the silence in the court-room being almost painful, as he read, "We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

Each of the attorneys who argued the case, made a strong speech, sifting the testimony for all there was in it.

Commonwealth vs Add Riddell, indicted for wilful and malicious shooting, filed away.

Court will adjourn to-day, Wednesday, it is thought.

Commonwealth Atty. Gray's commissions at this term of the court amounted to the enormous sum of $3. He seldom makes more than his expenses at this court.

Sheriff Beall and his deputy, J. F. Blyth, caught the coldest night of the season in which to summon jurors for the Aylor trial. The temperature was below zero all night. Chas. Wilson traveled with the sheriff for the pleasure of the trip.

The suit of Mrs. P. A. Beech against the Covington and Lexington Turnpike Road Company for $10,000 damages, compromised but the record does not show upon what terms. It will be remembered that Mr. Beech was killed some time since by his huckster wagon going over a bank along the pike near Richwood.

The suit of A. M. Edwards vs. Fannie Edwards, for divorce, was tried Monday, and the court rendered judgment of which the following is the substance: The plaintiff, A. M. Edwards was given a divorce from the defendant, Fannie Edwards. He is to pay for the support of their two children $25 a month until the next term of the Boone Circuit Court, when the children are to be brought into court, and it will then be adjudged which of the parents is to have the custody of them. Mr. Edwards is to pay the expenses of bringing the children to Kentucky.

A Grant county attorney asked Jailer Adams for a chew of tobacco during a session of the court, the other day. The jailer had just supplied himself with a fresh plug of Battle-Axe, which he handed the lawyer, who surprised the officer by cutting off a chew and shoving the remainder into his pocket, and going on about his business. The jailer was too timid to call the gentleman down, but finally employed the sheriff to recover his property. The sheriff being somewhat of a diplomat recovered the plug in a short time and restored it to the owner, and now the amount of the fee the sheriff is to receive is to be settled by arbitration.

If a good buyer and a wise feeder, you can make it pay to buy stock for winter feeding; you can get the grain in weight, the better prices a pound which butchers pay, and then have the manure heap. If you handle sheep the growth in wool is a profit worth counting, too.—Farm and Trade.

John Munsey, a farmer living on Frazier's creek, Floyd county, Ky., met his death as a result of a very peculiar accident. He was squirrel hunting, and climbed a tree to secure a wounded squirrel, which had lodged in the branches. He lost his hold and his head caught between two limbs as he fell. He choked to death in a few minutes. His ten-year-old son was with him when the accident occurred, but it was impossible for him to give aid.

It is funny, isn't it? Farmers, when they wish to retire, move to town. Town people, when they wish to retire, move to the country. A man has poor health and he moves to town to rest up and get well, where he will not be bothered with hard work. The town man, when he has poor health, will go to the country with his tent, and will pitch it under some shady tree, where he may enjoy the country air and rusticate in the enjoyment of a perpetual pic-nic.—Exchange.

Mr. Walker Stevens, who lives near town, has been buying tobacco for the Tompkins Tobacco Company, of Owensboro. He told us that up to Saturday last he had been buying for fourteen days and during that time had made purchases amounting to 171,000 pounds, for which he paid an average price of about $6. This was all purchased within fifteen miles of Beaver Dam. This makes about $10,200, and it was all to be delivered this week. When our farmers prosper this way, it is a sure indication of good times.—Beaver Dam Gleaner.

Fifty girls have taken up the scientific study of farming this year in the College of Agriculture, at Minneapolis, says the New York Sun. They have entered for the full course, and will work in the same classes with the men. Heretofore girls have been allowed to study at the college only six weeks in the year, and that during the summer months, after the men's classes had dispersed for the long vacation. This year they are to have full use of all the college privileges. They have now a dormitory of their own and a new staff of instructions for special subjects in the girls' department has been added to the faculty.

One of the important things about good farming that most of us have to learn, is to avoid waste. We pay taxes on land that we do not farm; we only half cultivate our fields and so waste both land and labor; we leave a large percentage of the crop in the field; we waste time and capital in raising inferior animals; we waste energy in trying to do more than one man can do right; we waste money in buying what we should raise ourselves; we waste opportunities to improve our condition by staying away from institutes and fairs and by neglecting to read papers; we waste in a thousand ways and then we are ready to say "farming don't pay." And it is no wonder.—Montana Fruit Grower.

The San Francisco Call prints a description of what is undoubtedly the largest single field of wheat ever planted, in the State if not in the country. It covers 25,000 acres or forty square miles, and is one flat, almost level plot of ground. If the day is clear every part of the field can be seen from every other part. There are no roads through the field, and every foot of the field will be made to yield wheat. Plowing and planting began about the middle of last July, and will not be completed before the middle of the Winter, but the grain will all mature at about the same time, when will come the herculean task of harvesting it. The owner of the Clovis wheat field, Mr. Clovis Cole, has to employ over 200 men, over 1000 horses and a number of tons of big machinery. The entire harvesting will be done by machinery; cutting, thrashing and even sacking and leaving the grain in rows in bags, will be done all in one operation. The time of the "good old times" and the hand sickle has indeed passed.

Love's Birthday

ONCE on a snowy Christmas eve I wandered down the street,
A chance adventure scarcely thinking on this night to meet;
When right before my eyes appeared a little vision fair,
With eyes of blue and cheeks of rose, and waves of golden hair.

She stood behind a little group of children poorly clad,
Who gazed upon some wondrous show a shopman's window had;
And as they wished for this and that, and pointed here and there,
The fairy took me by the hand and tossed her golden hair;
And standing on her little toes, she whispered in my ear
The sweet request that I should bless these little children here.
Within my inmost soul I felt that I must do her will.
I bade her tell them what I knew their little hearts would thrill.
Thus each small waif became the owner of the longed-for toy,
And sweet it was to know that I had brought them Christmas joy.
I stole away and left them with their happy faces there,
And wandered through the busy streets to breathe the spruce-rich air.
Not long it was, I felt those fingers stealing through my own;
My fairy had come back again, those eyes were hers alone.
She smiled with tender sweetness, and her cheeks were rosy red;
"You were so kind to me, good sir, to do just what I said,
I want to show you how I make this good old city gind,
And how I carry joy and peace to hearts so often sad."
Then, aided by her magic power, I followed where she led;
Above the city's twinkling lights we rose and onward sped.
Beyond a shadowy spire we met old Santa Claus' sleigh,
And took a seat behind him as the reindeer sprang away.
From house to house we flew, the while the fairy laughed with glee,
And squeezed the good old Santa's hand; I wished that I were he.
How danced her merry eyes so bright, the good old saint to aid,
For as he filled each stocking small, a present she, too, made.
Then, as the midnight chimes rang out, we left the King of Snow,
And hurried off to other homes where Santa could not go.
Upon each sleeping face my fair companion left a kiss,
That when the sleeper woke he should remember only this,
That he had dreamed a happy dream that vanished not with night,
But lingered with the Christmas morning's glad and blessed light.
Again the fairy clasped my hand, this time to say farewell.
"Before I go I am quite sure my name I ought to tell,
And why I am so happy on this night of all the year.
'Tis Christmas day that's dawning; see, its light is drawing near,
And soon 'twill be my birthday, sir, for I am Love, you know,
And Love was born on Christmas day, two thousand years ago."
—Arthur Cleveland Palmer, in N. Y. Sun.

A Family Man's Christmas.

IT all came about—the best and happiest Christmas that the Jones family had ever known—through Mr. Jones missing the train to the city two days before Christmas. A heavy snow and rain storm had come up in the night, and in the morning the suburb of Jonesville was a thing of beauty to the eye, but a thing of discomfort to the feet of pedestrians, especially to those who must catch the early morning train to the city. Breakfast had been n little late; the coffee had been poor, the muffins underdone and the eggs overdone; the dining-room was cold and Mr. Jones in one of his most irritable humors. Had his wife been nt the breakfast table he would have indulged in a few sarcastic remarks about the incompetence of women to manage a household or to train and direct servants, but the poor woman had not come down owing to the fact that the baby had wakened and set up a loud demand for attention just as the breakfast bell rang. Little Robbie, three years old, had come downstairs half dressed and had been sent back with a sharp reprimand and—must it be confessed—a sharp slap on his little bare legs. Yes, Mr. Jones was an educated, Christian gentleman, but all the same he slapped his little son so smartly that the child cried out with pain and started to climb the stairs to his mother. For a moment Mr. Jones realized the atrocity of his act and its utterly unwarranted nature, and then he excused himself to his conscience by saying that he was naturally irritable, and that a cold house, a poor breakfast and the prospect of wading through the unbroken snow-drifts to the train were too much for human nature—his human nature—to bear. As he thus excused himself his temper began to rise again, and just before leaving the house he called to his wife from the foot of the stairs:

"Tell that old fool Hans that if he can't manage the furnace so as to get the house warm in the morning he can get another job." Then, remembering that for several days his wife had been telling him that something about the furnace was wrong that Hans could not fix, and had asked him to see about it, he hurried off to avoid hearing her reply. He knew his wife would feel badly to have Robbie hear his father call names and exploit his ill-temper, but Mr. Jones was in that very common very human, yet very cruel frame of mind that finds a satisfaction in venting its discomfort and ill-temper on some other human being; and although he loved his wife and was in the main a kind husband, yet when he was in one of his "irritable spells" she was usually the victim.

It was a good half mile to the station, and when Mr. Jones reached it he was in a glow of perspiration, besides being almost exhausted with his walk through the deep unbroken snow. Arriving there, he learned what he had not suspected before, that the storm was one of the heaviest and most disastrous of the season; that wires were down in all directions and that no trains had passed or were likely to pass for some hours. The alternative seemed to be either to stay in the cold and dismal station or to return home. The idea of a morning at home was not very alluring to Mr. Jones. He was at home so little except on Sundays that he really felt quite awkward and out of place there at any time but evenings and Sundays. Then he had not forgotten the encounter with Robbie, nor forgiven the household management for the poor breakfast and the cold house.

Just at this juncture a neighbor drove up to the station in a beautiful cutter, filled with furs. His horses were full of life and spirit and their silver bells jingled merrily on the frosty air. He was accompanied by his wife, whose rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and merry smile told of her enjoyment of the ride. On learning the state of affairs regarding the trains, he said:

THE SLEIGH RIDE.

"Well, wife, it's no use fretting; there mayn't be a train till noon. Let's go home and get the children and have a jolly sleigh-ride. It will be a real lark to have an extra morning with them. Here, Jones, jump in and we'll take you home."

Mr. Jones climbed into the sleigh, well pleased to be saved the laborious walk home. But what affected him most was the unaffected good humor of his friend and his friend's wife. Both were enthusiastically remarking on the beauty of the morning, the trees covered with icicles to the tip of every slender, leafless branch; on the brightness and intense blue of the sky; on the feathery snowdrifts piled on every side. Mr. Jones had noticed none of these things; he had been affected only by the inconvenience of the walking and the loss of his day in the city. But such good humor as that shown by his neighbors was contagious, and, since his attention was directed to it, he realized that the snow-covered landscape was truly magnificent. "No artist could ever begin to represent its beauty," said his neighbor's wife. "What were all the art galleries of the world compared to this?"

By the time Mr. Jones was set down at his own door, his feelings had undergone an entire change. He felt ashamed of his petulance, and especially of the slap he had given Robbie. He determined to find the little fellow and make the best amends he could. He also felt a glow of kindly sympathy for his wife in her care for the babies that was somewhat unusual to the hurried business man. Yet he shrank from meeting his wife directly; he was not quite ready to acknowledge the meanness of his irritability and language of the morning, so he decided to go through the dining-room, which was still very cold, and make a detour through the basement and kitchen to look at the furnace.

In the kitchen Bridget, who had long been the faithful maid of all work, stood gazing into the cooking stove, where smouldered a few black dying coals. Her countenance wore an expression that was a mixture of distress and anger. An hour before Mr. Jones would have begun at once to rate her sharply for her badly prepared breakfast, but now he only said:

"Why, Bridget, what's the matter with the stove?"

"Well, sir, sure there's no dhraft nt all at all, and whin I thry to make a quick fire there's the way it serves me. Sure it's the grate that's broken and dropped down that chokes the fire. A poor gell can't do any cooking on that stove."

Mr. Jones' conscience pricked him. His wife had told him several times about the broken grate; had written down the name and number of the firm that made the stove and begged him send it from the city, but he had forgotten it. He saw the impossibility of doing any good work with such a poor instrument as this, and then he said:

"Well, Bridget, I believe the best thing in this kitchen would be a new stove entirely."

Bridget's face brightened. "O sir," she said, "if only I had a good stove, and the pump fixed, sure I'd stay. I gave the mistress warning this morning."

Again Mr. Jones' conscience pricked him. How often had his wife asked him to be sure and send the plumber to fix that pump. But it had seemed a very small thing to him that stove and pump were out of order, and so he had paid no attention to the matter.

Passing into the furnace-room his eye fell on poor old Hans, the man whom he paid a dollar a week to take care of the furnace. He was on his knees in front of the furnace trying with all his poor old strength to shake the heavy grate by means of the iron lever. It was a pathetic face and figure the old man presented. Bridget had overheard Mr. Jones' message about the furnace and had conveyed it to Hans, who had received it as the knell of his hopes; for the poor little dollar that he thus earned was all that enabled him to keep peace with the shrewish daughter-in-law who gave him shelter and a bed. But for some reason the shaking of the furnace had been almost impossible for more than a week, and old Hans was in despair. When he saw Mr. Jones he thought the end had come, and the expression of his face as he looked up at him was ludicrously appealing.

"What's the matter, Hans? Has the grate got stuck? Let me try it."

Mr. Jones was a strong man, but he could not budge the furnace grate. Instead, however, of calling old Hans a fool and threatening him with dismissal he only said kindly:

"Well, Hans, let me go upstairs and get an old coat and we'll see what's the matter."

When Mrs. Jones saw Mr. Jones coming up the stairs her heart sank within her. She divined what was the reason of his return, but what with the baby crying, Robbie still undressed, the house cold and Bridget in a temper and going to leave, she felt utterly overwhelmed, and felt also that her husband's presence would only add to the perplexity of the situation. She had never been accustomed to special help or sympathy from him in her household troubles, and so she regarded him as he entered the room with eyes that were half inquiring and half resentful.

"Hello, Robbie, hurry up and get dressed and maybe we'll take a sleigh-ride," was Mr. Jones' first rather sheepish yet altogether pleasant remark addressed to the little fellow who had started to run to his mother on first sight of his father. "And wife," he continued, "as I can't get to the city this morning I believe I will just stay at home all day and see if I can't fix up a few things. I am going down now to help old Hans find out what is the matter with the furnace."

Mrs. Jones' surprise was judiciously concealed while Mr. Jones donned some old clothes, and then disappeared into the basement. Two hands proved better than one, and when main strength had dug out a lot of impacted clinkers, the furnace grate swung easily on its pivot and old Hans' face was lit up with pleasure. In a little time the furnace began to glow and a pleasant warmth to diffuse itself through the house. Bridget was instructed not to worry trying to make a fire in the kitchen stove, as Mr. Jones expressed the intention of having a new one before noon if a suitable one could be bought in Jonesville. With a bright face she had gone upstairs and informed her mistress of Mr. Jones' intentions in regard to the stove and the pump, and had said that she would like to withdraw her "warning."

The comfortable glow of the doctored furnace was, however, a small circumstance compared with the comfortable glow of the household atmosphere when Mr. Jones again appeared in his wife's room. What a transformation from the chill, petulant, misery-begetting domestic atmosphere of the early morning. Robbie with the sweet forgiveness of childhood held up his little face for a kiss and asked about the sleigh-ride. The baby, soothed by the warmth, had dropped off asleep, and Mrs. Jones' cheeks grew pink and her eyes bright under the genial looks and conduct of Mr. Jones.

"It's a good thing for a man to stay at home once in awhile," said Mr. Jones, [illegible] attention. I declare, wife, I don't know how Bridget has gotten along with that stove at all. And poor old Hans! he was not strong enough to move that furnace grate. But it's all right now. And as to the sleigh-ride, I propose, wife, to go and get a sleigh and take — down to the village to see if we can't buy a new stove for the kitchen."

"And the pump," said Mrs. Jones, "can we have that fixed, too?"

"Certainly we can. I'll devote the day to things. Now Robbie, be ready in half an hour and papa will be here with a sleigh and bells."

Half an hour later saw Mr. Jones and his wife and Robbie wrapped in furs and dashing through the snow as gayly as his good neighbor had done in the morning. The stove was found in the only little hardware store in the village, and the check that Mr. Jones gave the careworn-looking man who kept the store caused a brightening of his countenance to a degree that attracted the attention of both Mr. and Mrs. Jones. How easy after all to spread happiness! What simple acts will procure and dispense that which money alone can never buy. And since his thoughts had been turned in that direction, Mr. Jones thought it would be a good thing to buy a snow shovel and give poor old Hans a job of cleaning the walks, thus enabling him to put a special Christmas dollar in his poor old pockets. And so by noon the new stove was set up, and Bridget surpassed herself in the lunch she prepared by its help. Such delicate flaky biscuits, such deftly broiled ham and such perfectly baked potatoes had never been seen under the regime of the old stove. And as Mr. and Mrs. Jones lingered over the cheerful table, Mrs. Jones said:

"Oh, what a burden is lifted from my heart. Day after to-morrow is Christmas, and this morning I looked forward to it not only with no pleasure, but with dread. What a transformation, dear, has your being at home today and your loving thoughtfulness wrought in every surrounding of our home. We were cold and inconvenienced and cross; now we are warm, rich in conveniences and comfort, and happy. That was a beautiful snowstorm, but its best beauty for us was keeping you home a day. I feel now as if I wanted to get up a splendid Christmas dinner and share it and our happiness with some one else who is less fortunate than we are."

Mr. Jones smiled. He, too, had thought a few days before that they ought to share their Christmas with friends, but he had checked the impulse with the thought that with the babies and Bridget's incompetence it was no use to try; it wouldn't pay. But with the new spirit and atmosphere that had begun to develop in his home his heart went out in generous feelings towards others; so true is it that happy homes are the seed-beds of kindness for the world.

"There is your cousin John with his wife and two children, and my cousin Will with his little ones. Both of them are struggling along with small salaries and I suppose the last thing they would think of would be an invitation from us to dinner. Shall we invite them? If so, I will go to the city this afternoon if there is a train, and invite them and lay in a special stock of good things for the occasion."

As it proved, there was a train about three o'clock, and the man who went to the city on it, bound on his errand of kindness, was an entirely different man from the petulant, moody, disgruntled one who had missed it in the morning. And the final outcome of the whole matter was the happiest and best Christmas that the Jones family had ever known.—Helen E. Starrett, in Chicago Interior.

AIDS IN BUTCHERING.

How This Much-Dreaded Winter Task Can Be Robbed of Some of Its Worst Terrors.

Butchering hogs has many disagreeable features, but some of these, particularly the lifting of the hogs before and after dressing, can be robbed of many of their objections by having a convenient arrangement for scalding, scraping, cleaning and hanging. One arrangement for lightening labor in this way is shown in the accompanying illustration. The farm sled can be used as the scraping platform (b). The scalding vat (a) may be any large barrel which will hold water. Securely block and brace it so that it will not be displaced in putting the hog in and taking it out. In the iron kettle (e) the water is heated. The hog is killed and drawn along the side of the scraping platform opposite the iron kettle. Instead of lifting the carcass onto the platform by hand, make use of the pivotal lever attached to the post (d).

CONVENIENT BUTCHERING ARRANGEMENT.

Place a chain about the hind legs of the hog, hook the short end of the lever into this chain and the hog is lifted easily. The post (d) is equally distant from the platform (b) and posts (g, b and f).

After the hogs have been scalded and all the hair removed put them in the gambrels and with the lever lift them from the scraping platform, drawing them around so they can be hung upon the cross bars in posts (g, b and f). A lot of heavy lifting is thus avoided. The cross bars can be made so that they will turn around on a pivot in the direction of the arrows. This is accomplished by boring a 1½-inch hole in the top of the post. Use for cross bars four by four oak properly narrowed at the outer ends. Cross these on top of the posts, bore a 1½-inch hole in the middle of the intersection and secure them in place by means of an iron pin which fits into the 1½-inch hole in the cross-pieces and the post. Fasten the cross arms together and a first-class, cheap pivotal arrangement for hanging hogs is the result. With this device and the lever there is absolutely no necessity for heavy lifting. If one does not care to go to the trouble of arranging the cross arms so that they will turn they can be securely fastened to the top of the post, or, better still, mortises made near the top and the cross pieces fitted into them.—Orange Judd Farmer.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Good water should be free from color, unpleasant odor and taste, and should quickly afford a lather with a small portion of soap.

For washing windows put a few drops of ammonia on a piece of paper, and it will readily take off every spot or finger mark on the glass.

When the face of a hammer becomes uneven, so that it is difficult to drive a nail true with it, put the face to a grindstone awhile and the defect will be overcome.

To remedy a wet cellar already built, sink a channel nearly a foot deep entirely around, close to the wall, and lay a course of drain tiles in the bottom, which will cut off all water veins, and thus render the cellar quite dry.

Sometimes it is necessary to paper over sheets of tin. In that event add old sugar or molasses in large proportion to the paste. It will be found generally effectual.—Western Plowman.

Sell Wheat by Sample.

For years the grading of wheat has been the means by which buyers have secured it practically at their own figures. Wheat should be sold by sample and not by grade. The grade of John Smith's wheat may be No. 3 while John Jones' may be No. 1 or 2, and yet the latter will be bought at prices obtained by the former. Selling by sample distributes high prices where they are merited. The buyer tells the farmer there is very little wheat grading No. 1 or 2, when perhaps he is offering No. 1, but must get No. 2 or 3 price for it. Let the farmer show a fair sample of his crop and receive a price therefor in keeping with the quality. Grading makes it possible for buyers to make the price of wheat to suit themselves, and stimulates notorious wheat gambling.—Agricultural Epitomist.

At the End of the Year.

We all like to put aside a surplus of profit at the end of a term of labor. That means we are gaining. But if we make a fair living and meet our expenses, with nothing at the end of the year for surplus, we can hardly say that times are hard. We have had our supplies—all that we needed—and only when we fail in these and really suffer, can we say with reason that times are hard. But we hope, nevertheless, that every one of our folks will be secure in a nice surplus at the end of the year.—Farm Journal.

THE SWINE PLAGUE.

Some Excellent Results Obtained from the Serum Treatment of Dr. D. E. Salmon.

During the past two years the department of agriculture has conducted a series of experiments in the use of a serum as a remedy for hogs affected by cholera or swine plague. The experiments were conducted by Dr. D. E. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, and the results were eminently satisfactory, proving that the dreaded disease can be successfully treated easily and inexpensively. The losses suffered by the farmers of the United States annually from hog cholera aggregate an enormous sum. In Iowa alone, during 1896, it is estimated that the hog raisers lost through the ravages of the disease $15,000,000. The department of agriculture conducted experiments in Page county, Ia., the results showing a loss of only 20 per cent of the affected droves. This year the experiments have been extensive and far reaching. The bureau treated 922 hogs. Of these, 170 head died; the number saved being 81 out of every 100. The animals comprised 17 droves, and of these six droves lost only one hog each. On the other hand, 1,107 hogs in other droves were served and not subjected to the serum treatment. Of these, 879 died, showing a loss of 79.8 hogs out of every 100. The cholera serum is procured by keeping apart for treatment an animal—a horse or a cow—and injecting into its blood a small amount of the blood of a cholera diseased hog. This will sicken the subject, but he will recover; when another dose will be administered, and so on for a time, until finally his blood becomes so impregnated as to render him practically cholera proof. Then his blood is let and the clot drawn off, leaving the thin yellowish portion, which is the serum. This is used to inject the diseased hogs, and operates to render them likewise cholera proof, or even cures them of the disease.

WHEN TO APPLY MANURE.

Results of a Comparative Test Made a Year Ago at the Ohio Experiment Station.

A year ago the Ohio experiment station began a comparative test between cow manure, taken directly from the stable to the field in the spring, and manure of the same sort which had been allowed to lie in the open yard during the winter. The plan of the experiment is to apply both kinds of manure to land intended for corn, plow under at a shallow depth, and follow the corn with wheat and clover, without any further manuring. Four duplicate plots are treated with each kind of manure, applied at the rate of eight tons per acre, the treatment for each pair of plots being exactly alike in all other respects. The result thus far is that the corn of 1897 gave an increase of 13 bushels per acre from the yard manure against 16 bushels from the stall manure, and the wheat crop following has given an increase of ten bushels per acre for the yard manure against 11 bushels from the stall manure. Valuing the corn at 33 cents and the wheat at 80 cents per bushel and the straw and stover at three dollars per ton, the increase from the yard manure in the two crops has amounted to $13 per acre and that from the stall manure to $17, an average of two dollars per ton for the manure, with further effect probable on succeeding crops.

DOUBLE FARM BARN.

A Great Amount of Available Loft Room Is Said to Be Its Distinguishing Feature.

The accompanying illustration shows a plan for a barn with double driveways in which the distinguishing feature is the great amount of loft room. Four gables added to the main roof space give almost another story's capacity to the barn, making it possible to use nearly the whole of the lower floor for stock. With a silo and the root cellar that will be found in the basement it will be possible to carry a large stock on the fodder that can be stored beneath the roofs. There are many conveniences about a double barn, and when one is to be built the form here given will prove an excellent one to follow.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Mill Products for Hogs.

One of the best ways to obtain better results in swine breeding is to make more use of the mill products that can be obtained in most regions. It may not be generally known that we export great quantities of oil meal for the English farmers to fatten their hogs on, and yet not one farmer in a thousand ever uses this as swine food. Now that beet sugar factories are being put up in various parts of the country there will be added another mill product for utilizing for swine feeding.—Dakota Field and Farm.

Bacteria in the Milk.

It is thought by many that the organisms on the hay that is eaten as food may pass through the body of the animal and be excreted in the milk, but such is not the case. The bacteria that enter the body in the food or drink do not escape from the intestine. If they are not destroyed by the gastric juices, they are excreted in the manure, and can only gain access to the milk by contaminating the same subsequent to milking.—H. L. Russell, in Hoard's Dairyman.

FOR THE YOUNG MEN.

Words of Counsel Offered by Dr. Talmage for Them.

The Dangers Which Await Unwary Feet—Warns Against Drinking, Gambling and Unthrifty Habits.

Copyright 1898.)

This arousing and practical sermon by Dr. Talmage will reach many hearts and be an especial inspiration to those who are now starting in life. His text is Zechariah ii, 4: "Run, speak to this young man."

There was no snow on the beard of the prophet of my text, and no crow's feet had left their murk near his eyes. Zechariah was a young man, and in a day dream he saw and heard two angels talking about the rebuilding of the city of Jerusalem. One of these angels desires that young Zechariah should be well informed about the rebuilding of that city, its circumference and the height of its walls, and he says to the angel: "Run, speak to this young man." Do not walk, but run, for the message is urgent and imminent. So every young man needs to have immediate advice about the dimensions, the height and the circumference of that which under God he is to build—namely, his own character and destiny. No slow or laggard pace will do. A little farther on and counsel will be of no advantage. Swift-footed must be the practical and important suggestions, or they might as well never be made at all. Run at the pace of five miles the hour and speak to that young man. Run, before this year of 1898 is ended. Run, before this century is closed. Run, before his character is inexorably decided for two worlds, this world and the next. How many of us have found out by long and bitter experience things that we ought to have been told before we were 25 years of age! Now I propose to tell you some things which if you will seriously and prayerfully observe will make you master of every situation in which you ever will be placed.

Now, if you would be master of the situation do not expend money before you get it. How many young men irretrievably mortgage their future because of resources that are quite sure to be theirs. Have the money either in your hand or in a safety deposit or in a bank or in a United States bond before you make purchases or go into expensive enterprises or hitch a spanking team to a glittering turnout or contract for the building of a mansion on the Potomac or the Hudson. Do not depend on an inheritance from your father or uncle. The old man may live on a good deal longer than you expect, and the day of your enforced payment may come before the day of his decease. You cannot depend upon rheumatism or heart failure or senility to do its work. Longevity is so wonderfully improved that you cannot depend upon people dying when you think they ought to. They live to be septuagenarians or octogenarians or nonagenarians or even centenarians, and meanwhile their heirs go into bankruptcy, or, tempted to forgery or misappropriation of trust funds or watering of railroad or mining stock, go into the penitentiary. Neither had you better spread yourself out because of the 15 or 20 per cent. you expect from an investment. Most of the 15 or 20 per cent. investments are apt to pay nothing save the privilege of being assessed to meet the obligations of the company in the affairs of which you get involved. Better get three and one-half per cent. from a government bond than be promised 15 per cent. from a dividend which will never be declared or paid only once or twice, so as to tempt you deeper in before the grand smash up and you receive, instead of a payment of dividends, a letter from the president and secretary of the company saying they are very sorry.

If you have to wait a year or five years or ten years or most of your lifetime, then you had better wait rather than spend money you expect to get. Then after you get it do not spend it all. Never spend a dollar until you have 50 cents that you do not spend. In the government service in this city how many splendid women who are the daughters of men who spent all they got and then sneaked out of life to leave their daughters penniless, to be looked after by some kind senator or other friend who might solicit for them a position on small salary, but enough to keep them from starvation and the poorhouse! Such men do not die; they abscond. I cannot understand how such spendthrift and reckless and improvident men dare at their decease appear at the door of Heaven seeking admission when they have left their families in the Tophet of want and meanderings. Such men do not deserve a throne and a harp and a mansion, but an everlasting poorhouse. From no disappointed or disgruntled state of mind do I give this counsel, for life has been to me a glad surprise, as it has been to most people a disappointment. I expected nothing of advantage or opportunity, and so everything has been to me a matter of pleased amazement, but I have seen so many men ruined for time and eternity by going into expenditure, with nothing to depend upon except anticipation, that if I had power to put all warnings into one clap of thunder I would with that startling vehemence say to all young men what John Randolph said in yonder senate chamber as he stretched his long finger out toward some senatorial opponent and with shrill voice cried out: "Gentlemen, pay as you go!"

Do not say you have no chance, but remember Isaac Newton, the greatest astronomer of his day, once pedaling cabbages in the street, and Martin Luther singing on the public square for any pennies that he might pick up, and John Bunyan mending kettles, and the late Judge Bradley, of the United States supreme court, who was the son of a charcoal burner, and Turner, the painter, [illegible] and Lord Clive, who saved India to England, shipped by his father to Madras as a useless boy whom he wanted to get rid of, and Prideaux, the world-renowned scholar and theologian, scouring pots and pans to work his way through college, and the mother of the late William E. Dodge, the philanthropist and magnificent man, keeping a thread and needle store, and Peter Cooper, who worked on small wages in a glue factory, living to give $300,000 for the founding of an institute that has already educated thousands of the poor sons and daughters of America, and Bowditch, the scientist, beginning his useful learning and affluent career by rending the books that had been driven ashore from a shipwreck at Salem. There is, young man, a great financial or literary or moral or religious success awaiting you if you only know how to go up and take it. Then take it or get ready to take it. The mightier the opposition the grander the triumph when you have conquered. There is a flower in Siberia that blooms only in January, the severest month of that cold climate. It is a star-shaped flower and covered with glistening specks like diamonds. A Russian took some of the seeds of that flower to St. Petersburg and planted them, and they grew, and on the coldest day of January they pushed back the snow and ice and burst into full bloom. They called it the "snow flower," and it makes me think of those whom the world tries to freeze out and snow under, but who in the strength of God push through and up and out and bloom in the hardest weather of the world's cold treatment, starred and radiant with a beauty given only to those who find life a struggle and turn it into victory.

Again, if you would master the situation, when angry do not utter a word or write a letter, but before you speak a word or write a word sing a verse of some hymn in tune arranged in minor key and having no staccato passages. If very angry, sing two verses. If in a positive rage, sing three verses. First of all, the unhealthiest thing on earth is to get mad. It jingles the nerves, enlarges the spleen and sets the heart into a wild thumpling. Many a man and many a woman has in time of such mental and physical agitation dropped dead. Not only that, but it makes enemies out of friends, and makes enemies more virulent, and anger is partial or consummate suicide. Great attorneys, understanding this, have often won their cause by willfully throwing the opposing counsel into a rage. There is one man you must manage or one woman you must control in order to please God and make life a success, and that is yourself. There are drawbridges to every castle by which you may keep out of your nature foreign foes, but no man has a defense against himself unless it be a Divine defense. Out of the millions of the human race there is only one person who can do you permanent and everlasting harm, and that is the being that walks under your own hat and in your own shoes. The hardest realm that you will ever have to govern is the realm between your scalp and heel. The most dangerous cargo a ship can carry is dynamite, and the most perilous thing in one's nature is an explosive temper. If your nature is hopelessly irascible and tempestuous, then dramatize placidity. If the ship is on fire and you cannot extinguish the flames, at any rate keep down the hatches. When at some injustice inflicted upon you or some insult offered, or some wrong done, the best thing for you to say is to say nothing, and the best thing for you to write is to write nothing. If the meanness done you is unbearable, or you must express yourself or die, then I commend a plan that I have once or twice successfully adopted. Take a sheet of paper. Dote it at your home or office. Then put the wrongdoer's name at the head of the letter page, without any prefix of "colonel" or suffix of "D. D.," and begin with no term of courtesy, but a bold and abrupt "sir." Then follow it with a statement of the wrong he has done you and of the indignation you have felt. Put it into the strongest terms of execration you can employ without being profane. Sign your name to the red-hot epistle. Fold it. Envelope it. Direct it plainly to the man who has done you wrong. Carry the letter a week or two weeks, if need be, and then destroy it. In God's name, destroy it!

I like what Abraham Lincoln said to one of his cabinet officers. That cabinet officer had been belied and misrepresented until in a fury he wrote a letter of arraignment to his enemy and in severest possible phraseology told him what he thought of him. The cabinet officer read it to Mr. Lincoln and asked him how he liked it. Mr. Lincoln replied: "It is splendid for sarcasm and scorn. I never heard anything more complete in that direction. But do you think you can afford to send it?" That calm and wise and Christian interrogation of the president stopped the letter, and it was never sent.

Again, if you would be master of the situation put the best interpretation on the character and behavior of others. Do not be looking for hypocrites in churches, or thieving among domestic servants, or swindlers among business men, or malfeasance in office. There is much in life to make men suspicious of others, and when that characteristic of suspicion becomes dominant a man has secured his own unhappiness, and he has become an offense in all circles, religious, commercial and political. The man who moves for a committee of investigation is generally a moral derelict. The man who goes with his nostrils pointed, trying to discover something malodorous, is not a man, but a sleuthhound. The world is full of nice people, generous people, people who are doing their best—good husbands, good wives, good fathers, good mothers, good officers of the law, good judges, good governors, good state [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Does some man growl out: "That has not been my experience, and I think just the opposite?" Well, my brother, I am sorry for your afflictive circumstances, and that you had an unfortunate ancestry, and that you have kept such bad company and had such discouraging environment. I notice that after a man has been making a violent tirade against his fellow men he is on his way down, and if he live long enough he will be asking you for a quarter of a dollar to get a drink or a night's lodging. Behave yourself well, O young man, and you will find life a pleasant thing to live, and the world full of friends, and God's benediction everywhere about you.

Again, if you would be master of the situation, expect nothing from good luck or haphazard or gaming adventures. In this time, when it is estimated that gambling exchanges money to the amount of about $80,000,000 a day, this remark may be useful. There come times in many a man's life when he hopes to get something for which he does not give an equivalent, and there are 50 kinds of gambling. Stand aloof from all of them.

Understand that the gambling spirit is a disease, and the more successful you are the more certain you are to go right on to your own ruin. Having made his thousands, why does not the gambler stop and make a safe investment of what he has gained and spend the rest of his life in quiet or less hazardous style of occupation? The reason is he cannot stop. Nothing but death ever cures a confirmed gambler. Dr. Keeley's gold cure rescues the drunkard, and there are anti-tobacco preparations that will arrest the victim of nicotine, and religion can save anyone except a gambler. The fast is he is irresponsible. Having got the habit in him, he is no more responsible for keeping on than a man falling from the roof of a four-story house can stop at the window of the second story. Here and there you may find an instance where a gambler has been reported or reports himself as being converted, but in that case the man was not fully under the heel of the passion.

Horace Walpole says that a man dropped down at the door of a clubhouse in London and was carried in, and the gamblers began to bet whether he was dead or not, and when it was proposed to bleed him for his recovery the gamblers objected that it would affect the fairness of the bet. What noble men they must have been! How more and more ladies are becoming gamblers. They bet at the races and have prizes in social groups which are nothing but the stakes of gambling. A good way for a lady to get into the gamester's habit is by beginning with "progressive euchre." That opens the door in a fashionable way. In one of our great cities invitations were sent out for such a meeting at the card tables. The guests entered, and sat down and begun. After awhile the excitement ran high, and the lady who was the hostess fainted and fell under the table. The guests arose, but some one said: "Don't touch the bell! Let us finish the game. She would have done so herself and would wish us, if she spoke." The game went on for 30 minutes longer, and then a physician was called. After examination of the case it was found that the lady had been dead 20 minutes. As the guests lift their hands in surprise I exclaim in regard to them: What delicate and refined and angelic womanhood!

Again, if you would be master of the situation, never adjourn until to-morrow what you can do to-day. The difference between happy and inspiring work and wearying and exhausting and dispiriting work is the difference between work behind you and work before you. But always wait until you feel like it, wait until circumstances are more propitious, wait till next week or wait till next year, and the probability is the work will be only half done or never done at all. Postponement is the curse of a vast population. After awhile all the things that ought to have been done previously will rush in upon you, and, it being too much for your brain and nerves, you will be a fit subject for paralysis or nervous prostration. How many battles have been lost because the general did not strike quick enough, and the enemy had full time to gather reenforcement! You intend some time to write that important letter. You intend some time to make that business call. You intend some time to finish that book. You intend some time to preach that sermon. Where is some time? What is some time? Does it walk or does it float about you? Will it happen to come? No! Some time is never. There are no stragglers in the days and months and years. If one day should refuse to keep step and become a straggler, it would wreck the universe. Promptness! Up to time! To-day! Now! You will get only what you win.

Again, if you would be master of the situation, and I name it last because it is the most important, for you know that which is last mentioned is apt to be best remembered, I charge you get into your heart and life, your conversation and your manners, your body, mind and soul, the near 6,000-year-old religion of the Bible. Why so? Because the large majority of people quit this life before 25 years of age, and the possibility is that if you do not take possession of this religion and religion does not take possession of you while you are young, you will never come into alliance. Mrs. McKinley, the mother of our president, said to me at the white house: "I am living on borrowed time, for I am over 80 years of age." My reply to her was the reply I make to you: "All those who are over 25 years of age are living on borrowed time, since the majority of people go out of the world before 25 years of age."

WELL RID OF THEM.

Spaniard Declare His Country Better Off Without Her Colonies.

Interview with a Member of a Barcelona Firm—Says He Does Not Envy United States Possession of Philippines.

Louis Estere, a member of a prominent firm of grain and cotton importers of Barcelona, Spain, was a visitor at the St. Louis merchants' exchange the other day. He dwelt interestingly on the subject of the late war as viewed from a Spanish standpoint.

In the course of his remarks he said: "I was in Barcelona, which is one of the leading coast cities of Spain, during the entire war, and had a good opportunity to study the situation in my country.

"I am firmly convinced that the loss of our colonies will in the end prove a blessing to Spain, although temporarily it will prove a hardship to many interests.

"With a good government Spain will now be more prosperous than for many years, as her colonies have been more of a burden than a blessing for some time, and the people will be forced to develop the vast resources at home which have been neglected in the endeavor to make as much as possible out of the colonies.

"The Phillppines were really not much of a benefit to Spain, as the commerce of those islands was controlled by England and Germany, and Spain's business with the islands was comparatively light; how light you may judge from the fact that there was only one steamer a month between Spain and Manila. These islands were really a burden, and I do not envy the United States for the acquisition of them.

"Of course we did a large business in Cuba, but of late years there has been so much trouble with that island that the expenses ate revenues, and I think we are well rid of it also.

"Americans living in Spain were in no more danger than Spaniards in the United States, and I know of two American families which resided in Barcelona during the entire war and suffered no inconvenience. One of these families, whose name is Montgomery, I am well acquainted with, and I know that they were always treated with respect.

"I am afraid that the United States will have considerable trouble with the Philippines and will rue the day when they took them away from Spain; but I believe that the relations between the Spanish people and America will in a short time be more friendly."

MAKE WEDDING TRIP ON FOOT.

Hard Luck Befalls a Young Runaway Couple in Missouri and They Have to Walk.

One of the most remarkable wedding journeys on record was made to St. Louis and back to Norwood, Kan., by Austin W. Dunbar and Miss Lizzie Hay, of Norwood. On October 4 the couple arrived at St. Louis, secured a license and were wed. She gave her age as 18 years and her residence as Great Bend, Kan. Dunbar said he was 22 years old and hailed from Lee's Summit, Mo.

Relatives say both are from Norwood, and that the bride is only 15 years old. When they left Norwood on their eloping expedition they traveled in a buggy. At Lee's Summit their money gave out and the groom sold the rig, using the proceeds to ride on a train to St. Louis and thence to Jefferson City, on the return trip.

At the latter town they were again stalled, but nothing daunted they managed to get on freight train and deadheaded their way to Sedalin. Then they were penniless, and the only way they could continue home was to walk, which they did, all the way to Norwood, a distance of 226 miles, the trip taking them 30 days. Arriving home, the wealthy widowed mother of the bride took her away and the groom left town, as he had gone off with a girl who was too young to marry. She is now back with her mother, and Dunbar's whereabouts are unknown.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Everything brought a fair price at Mrs. Judith Rice's sale.

Mr. Robert Rouse and family have moved to Florence where Mr. R. will go into the grocery business.

Geo. Odenwald broke the record during the quail season by killing 8 birds with one shot. [That must have been a pretty large shot.—Ed.]

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge F. and A. M., will have work in the F. C. degree, Saturday, Dec. 24, and election of officers on December 27.

Several of our citizens are on the sick list, viz: Dr. S. S. Scott, Capt. W. H. Baker and David Riggs. We hope they will soon be out.

Mrs. Thos. Finnell and children have been summoned to Georgetown to be in attendance on the husband and father. It is hoped there is nothing serious.

The town of Erlanger was indicted by the grand jury for having the roads in bad condition. If any of the roads are in such condition the residents of this town don't know of it.

The Ideal Athletic Club held their annual election, last Saturday evening, with a blue and yellow ticket in the field. The blue ticket was elected as follows: Robt. Pierson, Pres.; C. H. Arrison, V-Pres.; A. Anderson, Sec. and Treas. Board of Directors, P. O. Griffith, S. W. Adams, O. M. Rogers and F. H. Guerney.

North Bend.

Dec. 17.—Miss Bernice Duncan is getting along nicely with her school. Her scholars range anywhere from 6 to 50.

Constable Jas. Grant was in this neighborhood one day last week.

The ice has been so bad in the river that the ferry boat could not run.

H. G. Cropper and his daughter, Lucille, have been quite sick of bad colds.

Tuce Balsly is kept very busy of late waiting on the various young ladies of his acquaintance.

Mrs. W. O. Kirtley has just returned home from a lengthy visit to her father, Rev. James A. Kirtley.

Several of the men of this neighborhood were at Burlington, last week, and of them were W. P. Cropper, G. M. Riley.

The remark was made the other day that the people in North Bend must surely have left as nothing was heard from them. However, it was a mistake as we are livlier than ever, with all the work of hog killing and "putting up" ice, we have had no time to visit or write, but we will now take time just to let the people know we are still alive and are progressing rapidly.

Bullittsville.

For several weeks we have refrained from taxing the readers of your highly interesting paper with a communication. We had purposed not to write again till the close of the Christmas festivities, when we propose to tell your readers how we spend the holidays in this Edenic corner of the world. It can be truly said that we live in the garden of delights. Mother earth can boast of no more gallant sons nor beautiful daughters than form our social circle. The mothers unite in adorning and beautifying their homes and offering social enjoyments (that make them attractive) to their sons and daughters. For, by so doing, they render them loath to sever the ties of their childhood's wonderings and hold them aloof from the glittering fascinations of city life. Having ever been a devotee of the shrine of woman and always ready and willing to bend our knee to her modest prayer we have consented to forego the pressive we had made, not to write again till after Christmas, and yield to the supplications of the ladies of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bullittsburg church.

They have requested us to inform your readers that they have engaged the Hon. W. W. Masterson, recently U. S. Consul to Japan, to deliver his popular lecture, "Around the World," in the Bullittsburg church on the 28th inst at 2½ p. m. It was announced Sunday to be in the evening but the ladies deemed it best to have it in the afternoon. Mr. Masterson received his appointment from Mr. Cleveland at the solicitation of our distinguished Congressman Hon. A. S. Berry. He has delivered his lecture on several occasions and has been complimented with large and attentive audiences. He has the reputation of being a graceful, dignified speaker, characterized with sufficient wit and good humor to render his lecture entertaining and popular.

He begins his lecture with a glimpse of New York; thence across the Atlantic to Liverpool, London, with a graphic description of the greatest city in the world; he then carries you through the eastern seas, the Suez Canal, Egypt, India and Arabia, then returns by way of Japan and through the Pacific to San Francisco. A rare opportunity is offered you by the ladies of this praiseworthy society to hear a fine lecture, and learn the geography and history of the world beyond the seas.

The purpose of the ladies in having this lecture is twofold—they wish to give an entertainment that will be both a pleasure and a profit to those who attend—and at the same time will furnish them with means to further their charitable purposes. Admission, 25 cents; children under 12, 15 cents.

Walton.

Dec. 11.—Mrs. Jacob Wolf, mother of Wm. A. Wolf, died Saturday morning.

Mr. O. Rouse, of Zion Station, was at his father's, Mr. Mott Rouse, Monday.

Miss Belle Hume, of Nicholson, is visiting Miss Mary Vernon, daughter of Dr. A. N. Jones.

Bro. Moss, pastor of the Christian Church, handed in his resignation today. It was a surprise to all. It remains to be determined who will be his successor.

Misses Ada and Effie Lermond attended the "Kenton County Teachers' and Reading Association," last week. Miss Effie visited her friend Mrs. Joe Miller in Coviugton, Saturday. Miss Ada is quite ill.

The Medical Society held a meeting here, last week, at Dr. Bagby's house, which was better attended than any meeting, so Dr. Gaines says, that they have ever held here. M. J. Crouch, of Union, was elected president for the ensuing year.

Dr. Geo. F. Gaines is astride of the top rail of a fence. He was an anti-expansionist, but reading that Grover Cleveland had seen fit to endorse that view, the Doctor hesitates. He is afraid of the doctrine—maybe Cleveland is only lying as he did to the Democratic party.

Mame Northcutt and a bull-dog pistol, F. F. Curley and Charley Lermond with double barreled shot-guns went hunting, the other day. Marion was to have the first shot at all sitting rabbits and the game was to be divided equally. Five bunnies were found sitting and each got a bullet thro the head. These were the only victims the hunters had to divide.

Rev. J. M. Crowe had a very handsome testimonial in the large and appreciative audience that packed the Methodist Church on last Monday night. The eminent evangelist showed most conclusively that he was a past master on the lecture stand. The most rapt attention was bestowed on his effort, every seutence was listened to as if his listeners never expected to hear another discourse. In fact, the eloquent gentleman commands the very closest attention from start to finish. There may be others who can thus hypnotize, so to speak, their listeners that in any interval when he was not speaking, you could literally hear a pin drop. It is given out that "Brother" Crowe, (this term is applied because the whole tenor of his sermons and lectures clearly shows that he belongs to the great "Brotherhood of man" a society that exists by diviue right into which all who have the good of their fellow beings in their hearts are thirty-third degree members,) will be here during Christmas week and will preach and lecture alteruately for the purpose of assisting the church in building a parsouage. Bro. Crowe will receive no recompeuse for this service, only his actual traveling expeuses will be paid. Everybody will have a chance to hear, and all should hear him as they may not again have an opportunity of hearing one that could do so much good.

Utzinger.

Dec. 17.—We think our friend, the Utzinger correspondeut, is mistaken in regard to his communications being criticised; and we do not mean to take the correspondence off of his hands; but only to add a few articles now aud then.

Sleighing has been the order of the day for the past week and quite a number have passed through town.

Miss Ethel Terrill, one of the Boone county belles, has just returned from a pleasant visit to her uncle, Dr. Robert Grant, of Texarkana.

Miss Beulah Gaines, the charming daughter of J. T. Gaines, will return from Georgetown, where she is attending school, to spend the holidays at home.

We hear that our genial friend, Hubert Walton, speut last Wednesday and Thursday in Cincinnati replenishing his wardrobe for the coming Christmas festivities. "Duby" says his girl will be at home before long.

Dec. 19.—Rev. J. A. Kirtley baptized four of the recent converts, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Cropper and their charming little daughter, Lucille, of North Bend, were visiting at Mr. R. C. Gaines', Thursday.

There was a full meeting of the C. F. C. at the school house Friday night to arrange for the holiday meetings, which promise to be well patronized.

Gentle reader, if you have never tried to strap your razor like the barbers do in town, don't you try it. I tried to get the lick and cut a nice, 50c strap in two.

We are glad to announce the return of Miss Lizzie Graddy to her home, after a delightful month's visit to friends and relatives in the region of blue grass and fine stock and fine people.

We are informed that Mr. Frank Casson will return to his farm in the spring. This is another instance of the fact that if a man ever gets the right hold on farming he will never let go. Mr. Casson has tried various pursuits but likes farming best of all.

When we first commenced corresponding from here we were thought to be one of the most intelligent women in the neighborhood, but when we said that we gave Clint Gaines a lift at his barn raising it gave us away. Besides we, like our first President and great defender, could not tell a lie. Washington was a great man and we read some very interesting things about him recently in the Ladies' Home Journal. They say we are kin. Next week we will change off and the items from here will be furnished by another member of the club. We hope to be interested and edified.

Rice Bros. delivered 15 head of fine cattle at the Union Stock Yards, Monday. Not the common cattle that you see around, generally, but the kind you read about in papers. Rice Bros. are up-to-date farmers in every sense while most of us are but poor imitations. Their success shows what pluck and proper management will accomplish on a farm. Left to manage a large farm a few years ago, covered heavily by debt, they have steadily pressed forward with their shoulders always at the wheel, and when others were complaining of hard times they were applying themselves the more diligently, and are now free from debt and their farm in a high state of fertility.

Rabbit Hash.

Dec. 18.—Toge Acra moved to McVille, last week.

Ben Ryle, who has been quite sick for some time, is no better, and is considered in a dangerous condition.

T. N. Stephens was quite sick, last Wednesday night, and his son Solon, could not go to see his girl according to promise.

Some one who has no fear of the law stole all of Miss Katie Craig's chickens, last Wednesday night, she being at Burlington at the time.

David Burnett's wife aud children were visiting his father a few days last week. They expect to return to their home in Kansas in a few days.

Last Saturday Harry Wingate's house caught fire, but fortunately, Mrs. Barker, his mother-in-law, was there and managed to put the fire out with little damage.

Rev. Fosher preached an interesting sermon to a small congregation, last Sunday eveniug. On Monday evening after the second Sunday in January he will preach at the Victory and Ryle school house.

Last Thursday, Lewis Merrick and Miss Mollie West eloped from near Believue to Rising Sun, and were married. After the ceremony they returned to Oscar Hodges' near this place, where they were given a reception by Mrs. Hodges, who is a sister of the groom.

Flickertown.

Dec. 17.—We are having plenty of winter.

Beu Passous is quite poorly.

Ask Willie Worford if he ever heard of any one setting their leggings on fire to keep warm.

Harry Passons got his hand badly cut while helping Steve Gaines kill hogs, one day last week.

It is funny to see some of the boys coming from over the river. The road gets too narrow for them.

Harry Acra was in our town, last Tuesday, with a smile on his face a yard long. It's a bouncing boy.

Charley Hensley has a new way of putting up ice—he dumps it over a bank and covers it up with his wagon.

Charley Hensley, John Smith, Sam Hensley and Marshall Terrill and Ben Grant have filled their ice-houses with eight inch ice.

Lee Straus is with us again after several weeks absence. Any one having turkeys or stock to sell will find him at Ben Hensley's.

Henry Sullivan has moved in with his son Merritt, and George Hensley has moved in the house that Mr. Sullivan moved from.

Lystra Smith lost a valuable horse week before last. This makes 3 horses that he has lost in the last 4 or 5 years, two in the last year.

Some one has named our town "H-l's Half-Acra." If any one don't like this town they need not visit it. We can get along very well without them.

Orin Phipps is driving Johnny Hogan's huckster wagon now. Orin is one of Middle Creek's hustling young men and is willing to undertake anything that there is any money in.

Gunpowder.

J. G. Vaughu aud wife are both on the sick list.

J. A. Smith and daughter, Miss Ollie, visited J. C. Hankins, last Saturday.

The ice houses are nearly all filled. The ice is the best we have had for several years. It will average about eight inches in thickness.

Morris Judge, of near Erlanger, has bought quite a number of turkeys in this neighborhood, the price being 11 cents per pound, dressed, to be delivered at his place.

I am informed that the tobacco raisers of Boone county are taking but little interest in the protest against the tobacco combine, but certainly when they become familiar with its principles they will see it is to their interest to organize against it. It is just and right that the farmer should receive full value for his produce, and not for the speculator to reap all of the profits. Now the question arises, are we going to yield ourselves to the great combine, give them our tobacco and eventually give them our farms? or, are we going to stand permanently for our interests and the elevation of the oppressed farmer? These are questions we should consider seriously. I believe if we stand firm the victory will be ours. Our tobacco-crop is not perishable and will keep a long while; therefore, I say, Bro. farmer, hold on to your tobacco until you can realize a reasonable price for it.

Union.

Miss Nannie Bristow spent Friday and Saturday in Covington.

James H. Fall will arrive home on Christmas day, and remain a few days.

The land deal which has been on some time between Julius Rouse and Jerry Tanner, has at last been consumated, and Mr. Tanner gets the nice, pleasant and convenient home now occupied by Mr. Rouse, who will move to the farm now occupied by Mr. M. L. Rouse in Fayette county, near Lexington. The people of this county will be sorry to lose Julius and his estimable wife as citizens.

Last Saturday morning Geo. Blyth was at the barn attending to the stock, and his wife was in the kitchen preparing breakfast, when their little son, Dudley, who was left sleeping in the family room, rushed to the kitchen and theu started for his father at the barn, proclaiming that the house was on fire. By the time Mr. Blyth reached the house his wife had smothered the flames in the sitting room where a large hole had been burnt through an oil-cloth and carpet and a good start made on the flooring, and in a few minutes longer an ugly conflagration would have been in progress. A coal from the grate had started the fire, and smoke strangled the little boy and awoke him, when he took in the situation and gave the alarm.

Dr. Tilly, of Petersburg, called on the RECORDER one day last week. The Doctor told, in his humorous manner, of how he and a large number of his neighbors were swiped for small sums of money by an agent for a Chicago clothing house, who visited his town recently. Old and young, males and females, alike were victims of the smooth talking young man. The Doctor said it had been his greatest desire for many years to come in contact with a gold-brick shark, but his recent experince with a lesser light of that class of fellows has relieved him of any ambition in that direction.

A good joke on one of its lady friends here in town was told the RECORDER a few days ago. The lady's eyesight has been impaired for several years, necessitating the use of glasses, and last week her vision became so defective that she could not read at all. This very sudden change in her vision for the worse was, of course, distressing to her and her friends, and she was very much down-cast. Her tribulations extended over several days before she discovered the cause of the rapid failure of her sight. She had exchanged her spectacles that had served her long and well for a pair belonging to a very much younger lady of the house. Of course she was delighted when she discovered the real cause of her trouble.

The following items were intended for the December issue of The Youth's Friend, but were received after the paper was in print:

In the arithmetic class that is working for a prize in Mrs. F. E. Kirtley's school, the girls are several marks ahead of the boys.——In the last issue of the Vs. F., the editor made the girls say they were afraid of the boys, which they say is a mistake.——Miss Edith Rouse walks three miles to school and has never been absent a day, and never tardy.——Little Mary Watts was in the class in Second Reader when school opened, now she reads beautifully in the Fourth Reader.——The following pupils in the Union school, besides being perfect in deportment, have not been absent or tardy since the 15th ult.: Eva Smith, Ella Tanner and Alva Williams.—— The literary exercises for Christmas will take place Friday afternoon, Dec. 23d, at 2 o'clock.—The public is invited. The names of all pupils that take part will be published in the next issue.

DIED.

REED—Charlotte Buchanan Reed was born at Brookville, Ind., July 15, 1825, and died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Ashburn, at Mt. Adams, Ohio, after about and hour's illness of heart trouble, aged 73 years and 5 mos.

Mrs. Reed was a christian woman, and had been a member of the Methodist Church since childhood, and was a woman whose sterling character commanded universal respect. She was kind and loving in nature, but firm in her adherence to what she conceived to be right. During her entire life she found great comfort in reading her Bible, and was constant in this regard. She lived and died with hope in God through Jesus. Nine children survive and cherish her memory in tenderest, holiest love, viz: Mrs. John Q. Elston, of Hathaway; Robert, Joe, Richmond and Walter Reed, of Covington; Mrs. M. P. Daveraniville, of Newport; Mrs. W. F. Ashburn, of Mt. Adams, Ohio, and Mrs. O. J. Ryle and Mrs. F. A. Hall, of this place, who have the sympath of all in the loss of a kind and loving mother. After a short, but appropriate service at the Methodist Church at this place, last Saturday, at 1 o'clock p. m., by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Harris, her remains were placed in the vault in the Odd-Fellows' cemetery, to await final interment, when she will be laid in her last resting place on earth by the side of her husband, who preceded her to the grave several years since, there to await the resurrection.

Jack Green, colored, died at the Infirmary, Monday. Jack was a character of which there were none but Jack.

THE department of agriculture reports that the increased value of the corn and oat crops on American farms this year will aggregate $88,000,000. This will make up for the decreased value of the wheat crop and will start the farmer off in better condition in the race of life in 1899 than he did in 1898.

THE Austrian minister of agriculture has sanctioned an appropriation for establishing, at a cost of 3,000 florins each, 33 stations at which the army is to supply guns and ammunition for driving away hail clouds. It is considered proved that the conuession and the clouds of smoke rising into the air affect the atmospheric state of humidity.

IN the treasure room of the Maharajal of Barnda is said to repose a carpet which cost close upon $1,000,000. It is only 10 feet by six feet in size, but is woven from strings of pure pearls, with center and corner circles of diamonds. It required three years to manufacture this jewel of a carpet, which was intended as a gift to a beautiful Mohammedan belle.

IT is perhaps not generally known that the German emperor has a paper published and printed exclusively for himself and for the empress. It is the Imperial Gazette, of Berlin, containing a clear and concise daily summary of the world's news. The edition of this paper consists of two copies, doubtless the smallest edition of any paper published.

THE salt mines of Wieliesks, near Cracow, Poland, were mentioned in 1044, and have been worked since 1240. The first map of the mines was made in 1638 by Martin German, a Swedish mine surveyor. The eight shafts now in existence are from 207 to 985 feet deep, and the length of the levels now open is 345,000 feet, with 115,500 feet of underground tram lines.

A CURIOUS visitation recently was noted in the township of Hove, near Brighton, Eng., in the shape of a plague of caterpillars. Having consumed a field of broo coli they have made tracks across the road toward the houses, exteriors of which have simply swarmed with them. Fourteen caterpillars were counted on a single window pane by an observer.

THE oldest house in America is in St. Augustine, Fla. In 1564 it was built by the monks of the Order of St. Francis, and the whole of the solid structure is composed of coquina, a combination of sea shells and mortar, which is almost indestructible. When Francis Drake sacked and burned the town this was the only house left in the trail of destruction. It has been purchased by the well-known antiquarian, J. W. Henderson, who will make it his winter residence.

THERE has always been much controversy as to who was the youngest actual participant in the civil war. This honor in the Spanish war appears to be due to "Boots," the 13-year-old mascot of the 10th Pennsylvania, who accompanied the regiment to the Philippines. In the trenches before Milate "Boots" did good service carrying water and ammunition. When he wanted passage from Manila to Hong Kong he boarded Adm. Dewey's flagship and explained his wish and the admiral accommodated him.

CONSUL FLEMING, of Edinburgh, Scotland, reports an interview with a business man of Edinburgh, who says that the American harnessmakers, housefurnishing and fitting manufacturers and office desk manufacturers are neglecting a field in Scotland that could be rendered fertile by proper cultivation. The standard of utility, convenience and adaptability of the American made goods is so much higher than all competing goods that sales would be large and profitable, if properly sought.

WHEN an earthquake occurs the entire crust or surface of the earth experiences some effects of the disturbance. An earthquake in Calcutta which was accurately recorded gave a basis for determining the speed of transmission of the wave of disturbance due to the shock. The disturbance was registered at the Edinburgh observatory, thousands of miles distant, and gave a speed of transmission of six and seventeen miles per second for the heavier shocks and less than two miles per second for the lighter ones.

LORD FORESTER, who has accepted the office of mayor of Wenlock, England, has the privilege of wearing his hat in the presence of the queen. This privilege was conferred on his ancestor, John Forester, of Watling-st., County Salop, by a grant from King Henry VIII, which is now in Lord Forester's possession. Lord Forester is the only English nobleman who enjoys this privilege, which was conferred on his ancestors as commoners. Lord Kingsale, the premier baron of Ireland, enjoys also the hereditory privilege of wearing his hat in the royal presence—a favor granted to his ancestor, John de Courcey, by King John.

MANILLA hemp is derived from a kind of banana (Musa textilis), which the natives call abaca. The stem of the tree is closely invested with sheathing leaves (like a grass stem) to the height of 20 or 30 feet. Above these is a spreading tuft of leaves. When three years old the plant is cut down and the stalks of the sheathing leaves are divided into strips. By skillfully working these between a knife edge and a block of wood they are [illegible] soft cellular matter and then dried. Each stalk yields about one and a half pounds of useful fiber, and two natives can clean about 35 pounds a day.

HER LIFE FOR HER CHILD.

Mrs. Johanna Newell Rescues Her Babe From the Flames Then Jumps Out

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Mrs. Johanna Newell lost her life Friday saving that of her 2-year-old daughter. The Newell family lived at 1819 Orleans, below a livery stable, which was burned late Friday afternoon. There was only one stairway leading to the street from the apartments in which the family lived. Mrs. Newell was near the head of this stairway when alarm was given and might easily pushed her way to the street. Instead of doing so, she ran into her rooms to save her little girl. By the time she was able to return to the stairway it was in flames and all escape was cut off.

The woman then ran to a second story window opening upon an area in which some men were standing and threw the girl out. One of the men caught it by the skirt and placed it upon the ground unhurt. Mrs. Newell then jumped from the window. The men tried to catch her but were unsuccessful, and she struck the concrete heavily, sustaining injuries from which she died within two hours.

When Mr. Bryan reached the house he was escorted to the democratic cloak room, where he was surrounded by members and made the recipient of many attentions. For some time he talked socially and politically with that unreserve which marks cloak room discussion.

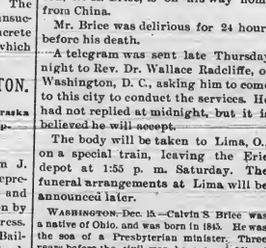
CALVIN S. BRICE.

He Contracted a Severe Cold, Which Ended His Life in One Week—Will Be Interred at Lima, O.—A Short Sketch of His Career.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Former United States Senator Calvin S. Brice died at 3:15 o'clock Thursday at his residence in this city, of pneumonia. He contracted a severe cold one week ago Thursday. On Friday last he took to his bed and on Monday morning his physician said that pneumonia had developed. Everything known to medical science was done to save him, but he grew steadily worse.



At Mr. Brice's bedside when he died were Mrs. Brice, Capt. Stewart M. Brice, John Francis Brice, Miss Helen Brice and Miss Kate Brice. Another son, W. K. Brice, is on his way home from China.

Mr. Brice was delirious for 24 hours before his death.

A telegram was sent late Thursday night to Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, of Washington, D. C., asking him to come to this city to conduct the services. He had not replied at midnight, but it is believed he will accept.

The body will be taken to Lima, O., on a special train, leaving the Erie depot at 1:55 p. m. Saturday. The funeral arrangements at Lima will be announced later.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Calvin S. Brice was a native of Ohio, and was born in 1845. He was the son of a Presbyterian minister. Three years before the civil war he entered Miami university, but in 1861 he enlisted in a university company for the war. He served in West Virginia in the 36th Ohio infantry. In 1863 he graduated from the University and after teaching school a few months he became captain of a company in the 108th

Ohio and served to the end of the war. He then went to Ann Arbor, Mich., law school, and afterwards was admitted to the bar in Cincinnati. He took an active interest in politics and in the campaign of 1886 was an electoral candidate on the Tilden ticket and again on the Cleveland ticket in 1884. In 1888 he was delegate at large to the democratic national convention at St. Louis, where the Ohio delegation chose him as a member of the national committee. He was chairman of the executive committee during the 1888 campaign, and, on the death of Wm. H. Barnum, was elected chairman of the democratic national committee. In the winter of 1890 Mr. Brice was elected United States senator to succeed Henry B. Payne and took his seat March 4, 1891.

In the senate Mr. Brice became a prominent figure. He was soon made a member of the democratic steering committee and became also a member of the committee on appropriations. Mr. Brice seldom spoke in the senate, but was a close observer of everything that was going on and was always deep in the councils of the party.

He was admired for his business and political skill and for his abounding good humor, which never left him on any occasion.

He was largely interested in railway enterprises, was rated a millionaire as of late had been one of the chief members of a syndicate with large railroad and other concessions in China. He leaves a wife and several grown children.

SANTIAGO, Dec. 16.—Gen. Wood, governor of the military department of Santiago, is determined to protect what is left of the "surrender tree"—the tree beneath which the Spaniards consented to the capitulation of Santiago—and has had it inclosed with a wire fence, issuing an order imposing a fine of $100 or imprisonment for 100 days as a penalty for mutilating the tree, which is already not a little injured by relic hunters.

The order is the result of the hasty departure of the Texas under recent orders. Capt. Sigsbee was at Albany at the time and the orders to sail were obeyed so promptly that Capt. Sigsbee had no time to reach his ship and in the nautical phrase he and other officers were "left on the beach."

BRICE'S REMAINS IN LIMA, O.

Flags On All Public Buildings at Half Mast—Funeral Services Take Place in the Presbyterian Church.

LIMA, O., Dec. 19.—The remains of the late Calvin S. Brice arrived here Sunday morning from New York. The special train bearing the body and the family pulled into the Chicago & Erie depot at 10:45 o'clock. Flags on all public buildings are at half-mast in honor of the distinguished dead, and many buildings are in mourning. There was a crowd of over 2,000 people at the depot when the train pulled in, and after the family were taken to the carriages the procession moved with the G. A. R., U. V. U. and Lima lodge of Elks, which was the only secret order he belonged to, acting as escort. The remains were taken to the Brice residence, where they remained until Monday morning when they were taken to the Market Street Presbyterian church at 9 o'clock and laid in state until noon. The services occurred at 1 p. m. Rev. Dr. W. O. Thompson, president at Miami university, made a short address on the example set for young men by the deceased, and the pastor, Rev. R. B. Thompson, D. D., made the address. Rev. Hunter read the Scripture lesson, and there were several selections by the choir. There was a suspension of business Monday all over the city. Business houses closed at noon and all manufacturing establishments ran with as few hands as possible. The Lake Erie & Western road, of which Mr. Brice was president, ran three special trains here for the accommodation of their employes, who wore badges of mourning. The floral tributes were elaborate, representing an outlay of at least $10,000. A carload arrived on the special train from New York city. Another carload came from Indianapolis and fully that many are from this city. The employes of this division of the Lake Erie & Western road presented an engine eight feet long, tender and two coaches ten feet long, each made of white roses.

One Man Killed and Eight Other Persons Seriously Injured in a Wreck Near Guion Station on I., D. & Road.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 19.—A wreck occurred on the Indiana-Decatur Southern railroad at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning 52 miles west of Indianapolis near Guion station. The Indianapolis express, eastbound, due to arrive at this city at 3:55 a. m., left the tracks west of a high trestle and passed over the trestle which was 60 feet long with seven coaches off the rails and bumping along the ties. The trestle was 50 feet high and it is considered phenomenal that the train was not hurled off into the creek, in which event the slaughter of life would have been awful.

The rear car had just left the trestle when a spreading of the rails ahead of the baggage car piled the seven cars into a heap. The baggage car and smoker were ground almost into splinters and all of the cars were badly wrecked. There were about fifty passengers on the train and not a woman or a child in the list. The train was in charge of Conductor J. A. Mitchell, of this city, and it is claimed was running at nearly 60 miles an hour to make up lost time.

The killed: T. M. Wells, superintendent of the schools of Douglass county, Illinois, Arcola.

Injured: Daniel Pointer, Decatur, Ill., head cut and neck and shoulders bruised; Andrew Kafer, Lawrenceville, Ind., head badly cut; A. J. Diddle, Indianapolis, frightfully cut about the face; M. J. Moore, Indianapolis, head cut, spine injured and internal injuries; Warren Saylor, Indianapolis, slightly injured; J. A. Mitchell, conductor, injured ankles; A. W. Scott, Indianapolis, head injured; H. M. Tenneyck, Chicago, slight injuries.

ATTACKED BY KISSING GIRLS.

Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson's Experience, After a Lecture By Him on the "Sinking of the Merrimac."

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson was heavily bombarded by a large fleet of kissing girls at the Auditorium Sunday night, but, as no distress signal was hoisted after the engagement, it is not believed that he was seriously injured. Lieut. Hobson lectured on "The Sinking of the Merrimac" under the auspices of the Chicago Press Club and after the lecture the members of the audience pressed forward for an impromptu reception. There was much handshaking and applause, but more interesting than either were 163 kisses given the Merrimac's hero, by as many girls. The lieutenant met the attack bravely and even seemed to encourage it.

DEWEY WELL.

There Is No Foundation For the Report That He Is Broken Down.

Gen. Merritt Thinks It Will Require an Army of 30,000 Men to Hold the Philippine Islands—He Considers Aguinaldo a Shrewd Man.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Maj. Gen. Wesley Merritt, late commander of the United States military forces in the Philippine Islands, from which post he was called to Paris to consult with the American peace commissioners, reached this city Saturday on board the steamer Lucania, from Queenstown. With Gen. Merritt were his bride, her mother, Mrs. Norman Williams and Norman Williams, jr., of Chicago, and Capt. L. H. Strother, aide-de-camp on the staff of Gen. Merritt. The general will resume command of the military department of the east, which position he held when he was ordered to the far east.

In an interview the general said:

"I can say, however, that there is no foundation for the report that Adm. Dewey's health has broken down as a result of his wonderful work in Manila harbor on May 1 last. He was in fine physical condition when I left him, and he was then over the strain of the naval fight. There is another thing that I would like the people to know. It is that the climate of the Philippines is not by any means as it is said to be. I met a number of Europeans there who had been in the country for 14 years or more, and they seemed to thrive, and had no serious complaints about the climate to make. The mortality among our troops sent to preserve order there would not be as great as some would have the people believe.

"As to Gen. Miles' bill to increase the United States army to 100,000, at present I can not discuss the proposed measure, for the reason that I have not yet seen a copy of it. I think it will take about 30,000 soldiers to hold the islands in case this country desires to keep them, and I see no reason why it should not.

"I have no comment to make on the so-called expansion which is being discussed pro and con these days. There are many Spaniards on the islands that want to remain there. With 15,000 United States soldiers and the remaining 15,000 evenly divided between the Filipinos and Spaniards I feel sure the islands could be governed properly and with credit to this country.

"I did not meet Aguinaldo but I am satisfied he is a very shrewd man. I did not recognize the insurgents, fearing complications. Adm. Dewey, after my arrival, pursued the same course. What was said or done before my arrival I can not state. I did not recognize Aguinaldo, nor his traops, nor use them in any way. I had been there ten days before Aguinaldo asked to see me, and then I was too busy.

"The American peace commissioners had a hard task to make the Spaniards understand that the colonies were lost forever to Spain. They accomplished the job well, and signed a treaty which is a credit to them."

TWO ROBBERS' BLOODY DEED.

Mother and Daughter Killed, Hired Man Badly Hurt and the Home Fired to Cover Up the Terrible Crime.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 19.—Telegraph advices from Banks, Ala., tell of a horrible crime at Myers' plantation near Josie post office, eight miles from Banks. Mrs. Ida Myers, a wealthy widow, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. Myers, also a widow, conducted a store, and it was known that they kept a large amount of money in the dwelling across the road from the store.

A young man named Cook was employed to superintend the farm and he occupied a room in the house. Some time between midnight and day Cook was aroused by a noise in the room of the elder Mrs. Myers. He sprang out of bed and ran to the door of the room and saw Mrs. Myers struggling with two strange men. He rushed to her assistance and was knocked senseless with a club. When he regained consciousness he found the house on fire and the elder Mrs. Myers apparently dead on the floor. Dragging her from the fire, he went in search of the younger Mrs. Myers and found her dead in her room, her brains having been beaten out. He rescued her body just in time from the flames. He then rang the farm bell and aroused the neighbors, who came in great numbers but were too late to save the house or any of its contents. It is believed that the robbers obtained about $3,000 in cash, and evidently they thought they had killed all three parties and fired the house to cover up their crime.

Verdict of Not Guilty.

CHADRON, Neb., Dec. 19.—The 32 prominent cattlemen of South Dakota who were indicted by a grand jury in Fall River county, South Dakota, for manslaughter, have been tried at Hot Springs. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty after deliberating 15 minutes. The case was the outcome of the murder of John Eckman, a well known sheepman of this city, who was killed last September by a band of cattlemen while moving his sheep into South Dakota.

Believed Peace Treaty Will Be Taken Up For Discussion in January.

The Holiday Recess in the House Will Begin Thursday and Extend Until January 4—The Appropriations Are Very Well Advanced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The week in the senate opened with a speech by Senator Platt, of Connecticut, on the question of expansion. Mr. Platt will reply to the speech of Senator Vest made last Monday, as he has given very careful attention to the extension of our territorial area no little interest is manifested among senators in his presentation of the matter, and it is not improbable, unless the Nicaragua bill prevents, that the speech will precipitate a more or less general debate upon this question. Whether it does or not a number of speeches on the same subject will be made after the Christmas holidays preparatory to the consideration of the peace treaty.

It is hoped that the treaty will be taken up for discussion early in January. Already there is talk of the probability of disposing of the treaty during the present session, and the impression favorable to this result is growing. A few senators manifest a disposition to debate the treaty at length, and some profess unalterable opposition, but the feeling is so strong against an extra session and in favor of the postponement of the settlement of the disposition of the Philippines after they come into our possession, that it now seems that even the minority will consent to the treaty's ratification without material delay.

Senator Morgan said Sunday that he meant to press the Nicaragua canal bill as vigorously as possible, and he expressed the hope that he might get a vote before next Wednesday, the probable date of the Christmas adjournment. The indications are, however, against such an early disposal of the subject, and it may be accepted as quite certain that even if Senator Turpie's motion for postponement till January 10 should not prevail, the bill will be naturally thrown over beyond the holidays. It is evidently the purpose of the opposition to prevent action during the few remaining days prior to adjournment.

The bill concerning the registry of foreign built vessels wrecked on the American coast is still on the calendar as a special order and Senator Elkins will probably make another effort to secure consideration. Senator Cullom has also expressed a desire to get up the anti-scalping bill. Both these measures will be antagonized and probably thrown over to January.

In the house the holiday recess by the terms of the resolution reported by the ways and means committee is to begin Thursday and extend until Wednesday, January 4. It is likely, however, that the resolution will be amended so as to make the recess begin Wednesday instead of Thursday. The appropriation bills are further advanced now than they have been for many years at the short session. Already the naval and army deficiency, a special bill, and three of the regular bills—the pension, District of Columbia and Indian—have passed the house. The agricultural bill was reported Saturday and will be taken up on Tuesday. Four of the regular money budgets out of 13 will, therefore, have passed the lower house before the holiday recess, an unprecedented thing in legislative annals.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Harland P. Halsey, the author, known as "Old Sleuth," died Friday night of cerebal hemorrhage, at his home in Brooklyn. He was born in New York 61 years ago.

Robert Treat, the first colonial governor of Connecticut, was one of his ancestors, and Halsey was a member of the Sons of the Revolution.

In all he had written 135 books, and his fortune was estimated at $500,000. He wrote often two books a week. His last book was "Only a Photograph."

A SAD CROSSING ACCIDENT.

Four Persons Killed, Two Seriously Injured, and Two Seriously Injured by Being Struck by a Train.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—A wagon containing eight persons was struck by a train on the Pennsylvania railroad Friday night at the Allenwood crossing, a few miles from Manasquan, N. J., and four were killed, two fatally injured and two others seriously injured.

The dead: Mrs. Ellen Allen, Bessie Allen, her daughter; Mrs. Allie Alger, Jennie Crammer.

The fatally injured: David S. Allen, husband of Mrs. Allen, who was killed; Katie Allen, their daughter.

Those who will recover are: —— Alger, infant child of Mrs. Alger, who was killed; Willie Allen, son of David S. Allen.

Mr. Allen was of the family from which Allenwood takes its name. He and his family had been to Asbury Park in the afternoon visiting a relative, Mrs. Alger. They were driving home and had reached the crossing which is within a few hundred feet of the entrance to Mr. Allen's place, when the wagon was struck by a train. The eight occupants were thrown in every direction. The train was stopped directly after the accident and the train hands and passengers went back to the scene of the accident. The victims were found lying about and were carried into Mr. Allen's house. Mrs. Allen was almost cut to pieces. Her daughter Bessie was also badly mangled. Mr. Allen's skull is believed to be fractured and his spine is injured. Katie Allen had her skull fractured and a number of ribs broken. Mrs. Alger and Miss Crammer, who had been induced to return to the Allen household by Mr. Allen just before he started from Ashury Park, were killed instantly. Mrs. Alger's infant child appears to be but slightly hurt. Willie Allen has two ribs broken, and, although he may be injured internally, it is believed he will recover.

David S. Allen was one of the most prominent men in that part of New Jersey.

PRESIDENT IN MONTGOMERY.

McKinley and His Party Given a Magnificent Welcome in the First Capital of the Confederacy.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 17.—The president and his party were given a magnificent welcome in the confederacy's first capital Friday. The president's train was escorted from Atlanta to Tuskegee and hence here by the state assembly, Gov. Johnston, Chief Justice McClellan and a party of ladies. The assembly's train came in ahead of the president's. At the Union station the presidential party was met by the governor's committee from the assembly, the mayor and city council and the commercial and industrial associations. Mayor Clisby received the president with a well-worded speech at the station. The whole party was then taken in carriages through the leading business and resident streets to the old confederate capitol. The entire route was ablaze with the national colors, while tremendous crowds lined the streets as far as the eye could reach. No such gathering has been seen here since Mr. Cleveland's visit during his first term.

SENATOR BRICE'S FUNERAL.

It Was Held at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, Saturday—Interment at Lima, O.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Many messages of condolence were received Friday morning at the residence of the late Calvin S. Brice. No. 6(6 Fifth avenue. Among those who telegraphed their sympathy were nearly every member of the United States senate, Brice having made himself very popular during his six years' term in the upper house. Persons high in social and business circles in all parts of the country also sent expressions of sorrow to the bereaved family.

The funeral will be held at the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church at noon Saturday. It is expected that the services will be conducted by Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, of Washington, who has been telegraphed to come here.

After the services the body will be taken to Lima, O., on a special train, leaving the Erie depot shortly before 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

American Artillerists

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Daily News, commenting Saturday morning upon its Washington correspondent's report of the gun trials at Sandy Hook, says: "The Americans have only to give their minds to it to become the first artillerists in the world. In fact, an American artilleryman on the warpath deserves the most serious notice of all whom it may concern."

PEACE JUBILEE.

President and Distinguished Visitors Dined by Piedmont Driving Club.

McKinley Delivers a Patriotic Address—Resolutions Introduced in the Georgia Legislature Thanking the President for His Speech.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 15.—The second day of the Atlanta peace jubilee opened auspiciously. The temperature had relaxed its rigor considerably and warmth in the rays of the sun was early perceptible. As on Wednesday the crowds were enormous, excursion trains arriving at short intervals from all directions.

The feature of the day was the civic and military parade, which passed through the streets during the afternoon. Starting from the corner of Garnat and Whitehall streets at noon, the procession proceeded to Exposition park, over Alabama, Broad, Marietta and Peachtree streets. The parade consisted of ten divisions under command of Grand Marshal A. J. West. The president and other distinguished guests in carriages were at the head of the pageant.

After the parade had passed the reviewing stand the president and the other guests of the city were driven to Piedmont park where they were the guests of the Piedmont Driving club at an elaborate luncheon.

The president, in an address, said in part:

Other parts of the country have had their public thanksgiving and jubilees in honor of the historic events of the past year, but nowhere has there been greater rejoicing than among the people here, the gathered representatives of the south. I congratulate them upon their accurate observation of events, which enabled them to fix a date which insured them the privilege of being the first to celebrate the signing of the treaty of peace by the American and Spanish commissioners. Under hostile fire on a foreign soil, fighting in a common cause, the memory of old disagreements has faded into history. From camp and campaign there come the magic healing which has closed ancient wounds and effaced their scars. For this result every American patriot will forever rejoice. It is no small indemnity for the cost of the war.

This government has proved itself invincible in the recent war, and out of it has come a nation which will remain indivisible for evermore. No worthier contributions have been made in patriotism and in men than by the people of these southern states. When at last the opportunity came they were eager to meet it, and with promptness responded to the call of country. Intrusted with the able leadership of men dear to them, who had marched with their fathers, under another flag, now fighting under the old flag again, they have gloriously helped to defend its spotless folds and added new luster to its shining stars. That flag has been planted in two hemispheres, and there it remains the symbol of liberty and law, or peace and progress. Who will withdraw from the people over whom it floats its protecting folds? Who will haul it down?

We could have avoided all the difficulties that lies across the pathway of the nation if a few months ago we had coldly ignored the piteous appeals of the starving and oppressed inhabitants of Cuba. If we had blinded ourselves to the conditions so near our shores and turned a deaf ear to our suffering neighbors, the issue of territorial expansion in the Antilles and the East Indies would not have been raised.

But could we have justified such a course? Is there any one who would now declare another to have been the better course? With less humanity and less courage on our part, the Spanish flag, instead of the Stars and Stripe, would still be floating at Cavite, at Ponce, and at Santiago, and a "chance in the race of life" would be wanting to millions of human beings who to-day call this nation noble, and who, I trust, will live to call it blessed.

Thus far we have done our supreme duty. Shall we now, when the victory won in war is written in the treaty of peace, and the civilized world applauds and waits in expectation, turn timidly away from the duties imposed upon the country by its own great deeds? And when the mists fade and we see with clearer vision, may we not go forth rejoicing in a strength which has been employed solely for humanity and always been tempered with justice and mercy, confident in our ability to meet the exigencies which await us, because confident that our course is one of duty and our cause that of right.

Georgia Legislature Thanks McKinley.

President McKinley's utterances in his address to the Georgia legislature Wednesday were highly commended by that body Thursday.

Immediately after the reading of the journal in the house Thursday morning, Representative Galvin, of Richmond, secured the floor and introduced the following resolutions:

"Resolved, by the house, the senate concurring that as the chosen representatives of the people of Georgia, we desire to express our high appreciation of the chaste, eloquent and enthusiastic address delivered in the presence of this general assembly in the hall of the house of representatives Wednesday by his excellency, William McKinley, president of the United States.

"Resolved, Further, That President McKinley, by his ready recognition of southern nobility and southern worth in military appointments, made at the outbreak and during the recent Spanish-American war, won a warm place in the hearts of all our people and endeared himself to the country at large.

"Resolved, Further, That we desire especially to commend and applaud the generous and soldierly suggestion made by his excellency that the north should share in the care of the graves of the confederate soldiers.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—SENATE.—Discussion of two questions, each of interest and importance at this time, was begun by the senate at its session Monday. Territorial expansion and the construction of the Nicaragua canal occupied the attention of the body during the greater part of the afternoon. As soon as the routine morning business had been disposed of, Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) called up his resolution offered last week, declaring it to be unconstitutional for this government to acquire foreign territory, except for coaling stations or some like purpose, unless its intention was to confer statehood upon the territory and citizenship upon its inhabitants. Mr. Morgan opened the debate on the canal bill with a three hour appeal for action at this session. The whole country he said, would be disappointed if congress did not act. He was willing to take any measure which would result in the building of the canal. In the course of his remarks he agreed to accept an amendment specifically excepting the canal from neutrality with regard to any country with which the United States might be at war.

HOUSE—The house spent the larger part of Monday on District of Columbia affairs. The bill to relieve the condition of American seamen was taken up, but nothing was accomplished.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—SENATE—Tuesday's session of the senate was largely occupied in discussion of the Nicaragua canal bill. Mr. Turpie made the principal speech in opposition to the bill, attacking it on the ground that it is in the interest of the Maritime Co., which he characterized as a fraud and bankrupt. Mr. Berry gave notice of an amendment he would offer to the Nicaragua canal bill, providing for the direct appropriation of money for the construction of the canal and limiting the cost to $115,000,000. Mr. Rawlins also gave notice of an amendment to the Nicaragua bill, providing that the act should not go into effect until the United States should secure by treaty the right to fortify and garrison the canal, to send armed vessels and munitions of war through it in time of war and close it against any other nation with whom the United States may be at war.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill without a single amendment. The bill carries $6,320,850, which is $176,600 less than was carried by the last bill and $2,871,887 less than the estimates. The house also passed the senate bill which was under consideration Monday to amend the laws relating to seamen. All the amendments were rejected.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—SENATE—The Nicaragua canal bill held its place as the principal subject before the senate again Wednesday. Speeches were made by Messrs. Harris, Money, Stewart and Morgan. An agreement was reached to take a vote on the Turpie postponement motion Thursday. Other questions before the senate were: The government's pension policy, and the bill regarding the registry of foreign built vessels wrecked on the American coast. The pension discussion was participated in by Mr. Vest. The registry bill went over until Thursday.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday for the second time during this congress refused to consider the Lodge immigration bill. At the last session an attempt was made to take it from the speaker's file but it was defeated by a large majority. An interesting but brief debate on the rules was precipitated during the session by Mr. Grow (Pa.), during which Mr. De Armond made a speech on the decadence of the privilege of debate in the house and held Speaker Reed responsible for the fact that the house had had no opportunity to adopt a new system of rules at this session. The speech replied in which he referred to the complaints of John Randolph in the early days of the century to show that the same remonstrances were made then that were being heard Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—SENATE—The urgent deficiency appropriation bill, making provision for the army and navy for the next six months, displaced the Nicaragua canal bill in the senate Thursday, preventing even taking a vote on the question of postponement until after the holidays as had been intended. The deficiency bill was passed after a spirited discussion turning principally on the point of keeping the volunteer soldiers in the service.

HOUSE—The house Thursday surpassed all previous records in the expedition with which it passed the pension appropriation bill. This bill, in days gone by, has been one of the most fruitful themes of acrimonious partisan debate, but Thursday, although carrying $140,000,000 more than the last one for pensions, it was passed in twenty minutes without a word of criticism. The house then entered upon the consideration of the bill to incorporate the International American bank. This project was recommended by the Pan-American congress in 1889. An arrangement was effected for a vote upon the passage of the bill at 3 o'clock Friday. It was supported by debate by Messrs. Broslus, (rep., Pa.); Adams, (rep., Pa.), Lacy, (rep., Ia.), and Walker, (rep., Mass.); and opposed by Mr. Cox, (dem., Tenn.), Jenkins, (rep., Wis.), Briggs, (dem., N. Y.), and Bartlett (dem., Ga.).

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The bill to incorporate the International American bank was buried under an overwhelming adverse majority of the house Friday. The debate upon the measure, which opened Thursday, was concluded Friday at 3 o'clock. Mr. Dingley, the floor leader of the majority, made an argument in its support. The other speakers were Hill (Ct.), in its support, and Messrs. Bell (pop., Col.), Sulzer (dem., N. Y.), Maxwell (pop., Neb.), Maddox (dem., Ga.) and Swanson (dem., Va.) in opposition. The vote by which the bill was defeated stood 103 yeas to 168 nays. The bill to extend the customs and revenue laws of the United States over the Hawaiian islands was passed without opposition. The bill, Mr. Dingley explained, dealt with the civil service laws relating to appointments in the customs and revenue service in Hawaii.

State Troops.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 17.—Gov. J. F. Johnson, in an interview Friday, said: "The recent war shows how necessary it is to have a well-organized and disciplined body of state troops ready for instant service. The standing army should be supplemented by such a body. I trust all the states will respond to the call of Gov. Bloxham and that a large number of delegates will assemble at Tampa, Fla., on February 8, to consider the re-organization of state militia service."

For an Extra Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A petition which has been secretly circulated for some days urging the president to call an extra session in March to consider financial questions solely, has received nearly a majority of names of republicans of the house, and comes out Friday as a most important matter. It will doubtless have great weight with the president.

Cuban Catholics Will Enjoy Religious Liberty.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "In response to the vatican's inquiry on the subject, President McKinley has sent an assurance that the Catholics in Cuba and the Philippines will enjoy the same ample liberty as the Catholics in America.

BRYAN TALKS OUT.

The Colonial Idea Imperialistic and Contrary to American Principles.

Upon forwarding his resignation as colonel in the United States army a few days ago, William J. Bryan gave expression to his views on the subject of expansion as follows:

"The people of the United States, having rescued Cuba from foreign control, may now resume the discussion of the domestic problems which confront this nation and to the consideration of the new questions arising out of the war.

"I may be in error, but in my judgment our nation is in greater danger just now than Cuba. Our people defended Cuba against foreign arms; now they must defend themselves and their country against a foreign idea—the colonial idea of European nations. Heretofore greed has perverted the government and used its instrumental interferences for private gain, but now the very foundation principles of our government are assailed.

"The imperialistic idea is directly antagonistic to the idea and ideals which have been cherished by the American people since the signing of the declaration of independence. Our nation must give up any intention of entering upon a colonial policy (such as is now pursued by European countries), or it must abandon the doctrine that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.

"We may believe that governments come up from the people or we may believe that governments come down to the people from those who possess the heaviest cannons and the largest ships, but we cannot advocate both doctrines.

"To borrow a Bible quotation: 'A house divided against itself cannot stand.' Paraphrasing Lincoln's declaration, I may add that this nation cannot endure half republic and half colony—half free and half vassal. Our form of government, our traditions, our present interests and our future welfare, all forbid our entering upon a career of conquest.

"Jefferson has been quoted in support of imperialism, but our opponents must distinguish between imperialism and expansion; they must also distinguish between expansion in the western hemisphere and an expansion that involves us in the quarrels of Europe and the orient. They must still further distinguish between expansion which secures contiguous territory for future settlement and expansion which secures us alien races for future subjugation.

"Jefferson favored the annexation of necessary contiguous territory on the North American continent, but he was expressly condemned the acquiring of remote territory."

When asked how the colonial policy could be prevented, Col. Bryan said:

"Some think that the fight should be made against ratification of the treaty, but I would prefer another plan. If the treaty is rejected negotiations must be renewed, and instead of settling the question according to our ideas we must settle it by diplomacy, with the possibility of international complications. It will be easier, I think, to end the war at once by ratifying the treaty and then deal with the subject in our own way. The issue can be presented directly by a resolution of congress declaring the policy of the nation upon this subject.

"The president in his message says that our only purpose in taking possession of Cuba is to establish a stable government and then turn that government over to the people of Cuba. Congress could reaffirm this purpose in regard to Cuba and assert the same purpose in regard to the Philippine islands and Porto Rico. Such a resolution would make a clear-cut issue between the doctrine of self-government and the doctrine of imperialism. We should reserve a harbor and coaling station in Porto Rico and in the Philippines in return for services rendered; and I think we would be justified in asking the same concession from Cuba.

"In the case of Porto Rico, where the people have as yet expressed no desire for an independent government, we might with propriety decline our willingness to annex the island if the citizens desire annexation; but the Philippine islands are too far away and their people too different from ours to be annexed to the United States, even if they desired it."

MORE TAXES TO BE ADDED.

[illegible] Necessities of Life in Some of the European Countries.

The French cabinet is elaborating a scheme of progressive income taxation. It is designed to raise 175,000,000 francs a year, and it will apply especially to the wealthier classes who manifest their means in living and pleasure expenditure. The rental value of the habitation will be used primarily to calculate the income of the occupant, and this calculated income is increased so much by each servant employed, carriage owned or employed and other evidences of income, such as yachts, dogs, motocycles and the like. Additions to taxable income from these evidences of wealth vary according to place. Thus, the employment of a female servant adds 800 francs to the taxable income of a person in Paris, 700 francs in the larger cities outside of Paris, and so on down to 400 francs for the country villages.

The enormous demands upon the exchequer incident to the maintenance of the military and naval might of the nation necessitate radical measures of public revenue, and wealth must accordingly be placed under special contribution. Great Britain's imperial policy has forced upon the wealth of that nation the most radical system of graduated income and probate taxes existing anywhere outside of Switzerland and New Zealand, and it is only a question of a brief time at the present rate of imperial progress and navy and army expansion when the burden must be increased per capita or per unit of wealth. France is now to follow suit, and all over Europe wealth will be made more and more to contribute to the support of the luxury of colonial and military expansion—not so much because of the justice of this course, but because of the poverty of the masses and their inflammatory state of mind.

There is no large nation in the world to-day where wealth is relatively so lightly taxed as in the United States. But with the entrance of the nation into the arena of the world-grabbing and military powers all this must change. Wealth will be made to foot the bill. Nothing can be more certain, unless we are to suppose that the middle and lower classes of people in the United States possess less of the spirit and strength of resistance to the encroachments of privilege and power than the crushed and broken masses of Europe.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

NOW THE SPOILS.

Vacancies to Be Created for Office-Hungry Republican Party Workers.

Washington advices intimate that an executive order has already been prepared which will remove from the classified service 957 deputy collectors of internal revenue, 606 examining surgeons attached to the pension bureau, and a number of minor places, in order to create vacancies to be filled by "party workers."

With what consistency can President McKinley undertake to unstarch the civil service? In his message of December 6, 1897, he concluded his remarks concerning the "important branch of our government known as the civil service" by saying: "The system has the approval of the people, and it will be my endeavor to uphold and extend it." In his inaugural message he further more declared that "Reforms in the civil service must go on, but the change must be real and genuine, not perfunctory or prompted by a zeal in behalf of any party simply because it happens to be in power." And while the president appears to have overlooked the subject in this year's message if he be credited with consistency of purpose, the omission must be attributed rather to the pressure of war topics and foreign affairs than a change of views or a wavering in adherence to civil service reform. The Chicago Times-Herald, one of the strongest newspaper supporters of the president, and which, indeed, boasts that it is the original McKinley organ of them all, remarks upon this subject:

"Having so committed himself to establish the civil service of the government more firmly on what he justly styled a 'basis of business methods and personal merit,' what would be thought if he should now yield to partisan pressure and throw 1,500 or 2,000 places into the party grab bag?

"The public looks to President McKinley not to take any step backward in the reform which, to use the words of his predecessor, has survived the doubts of its friends as well as the rancour of its enemies, and has gained a permanent place among the agencies destined to cleanse our politics and to improve, economize and elevate the public service.'

"Just when newly acquired national territory places fresh demands on our civil service it would be peculiarly untimely and unfortunate to make a breach in the wall of approved merit that protects it from incompetence and partisanship."

Nevertheless, as the Times-Herald itself puts it, this is a "long-expected order, in anticipation of which the spoilsmen have been licking their hungry chops for months," and "now they are sure that it is forthcoming immediately."—Albany Argus.

——Will Hanna be tried on the charges which are ready to be brought against him? Hardly. And yet, nobody in the country, who has any claim to intelligence, doubts his guilt. Great is Hanna-ism, and McKinley is its only prophet.—Tanimany Times.

——It seems the commission to whitewash Algerism gets pay—$75,000 —out of $50,000,000 appropriated for the president to use for the national defense. Is not this a little fortuous? Would it not puzzle a common mind how it is "national defense" to whitewash Alger and Algerism?—Illinois State Register.

——The locked-out operatives at Fall River must have smiled at the news of the recent cotton mill strike at Atlanta. The inability of the Dingley bill to raise the wages of cotton spinners is utterly impartial in its geological ineffectiveness.—St. Louis Republic.

Mr. Dingley seems very much concerned lest somebody should be alarmed by the figures in Secretary Gage's report, and predicts emphatically that the existing record-breaking deficit—we have had one continuously since 1893—is going to give up the ghost exactly two years hence. The children of the United States each year consume toys that cost at retail $45,000,000.

Of this sum the imported goods represent $15,000,000.

One-third of this is for imported play-things and two-thirds for the home products.

There is a marked tendency toward mechanical toys, and more that is new and interesting is found in this direction than in anyother.

Within the ranks of these play-things is observable a great increase in iron toys, all of which are made in this country, and fitted for hard use in the hands of destructive children.—New York World.

FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1898. NO. 10.

JACKSON'S day, January 8th, comes on Sunday next year.

GRIPPE is prevailing to an alarming extent in several of the large cities.

DURING his recent trip out west Hobson declared his intention of enjoying his kissing frolic while it lasted.

MAYOR O'BRIEN, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., has inaugurated a war against gambling in his city. He has also interdicted the slot machine.

CONGRESSMEN are enjoying the holidays with their constituents, and watching closely crystilization of sentiment on the question of annexation.

THE leading Republicans of the State held a peace conference at Louisville, last week. The terms of the protocol proposed have not been made public.

SOME of the Grand Army men took exceptions to the sentiments expressed by the President in his Atlanta speech. They consider it entirely too conciliatory.

THE American and the Cuban flag are both flying over the island of Cuba, but if Uncle Sam keeps his promise his flag will have to come down eventually.

THE West has captured more of Hobson's kisses than any other part of the country. A girl out there who has not been kissed by Hobson does not meet with much favor in society now.

A CONVICT in the Ohio penitentiary claims to have discovered perpetual motion. The model of his machine is running very nicely, and no one is able to detect the secret of the mechanical wonder. He anticipates great profits from it, and will have it patented at once.

DURING the eleven months ending with November 30th, last, there were 19,480 deaths in Havana. This fact shows a terrible conditon of affairs in that city. When Uncle Sam gets full control there he will improve the sanitary conditions and reduce the death rate materially.

THE Dispatch and Post are making a strong fight in opposition to the high rate of taxation in Louisville. They want the people's burdens lightened as far as possible, but the Mayor sees things in a different light, and if the papers win their fight it will be "a famous victory."

SENATOR MCENERY, of Louisiana, says his seat in the Unitee States cost him only $5 90. It appears from this that they almost give away offices in the South, while in some parts of the country they cost very large sums. Supply and demand regulate the price of office in many quarters.

AND the Dingley tariff law is a greater deficit producer than was the Wilson bill. Under the first year of the Wilson bill the receipts were $152,158,617, while under the Dingley bill the receipts, last year, were $149,575,062. But Mr. Dingley says that in two years more the present tariff law will wipe out the deficit,

HOBSON'S reception at Kansas City, was a regular kissing carnival, 267 of the best looking women in the crowd submitting to the osculatory feature of the reception, while many were given a good hug extra. Lieutenant Hobson ought to be muzzled. His kissing performances are becoming ridiculous, and somewhat disgusting.

THE reports from Washington are to the effect that the Presidents speech at Atlanta, in which he suggested that the time had come when the Confederate cemeteries should be sustained by the Government, is meeting the approbation of many of the leading Republicans, and that the Committee on Military, of which Mr. Hull, of Iowa, is chairman will report a bill providing for the Government care of these cemeteries, and recommend its immediate passage. If the bill becomes a law, it will take a considerable load off of the southern people and to President McKinley they will ascribe all the praise and honor.

IT now appears that the treaty with Spain will be ratified without much trouble, but following the ratification will come a lively fight on the annexation question, and party lines will cut no figure in the contest, both parties being badly divided on that proposition.

IN 1869 a car-repairer in Louisville found the fragments of five $100 bills in a rat's nest in an old box car. He has been ever since that time trying to get the government to redeem the bills, which it has at last concluded to do, and in a few days he will receive $500 and interest thereon for thirty-four years. It will be a handsome Christmas present.

FRANK KNAAP, of New York, got drunk over in Berlin, and called Emperor Williams a sheepshead, for which he was arrested, but he escaped punishment, being excused because of his drunkenness. It is to be hoped Mr. Knaap will not desert the paths of sobriety entirely that he may escape punishment for expressing opinions of those in high places.

W. J. BRYAN, who is undoubtedly the Democratic leader of the country, advises the confirmation of the treaty with Spain, but opposes annexation of foreign territory. His visit to Washington, a few days since, removed all doubt as to the fate of the treaty in the Senate, and its ratification now appears to be a foregone conclusion, but look out for trouble after that.

HYDE PARK POST, G. A. R., of Dubuque, Iowa, has unanimously indorsed President McKinley's Atlanta declaration that the time has arrived when the Federal Government should assist the Southern States in caring for the graves of the Confederate dead. A copy of the resolutions were telegraphed to the President. They take a different view of it from some of the other Posts.

WHEN John D. White gets his contest under way before the Congressional committee he will tell a great deal about how his party conducts elections in the eleventh district. White has had a long political experience in that Congressional district, and he carries a mouth that can give a vivid description of the methods that prevail during campaigns and immediately after election day.

THE chairman of the Indianapolis Monetary Conference has been to Washington urging the calling of an extra session of Congress for the purpose of currency reform legislation, but the President is said to have given him no encouragement. Currency reform was dropped immediately after the last Presidential election, on account of the party in power being divided beyond a reconciliation on that question.

CONGRESSMAN BERRY is much pleased with the progress of his bill to have the Licking river locked and dammed as far as Falmouth is making. He calculates that when the river is locked and dammed the farmers in Pendleton county will save $18,000 per year in the single item of freight upon their tobacco, the shipping of which now costs them $2 50 per hogshead by rail, while by river it will cost only fifty cents per hogshead.

THE campaign for the Democratic nomination for State offices is now assuming shape, and there will be several candidates for each nomination to be made. The contest for the head of the ticket will be a warm one, and upon its result depends the fate of several of the candidates who are seeking the nominations that will follow that for Governor. Each of the four sections of the State will have a full set of candidates in the field.

ACCORDING to the laws of this country Congressman elect Roberts, of Utah has an excess of wives, which fact is causing his right to a seat in Congress to be seriously questioned. Now if the opposition to him becoming a real Congressmen was confined to those who are to be his collegues, it might be claimed that it proceeds from jealousy, but as many women are taking an active part against Mr. Roberts, the fight against him by the males can be considered made on purely legal grounds.

INDIANA has never been represented in the United States Senate by a native born citizen, but there is now a prospect of making a political change in that particular. Two of her natives are candidates for that office and one of them will win the prize, and after an existence of eighty years the Hoosier Commonwealth will be able to say she has a Senator of her own breeding.

AS the year is now about closed the RECORDER desires to express its appreciation of the contributions of its many correspondents during the year. Their department is the most interesting feature of the paper, and they are solicited to continue as heretofore with as much regularity as they can conveniently. The neighborhood news is the first to claim the attention of the readers each of whom is always glad his locality represented. The RECORDER now wishes each and everyone a happy new year.

COL. ROOSEVELT tells this story: "One day last spring I and Lieutenant Sharp went out buying auxillary cruisers. We spent about $7,000,000. It began to rain. 'Sharp,' I said, 'I have only four cents in my pockets.' 'Lend me 1 cent or 8 cents, will you, so that I can ride home?' Sharp answered: 'I havn't a single cent,' and I answered him: 'Never mind, Sharp; that's why we will beat the Spaniards.' It isn't every country where two public servants could spend $7,000,000 and not have a cent in their pockets after they are through."

MARDECAI WILLIAMS, who was defeated by Mr. Pugh for Congress in the Ninth District, has announced his determination not to contest Mr. Pugh's seat. Williams was, no doubt, defeated fairly by a small margin, but it was large enough, and his disinclination to enter a hopeless contest places him in a better light before the people than a fruitless effort to pervert the will of the people of his district would. Williams lost by ten votes and yields to the will of the voters, but John D. White, the Republican who was defeated by a Republican in the Eleventh by many hundreds of votes, intends to contest Boreing's seat in Congress on the grounds of fraud.

SENATOR TILLMAN, of South Carolina, is very decided as to his position regarding the Philippines. He says, when interviewed in regard to the island:

"What, do you expect me to vote for a treaty which gives the Spaniards $20,000,000 for something they don't own and can't deliver? No, sir, I am not going to vote away $20,000,000 of the people's money for a lot of niggers, a lot of islands we do not want and a pile of scrap iron. We have troubles enough of our own with our own niggers in the South, and all coons look alike to me, whether they come from South Carolina or the Philippines. "What!" he shouted again, "pay Spain $20,000,000 because we licked her; no sir, I will not be a party to any such infamous bargain."

THE National Racial Protective Association held a meeting in Washington, last week, and adopted resolutions criticising President McKinley for not taking cognizance in his message of "the killing of prominent Republicans on the eve of the election in North and South Carolina." The Association is composed of colored men, some of whom made sensational speeches, that of F. Thomas Fortune, of New York, being decidedly so. Among his remarks was the following: "I came down here to fight the President. He has gone back on us. I want the man whom I fought for to fight for me, and if he doesn't I feel like stabbing him," when several in the audience shouted: "Stab him!" It is such speeches as that made by Fortune that render the speaker contemptible among men, and the colored people who endorse Fortune's sentiments are draw-backs to the advancement of their race in this country, and until they abandon such dangerous leaders they may expect to fall short of the respect of the whites.

CHURCH NEWS.

There are forty-seven Chinese temples in the United States.

Rev. Martin D. Hardin, son of Gen. P. W. Hardin has been tendered a church in Minneapolis, with a salary of $4,000 a year.

Elder Charles E. Powell, of Augusta, Ga., has been called to the Christian Church at Lancaster. Elder George Gowan resigned to do evangelistic work in the South.

Rev. Beagle, of Georgetown college, has been called to preach at the Oak Ridge Baptist church the coming year. Rev. Ecton, who was called last month, was unable to accept the call, his time being already occupied.—Williamstown Courier.

A conference of prominent Catholics was held at Washington. Nearly all the delegates called on President McKinley and asked him to take steps to protect Spanish prisoners, among whom are many priests and monks, in the Philippines.

Rev. John Wray, of Milledgeville, Ga., has been called to the pastorate of the Danville Baptist Church made vacant about a year ago by the resignation of the Rev. J. W. Lynch. Mr. Wray is only twenty-six years old, but has already made a wide reputation.

Elder George Darsie, pastor of the Christian Church at Frankfort, preached his twenty-first anniversary sermon Sunday week and gave the following facts concerning his congregation: Membership 643; raised for all purposes, $4,591.74; added during the entire 66 years of the church's history 1,486; during his ministry, 966.

Some time ago there was published a report that Rev. W. D. Cox, formerly of Daviess county, had been killed by cowboys while preaching in Texas. The Central City Republican has a copy of a Texas paper which states that Mr. Cox is alive and well, and is a great friend of the cowboys of the section where he is at work, and they are very much devoted to him.

The Cumberland Presbyterian concludes an editorial on the present status of the Mormon church with these words: "Nobody knows anything about the purposes and spirit of the Mormon church, particularly no man who has seen Mormonism as it is in Utah believes that our troubles with polygamy and its kindred evils in Mormonism are over."

THE President is very much gratified over the enthusiasm with which he was received while on his recent tour of the South, and expects much good to result to the country at large from his southern tour. The dispatches from Washington say that about the only people who are not pleased with the President's trip are a lot of over-zealous would-be leaders of the negroes, chiefly in that city and New York. They claim that President McKinley humiliated their race by his action in the South, in accepting the hospitality of cities where no colored men were given places on the reception committees. But while these negroes take that view of the matter the President considers that the negroes in the South, as a class are happier than those in other parts of the country, and will not call on Mr. Fortune or other carpers of his color to write speeches for him to deliver when traveling in the Southern States.

THE Georgetown News, of last week, was the color that is said to be very aggravating to bulls.

CAMPAIGN.

General Nelson A. Miles was examined, one day last week, by the War Investigating Commission. Gen. Miles made frequent references during his examination to notes. The work of providing for the disembarkation of the army in Cuba was left to General Ludlow.

General Miles said: "He had secured a number of pontoons and small boats that would have been all right for work in bridging small streams, but would have been of little service in a heavy surf."

General Miles said he was opposed from the beginning to landing a large number of men in Cuba during the rainy season.

Replying to Gen. Young's explanation that he had asked Gen. Wheeler for permission to move ahead to secure a good camping place, which permission was granted, and brought on the La Guasimas fight, General Miles remarked:

"Gen. Young could have camped on good high ground at Siboney, which was much better than the position occupied by the Spaniards. As I understood it, that all was done in direct violations of orders."

Gen. Miles' idea was that the operations were precipitated prematurely. He said he had cautioned Gen. Shafter not to allow his men to gather in the Cuban dwellings. He was asked to state what, in his opinion, caused the shortage in medical supplies.

"I have stated the facts," responded General Miles. "You can draw your own conclusions."

Miles said the rations sent to the soldiers in Cuba and Porto Rico were unfit to be eaten.

"Who was to blame for making it a part of the army rations?" asked Captain Howell.

"Ask the Secretary of War." replied Miles.

"Congress provides for fresh beef. It was fresh beef," remarked Colonel Sexton.

"No sir it wasn't fresh beef. There was a pretense that it was sent as an experiment.

He thought possibly the refrigerated meat, by reason of the chemicals supposed to be used to preserve it, might be responsible for the great sickness in the American army. From official reports General Miles read statements that this beef had an odor exactly like an embalmed dead body.

General Miles said he had recommended sending troops to Chickamauga Park but had no idea that 75,000 men were going to be sent there. He replied to the statement of the Adjutant General about the selection of the camps. General Corbin had credited the selection of Camp Alger to General Miles. The latter said: "I had nothing to do with Camp Alger."

Our public men brag about this country's vast export trade. We have sent so much produce abroad during the last few years that millions of gold must be sent back to square the account. Grain, meat and cotton—direct products of the farm—make up an immense proportion of our exports. Our statesmen like to pat the farmer on the back with this statement, and tell him that it proves that he must be prosperous. He might be more prosperous if they would see to it that better men are sent to represent this country abroad. Our relations with foreign countries are based, to a great extent, upon the food and fiber we can sell them. We should have representatives abroad who are capable of enlarging and increasing this trade. The American consul who causes two pounds of American lard, ham, butter or grain to be sold where one was sold before, does something for his country. There was a time when it was considered wise to pension our third-rate poets and prose writers by sending them to fill small offices in foreign lands. Better keep them at home to learn American ideas. Send men over the sea who will study foreign markets rather than foreign manners.—Rural New-Yorker.

ANOTHER very old negress has died in this State, and she like all other old colored persons, remembered the father of this country quite well. They have a faculty of remembering Washington if nothing else, it seems.

A WATCHWORD FOR THE NEW YEAR.

WHEN you find a certain lack
In the stiffness of your back
At a threatened fierce attack,
Just the hour
That you need your every power,
Look a bit
For a thought to baffle it.
Just recall that every knave,
Every coward, can be brave,
Till the time
That his courage should be prime—
Then 'tis fled.
Keep your head!
What a folly 'tis to lose it
Just the time you want to use it.

When the ghost of some old shirk
Comes to plague you, and to lurk
In your study of your work,
Here's a hit
Like enough will settle it:
Knowledge is a worthy prize;
Knowledge comes to him who tries—
Whose endeavor
Ceases never.
Everybody would be wise
As his neighbor,
Were it not that they who labor
For the trophy creep, creep, creep,
While the others lag or sleep;
And the sun comes up some day
To behold one on his way
Past the goal
Which the soul
Of another has desired,
But whose motto was: "I'm tired."

When the task of keeping guard
Of your heart—
Keeping weary watch and ward
Of the part
You are called upon to play
Every day—
Is becoming dry and hard—
Conscience languid, virtue irksome,
Good behavior growing worksome—
Think this thought:
Doubtless everybody could,
Doubtless everybody would,
Be superlatively good,
Were it not
That it's harder keeping straight
Than to deviate;
And to keep the way of right,
You must have the pluck to fight.
—St. Nicholas.

FOR TOMMY.

IT WAS New Year's eve, but the tramp did not know that. He was tired and hungry. He had been walking all day and had not been well treated. At many houses he had been turned away without ceremony, at others work had been offered. Only one woman had taken him in and fed him for nothing, and she had given him soda bread which always disagreed with him, and cold tea. The profession was not what it had been cracked up to be, thought the tramp, and he began to think that the burglar had the best of it after all. He had always called himself an honest man, and he now and then split wood, when he could not get food without, but, after all, was honesty the best policy? He knew burglars who had their little houses as neat and pretty as anyone would ask to see. Texts round the walls, too. "God bless our Home," and all that. The tramp liked a pretty text. This very afternoon he had been walking with a burglar—they separated when they came to the village in mutual though friendly distrust—who was going home with a New Year's present for his little boy—a gold watch it was. He had taken it from an old curmudgeon who kept it locked in a box doing no good to anybody. That burglar was going home to have a cozy time with his wife and child, and here was he, a tramp, an honest man, and not able to get a bite of supper. Decidedly, tramping was not what he had been led to believe it. He thought he should try stealing, after all, he stopped, full of thought, and looked around him.

A bright light shone from the window of a cottage hard by; the blind was up; the tramp stepped to the window and looked in. A neat, bright, cozy kitchen, a little old woman busy over the stove. No sign of masculine presence anywhere.

"I'll try here!" said the tramp.

He opened the door without knocking and went in. The little woman looked up. "Good evenin'!" she said. "I didn't hear ye knock. What can I do for ye?"

"I want some money," said the tramp hoarsely, for he had made up his mind now.

"Well, I haven't got a cent!" said the little woman, "and if I had I wouldn't be fool enough to give it to you. So there it is, you see! But you can do something for me!" she added, brightly. "You've come just in the nick of time. I want this soup taken to a sick boy round in the next street. His mother is sick, too, and can't cook things nice as he ought to have 'em; hasn't menns to get 'em, neither, I expect; and I set out that he should have something good and hot to go to sleep on and begin the new year with nourishment inside him."

All the time she was talking the little woman was busy getting out a bowl and cover and finding a clean napkin.

"Here!" she said, and she poured some of the steaming broth into a small cup. "See if that ain't good! I guess likely 'tis."

The tramp glowered at her, but drank the broth and said it was good.

"Then you take this!" said the little woman. "Go round the corner to the fourth white house and say it's for Tommy. What ye waitin' for?"

"I didn't come here to do errands!" said the tramp.

"Yes, you did!" said the little woman, sharply. "That's just what you come for. I've been waitin' the past half hour for the Lord to send some one—I can't go out at night myself, fear of the asthmy—and He's sent you. Reckon He knows what He's about!"

She pushed the tramp out gently but decidedly and shut the door on him.

"Well, I swan!" said the tramp.

He carried the bowl safely to the fourth white house from the corner. Once, indeed, he stopped on the way and muttered to himself.

"Tommy!" he said, and his tone expressed deep injury. "You'd think they might have called him William, or something else. There's names enough, you'd think, without hittin' on Tommy. But that's the way! A man don't have no chance!"

A horse and buggy stood before the white house, and when he knocked the door was opened by a short, square man with "doctor" written all over him.

"What's this?" asked the doctor.

"Soup!" said the tramp, "for Tommy!"

"Who sent you?" asked the doctor. "Old woman, brown house round the corner? All right! If she sent you I suppose you are a respectable fellow. Just jump into my buggy and drive to 140 Gage street! Give this note to my wife—Mrs. Jones—and bring back the medicine she will give you. Hurry, now! I can't leave this boy, and I've been waiting half an hour for somebody to come along."

He nodded, and shut the door.

"Well, I swan!" said the tramp again.

He pocketed the note and drove rapidly away. He did not know where Gage street was, but a few questions put him on the right track, and after a drive of some minutes he drew up before a neat white villa standing back among shrubberies.

A lady answered his ring. She began to speak before she saw him. "Why, John!" she cried. "Did you forget your key? I heard the buggy wheels — O, mercy! Who is this?"

The tramp gave her the note, which she read quickly.

"Yes," she said, "O certainly! I will get them at once. And while you are waiting"—she looked at the tramp, doubtfully. "The doctor sent you—it must be all—I wonder if you would be so very obliging as to look at the furnace for me? Our man is gone off; I don't know where he can be, and I am sure there is something wrong. The house is cold as a barn, and I can't leave the baby more than a moment, and my girl is sick. If you would be so kind!"

She showed him the cellar door and ran to get the medicine.

The tramp stumped down the cellar stairs, shook the furnace thoroughly, put coal on and shut it up.

When he went up the fire was burning well, and the doctor's wife was waiting for him with a packet and a cup of hot coffee.

"You must be cold," she said. "And I am so much obliged. I cannot imagine where Thomas can be."

"You're a lady, mum," said the tramp.

On the way back he was hailed by a woman who came to her gate with a shawl over her head.

"Say, mister, was you goin' anywheres near the post office?"

"Most probably I was," said the tramp. "I'm in the delivery business to-night."

"Then if you'd post this letter for me I'd be a thousand times obliged to you. It's to my son, and he'll fret if he don't hear from me New Year's day. Thank you, sir! I hope your mother feels comfortable about you this cold night."

The tramp winced at this. He said nothing, but took the letter and went.

As he drove by a street lamp a rough voice called to him to stop. He checked the horse, and was aware of the burglar with whom he had walked and talked a few hours before.

"Hello, pal!" said the burglar. "You're in luck! Seems to me you was the feller that was goin' to stay an honest man, was you? And got a team a'ready! That's smart business. Gimme a lift!"

The tramp grunted and shook his head.

"I'm on an errand," he said, "for a sick child."

"Sick granny!" said the burglar. "You go shares or I'll give you up."

He grasped the horse's bridle as he spoke, and his looks were ugly enough.

"All right," said the tramp. "Jump in."

He threw back the robes and held out his hand. The burglar left the horse's head and was in the act of springing into the buggy when a well-planted blow sent him sprawling on his back in the road.

The tramp drove on rapidly. "Some folks ain't no sense of what's right and fittin'," he muttered. "There's a time for everything. That's Scripture."

He found the doctor waiting at the door of the white cottage.

"Sharp's the word!" said the doctor. "I was getting uneasy, my man."

"So was I," said the tramp. He explained that the hired man was gone and the lady had asked him to see to the furnace.

"Gone, has he?" said the doctor, and his face darkened. "Then that's the last time. He needn't come back, the tipsy rascal."

Again he looked keenly at the tramp, who was shifting a buckle of the harness in a very knowing way.

"Know anything about horses?" he asked.

"Reckon," said the tramp.

"Who are you, anyhow?" asked the doctor.

"Well, I was wonderin'," said the tramp. "I took care o' horses five years. I been sick, and since then I been tranpin' a spell. To-night I started out to be a burglar, but I ain't had no chance. I might as well go back to work again and done with it."

"I think you might!" said the doctor. "Come in and help me with this boy. He's pretty sick, and his mother's not much better."

"Well, it's all in the night's work," said the tramp. "I'll be dreasmakin' before I get through with this."

He stepped inside, but stopped short at the bedroom door with a white face. A child's voice was heard within, asking for water.

"Who's that?" asked the tramp, staring at the doctor. "Whose voice is that?"

"Tommy's," said the doctor. "Tommy Trent."

"O, my Lord!" said the tramp. "How did he come here?"

"His mother came some weeks ago," said the doctor, "to get work in the mill. Good, steady woman. She was doing well till she fell sick, and then Tommy took this fever. Nice boy, Tommy. Do you know anything about them? They seem to be quite alone. There was an older son, I believe, but he seems to have got into bad ways and gone off. Do you know anything about Mrs. Trent?"

"Reckon," said the tramp. He hid his face against the wall for a moment; then he turned upon the doctor with flaming eyes. "Something's ben after me to-night!" he said, fiercely. "Things is all of a piece! I don't say what it is. You may call it the Lord if you're a mind to. I shan't say nothin'. I tell you I ain't had no chance." He put the doctor aside with one hand and slipped noiselessly into the low room.

"Tommy," he said, softly, "how's things?"

The sick boy started up on his elbow with a cry, looked, then fell back on his pillow laughing and crying. "It's all right!" he said. "Mother, it's all right! I'll get well now! Father Jim's come!"

"Reckon," said the tramp.—Laura E. Richards, in Congregationalist.

TAXES AND DEFICIT.

Great Republican Revenue Measures Do Not Improve the Treasury.

The nation plunges voluntarily and eagerly into new financial liabilities of unknown extent while laboring under a long-continued and increasing revenue deficit. We must go back to the fiscal year 1893 to find the beginnings of a fiscal situation which is without parallel in the history of the country. The following table shows the extent of the deficit or excess of ordinary expenditures over ordinary receipts, since and including that year:

	Total Deficit.	Average Monthly Deficit.
1893.....	$ 1,766,994	$ 147,250
1894.....	72,353,448	6,002,701
1895.....	42,805,223	3,567,102
1896.....	25,203,216	2,100,270
1897.....	18,052,254	1,504,354
1898.....	100,733,127	8,396,094
1899 (five months.....	82,259,643	16,651,900

Thus from July 1, 1892, to December 1 of this year, the federal government has expended over $394,000,000 more than it has collected from taxation, and its present state in this respect is far worse than the first.

War will largely explain the huge deficit of the fiscal year, 1898; but the still larger deficit now being piled up, and amounting to above $83,000,000 for the five months since June 30 last, has been contracted after new sources of revenue have been tapped, to an estimated extent of from $125,000,000 to $173,000,000 a year, and under conditions as to army and navy expenses which now promise to become permanent and which this administration is striving to make permanent. Since hostilities with Spain were suspended and half the volunteer army was disbanded and the navy was practically put upon a peace footing, the monthly deficit has averaged over $10,000,000. It is now likely to remain indefinitely at nearly that figure under present conditions as to taxation and projected policies of imperial domain.

Two great revenue measures have been enacted within 18 months for the purpose of placing the government on a revenue-paying basis, and the government is as far from that position now as it ever has been in the six years of deficit. It is living on borrowed money to as great or a greater extent than ever.

The actual ordinary expenditures of the government in the fiscal year 1897 amounted to five dollars per capita tax of estimated population. The ordinary expenditures now prevailing are at the rate of nine dollars per capita of estimated population. The actual tax revenues collected from the people in 1897 amounted to about $4.80 per capita. The actual revenues which must be collected from the people under the projected policies of the McKinley administration will amount to nine dollars per capita yearly. We have been and are now paying our way partly on borrowed money. But this cannot continue without national bankruptcy. The full measure of the new financial burdens of the imperial republic is yet to be currently assumed by the people.

When these burdens are fully assumed through current taxation, it will appear that the actual federal tax burden upon the masses of the people has been increased by 87 per cent.—that federal taxes have been nearly doubled within two years. That is the amazing record to be written of Mr. McKinley's administration as it is now shaping the course of things.

These federal taxes are collected chiefly from consumption—instead of from income or property. They consequently fall upon the people in nearly equal weight or amount per individual, and are collected in unseen ways. If they were collected by federal tax gatherers from door to door, the administration of Mr. McKinley, under the policies it has voluntarily and eagerly projected, would be obliged to send forth its minions to collect $45 from each average family throughout the nation, where only $24 was being collected when Mr. McKinley came into power. The administration which undertook that collection would not live long beyond the time in which the people could get at it, and the imperial policies it was so complacently promoting would be buried under a furious popular uprising.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

BANK ROBBERY.

An Example of Republican Methods of Looting the Treasury.

It is alleged that Whitelaw Reid and Judge Day, of the peace commission, are to receive $100,000 each for their services.

That is about $25,000 a month and expenses, and is the best job these two eminent incompetents ever captured.

So far as the other members of the commission are concerned, they will have to be satisfied with getting the honor, the junket and the single salary which they are drawing as members of the United States senate.

This proposed payment of $100,000 each to Reid and Day is a fair sample of the kind of robbery which the administration stands ready to approve.

Reid is a millionaire many times over, having married a fortune with the daughter of D. O. Mills, and thus won an easy financial victory in this world of work and worry.

Day, who was never heard of outside of Canton, O., before he became a member of the president's cabinet, and who never earned as much as $5,000 a year when practicing as a country lawyer suddenly looms up as a man whose services are worth $25,000 a month.

The whole proposition is most outrageous and the people of the United States will regard it as a plain case of looting the treasury and of robbing the taxpayers in behalf of a rich man who doesn't need the money and of another man who couldn't earn that much in a lifetime if he lived a hundred years.—Chicago Democrat.

OPTIMIST DINGLEY.

The Great Tariff Doctor Sees Nothing Ahead But a Bulging Surplus.

Chairman Dingley's views of the national finances for the future are optimistic. While he declares that there will be no reduction of the war taxes before next winter at the earliest, he confidently predicts that "our dependencies," as he properly calls them, "will be practically self-supporting by 1899" and that "empire" will not materially permanently increase our expenses." He disposes of Secretary Gage's estimate of a deficit of $130,000,000 for the current fiscal year and of $30,000,000 for the year following by saying that the secretary, as a prudent man, puts the lowest possible estimate on revenue or income and the highest possible estimate upon the expenditures." To illustrate, he says that the secretary assumes that we will have an army of 130,000 for two years and that we are going to spend $48,000,000 for river and harbor improvements in 1900, whereas we are not going to have an army of more than 100,000 and the river and harbor expenditures will not exceed $25,000,000.

Mr. Dingley admits that the national expenditures will be increased for the time being in consequence of the war, but insists that, with $100,000,000 produced under the provisions of the war ways and means bill there will be a surplus in 1900 and that our dependencies after that will furnish their own "keep."

But Mr. Dingley fails to observe that, while Mr. Gage makes good allowance for expenditures in some directions, he has to leave out of account a number of important items which are not merely probable, but almost certain to appear in the next budget or as supplements to the one just submitted. For instance, he says nothing about the $20,000,000 which our Paris commissioners have agreed to pay Spain for a voracious elephant. He says nothing about the millions that the president wants to spend on an Isthmian canal and on ocean cables, and that he himself wants to spend to encourage Americans to build and sail ships. Mr. Dingley fails to observe that the reason given for spending these millions in hot haste is because we have been spreading ourselves territorially. It is for this reason, we are assured, that we need the canal and the cables and the ships without delay.

Mr. Dingley admits that we are going to need an army of 100,000 men. He could not very well do otherwise when the president unhesitatingly recommends that the regular army be increased to that number. It would not be an excess of prudence to estimate the increase in the standing army at 75,000 men. Since nobody pretends that there would be any need of increase if we had no dependencies to take care of, we must charge all this to the "empire." The cost of this additional force would be $75,000,000 a year, estimating in the usual way at $1,000 per man. But for service in the deadly tropics—deadly to men of the Caucasian race—the cost would be much more. A moderate estimate would be $100,000,000 a year. Mr. Dingley admits that he takes no account of increased expenditure on account of the navy. But it is no secret that it is proposed by the administration to add to the navy ships and armaments costing not less than $50,000,000. This, with the increased cost of maintenance, would be no small item, and it will grow to still larger proportions if Senator Davis' triple alliance is consummated.

Does Mr. Dingley suppose that we are going to make our dependencies pay all these costs? If he does he supposes that we are going to oppress them more than Spain ever did, though we may be more successful than Spain in applying the Hanna plan of getting the money out of them without letting them know what has become of it.

He will learn, if he does not already know, that the taxpayers of the United States will have to pay the most of all this. If we make the possessions pay the cost of civil administration, or such civil administration as our military governors may allow them, including the cost of schools and public improvements, we will go about to the limit. Most of the increased cost of army and navy, of canals, cables and what not will fall upon the shoulders of the American taxpayers.

And they may grow weary. Hence the necessity for making the most of the Hanna plan of filching from their pockets and leaving them to wonder why it is that the dollar they earn seems so small and inadequate when they come to lay it out for the necessaries and comforts of life. Hence we hear even the optimistic Dingley talk of getting rid of the stamp taxes as soon as possible. It will never do to have people reminded that they are paying a tax every time they lick a stamp.—Chicago Chronicle.

UP THE ALPS BY RAIL.

Contemporary Civilization Is Unmistakably Fulfilling Napoleon's Prophecy.

"There shall be no Alps," said Napoleon, and he dragged his army over them. Modern science has accomplished the same annihilation. The new electric railway up the side of Gornergrat, one of the highest peaks of the range, will be opened soon. So elated is the engineer with his success that he is already planning to build a road up the steep ascent of Mount Blanc, "the monarch of mountains." The road up Gornergrat is ten miles long and rises by a gradient of about one foot in five during most of its ascent, reaching its highest point at Ryffelalp station. This is situated on the ridge and is over 10,000 feet above the level of the sea and lies between Findelen and Gorner glaciers.

From Gornergrat the traveler has a view unrivaled throughout the Alps. It has long been the favorite excursion of Swiss travelers, who ascended it to Zermatt by a mule path with comparative safety and comfort. Beyond a footpath ascends almost to the top, but its dangers and difficulties forbid its ascent to all but the most intrepid mountain climbers. The new road, however, brings it within the reach of all.

Ryffelalp there overlooks the entire Findelen valley and the traveler might be well satisfied to return by the way he came. However, the engineer has been even more considerate. By reversing the direction of his train he carries you right down into and through the valley, bringing you back by a beautiful circuitous route to Zermatt.

The trains will be driven by electricity generated from the torrent that flows from the Findelen glacier, a huge pipe down the mountain side carrying the water at a high pressure to the dynamos beneath the bridge. The dynamos are capable of developing 4,500 horse power, and the current will be conveyed by overhead wires to the motors attached to the carriages. The bridge across the Findelen is unique, as it is 164 feet above the river, or 10 feet higher than the bridge at Fribourg, hitherto the highest railway bridge in Switzerland. The electrical motors will drive on to a central cogged rail, between the two ordinary rails, as the gradient is much too steep for the train to be driven by simple adhesion. —Boston Journal.

Forest Preservation in Bohemia.

After many centuries, during which the forests of Bohemia have furnished fuel and building material for a dense population, it is said that they retain nearly their primeval area. This is due to the forethought of the government in ordaining that as trees are cut down others shall be planted to fill the vacancy. The wood is mostly pine. Trees are constantly being cut, but wherever a clearing is made small trees are planted the next spring. These new trees are raised from seed in small inclosures scattered in the mountains and are thence transplanted.—Chicago Chronicle.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The Post Office Department About to Try a Unique Plan to Test its Usefulness.

The advocates of a system of rural mail delivery will be much encouraged by an experiment which the post office department proposes to inaugurate soon. The scheme takes the form of a traveling post office and specifications for the necessary kind of a vehicle will be issued in a few days. It is expected that the exterior will somewhat resemble the modern country stage coach, with three windows on a side, and will be labeled "United States Mail," in conspicuous letters. The body will be eight feet long, four feet across, and just high enough for a man six feet tall to stand erect inside. It will be a very light running coach, weighing but 600 pounds, and adapted to all kinds of weather—rain, hail, snow or blow, blizzards or red-hot summers. The personnel will consist of but two—the traveling postmaster and his driver. The letter will be mounted upon an ample seat in front, sheltered overhead and protected in wet weather by a waterproof covering. Entrance to the interior of the vehicle will be by a door on either side, which when shut will serve as the center of the three glass windows. These windows and another in front will make the office as light as may be desired by day, while a blazing lamp will do the same by night. The postmaster will be seated in the center of his office upon a revolving chair made stationary with the floor. Both before and behind him will be a working table and a complete set of post office pigeon holes. Under ordinary circumstances he will ride with his back toward the driver, there being more room at his rear table than at the front. Just above the rear table will be a closet with double doors. Inside will be shelves, a cash drawer, and drawers for storing stamps, postal cards, envelopes, canceling and other necessities, including a trusty gun for protection against the bold highwayman.

Grouped about this closet will be the smaller pigeon holes, among which mail matter for the rural inhabitants having houses or collection and delivery boxes along the route between post offices will be distributed alphabetically. Thus when the new post office on wheels approaches the farm of Josiah Bean, that gentleman's letters can readily found in pigeon hole "B," and when it comes to the box of Hezekiah Hathaway, who may live several miles up the crossroad, his letters and papers will be taken from compartment "H" and deposited in the slot of the box bearing his name. Beneath this rear working table will be larger pigeon holes, each bearing the name of a regularly established post office on the circuit. Upon arriving at each office the traveling postmaster will take all matter out of the box and present it to his host, the stationary postmaster. This pioneer post office on wheels will be so equipped that it may, if needs be, traverse the country under control of only one man with composite duties of carrier, collector, postmaster and driver. All along the route will be distributed letter boxes of a novel design, each bearing the name of its owner, who may fasten it outside the gate leading up his lane or at the point where the road leading to his farm joins the route of the post office.—Farmers' Review.

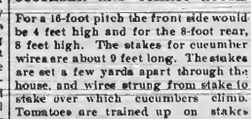
TREES AND MOISTURE.



The Old But Ever New Question of Watering at Transplanting Discussed Once More.

A correspondent of Green's Fruit Grower says: "I have planted, perhaps, a million of trees in my lifetime. I have met with but few failures, and cannot remember having watered any of these trees. If the soil is made thoroughly fine before planting; if the soil about the roots is pressed in very firm, as firm as a fence post; if the soil is left loose on the top, and kept continuously loose by cultivation, the trees will live even though the season may be dry." In connection with this paragraph it may be noted that, on one occasion within the experience of the writer, a large number of trees that had been planted in the spring, and had grown tolerably well, showed signs during the following very dry summer of wilting their leaves for want of water. An examination seemed to show that although the trees had been well planted in the common acceptation of the term, yet the earth in many cases was not packed closely around the roots. It was not convenient to water them. The owner was recommended to pound the earth around the trees with a heavy paving rammer. This was done. It is almost impossible to convey an idea of the force used on this occasion. A force was exerted fully equal to that employed by the regular rammers in paving the streets. The earth being very dry was reduced to fine powder by this process, and moisture was drawn upward by capillary attraction. In a couple of days afterward, there was not the slightest sign of wilting, although no water had been applied, and they continued to grow without any evidence of suffering for want of water until the next rain came. Had the soil not been heavily beaten in this way, their death would have been absolutely certain.

FORCING VEGETABLES.

The Style of House Most Favored for This Purpose by the Market Gardeners of New England.

The market gardeners of Worcester county, Mass., have a handy style of hot house for forcing all sorts of vegetables. During winter lettuce and beets are marketed, and cucumbers and tomatoes started. The plan herewith shows diagonal pieces from center of bed to center of glass. Houses may be of any length, but that of C. L. Harishorn, from which our plans were taken, is 200 feet long. The house is 20 feet wide, the roof having a 12-foot pitch. Others have a 16 foot front pitch with 8-foot pitch at the back.

CUCUMBER AND TOMATO HOUSE.

For a 16-foot pitch the front side would be 4 feet high and for the 8-foot rear, 8 feet high. The stakes for cucumber wires are about 9 feet long. The stakes are set a few yards apart through the house, and wires strung from stake to stake over which cucumbers climb. Tomatoes are trained up on stakes along the edge of path and bed. Raising early vegetables thus becomes simple, and where markets are good has been found more profitable than any branch of farming.—Farm and Home.

Slicing Roots for Stock.

Wherever roots are largely grown, a root slicer that will cut up in good shape a bushel of roots in two minutes' time is almost a necessity. It will leave the roots so that cows, horses and sheep can get the most good from them. Cattle, especially, are likely to become choked by three-cornered pieces of root, which are common when the root is cut by the old-fashioned way of throwing the roots in a measure and chopping them with shovel, hatchet or some other broad-faced cutting instrument. If there are enough roots grown to make a root slicer necessary, there ought also to be bought at the same time a small power engine to do this and many other light jobs of work that on most farms are yet too often done by the exercise of human muscle.

How to Dry Up a Cow.

To dry up a cow, reduce the feed, take away the grain, and when the milk yield drops, milk first once a day, then once in two days, and in two weeks the average cow will be dry and her udder in good condition. With persistent milkers there is seldom difficulty if hay only is fed for a time. If a cow continues to give milk under this treatment or if the udder is hard and feverish, the work of drying up must stop, and the ration be changed to a light milk ration, with loosening feeds, and the cow milked regularly. Forced drying up under these conditions injures the cow. If by oversight the drying up process has been neglected until within three or four weeks of calving, do not attempt it, as there is risk of injury to the health of the cow and her udder.

Spraying with Kerosene.

The San Jose scale is constantly spreading in all directions and in some parts of the south is destroying the peach trees. No satisfactory spraying material except kerosene has been discovered, even whale-oil soap emulsion failing to get all the insects unless very carefully applied. The application of kerosene is not safe for the tree, although a newly-invented spraying pump promises to make it safer. This pump is so constructed that it mixes the oil with water in the nozzle and allows a very light coat of kerosene to be applied. This should be done on bright days in the winter while the buds are dormant, and under favorable conditions works very effectively.—Farmers' Voice.

Samples of merchandise carried by a traveling salesman are held, in Kansas City, P. & G. R. company vs. state (Ark.), 41 L. R. A. 333, not to be baggage within a statute regulating charges on excess baggage.

The reasonableness of an ordinance prohibiting a person to ride a bicycle with handle bars more than four inches below the top of the saddle is held, in Moore vs. District of Columbia (D. C.), 41 L. R. A. 206, to be a question of fact to be determined by evidence.

An agreement by one who sells a business and its good will that he will not engage in the same business in the United States for 25 years is held in Larkin Rule company vs. Friengeli (O.), 41 L. R. A. 185, to be invalid, as tending to create a monopoly.

Failure to equip freight cars with self-couplers is held, in Greenlee vs. Southern Railroad company (N. C.), 41 L. R. A. 399, to constitute negligence per se. It is also held that this is continuing negligence which will preclude the defense of the brakeman's contributory negligence.

Soapsuds, hot and strong and freely applied, are the best defense for roses and other plants against their enemies in the window garden.

The Allelhuia plant is a popular name, used in Europe, says the Semaine Horticole, for one of the herbaceous oxalis (O. acetosella). The title has been bestowed upon this plant because it flowers at or about the Easter season.

If one has patience, sprinkle, sprinkle, sprinkle every day; twice a day is better, reaching the under side of the leaf. If on wash day you dip them, hands down, in the suds, and then rinse in the last tub, you will be rewarded with big, fat, sweet roses.—Florence Holmes, in Success with Flowers.

THE CHARM OF MUSIC.

Its Effects Were Very Agreeable to the Fellow Who Was Catching Fish.

A fisherman once took his cornet to the lake with him, in hopes that his harmonious notes would have a hypnotic influence in attracting the fish to his hook.

As soon as he had set his lines he raised the cornet to his lips, and soon made the welkin ring with some of the latest popular airs, but without the expected result of gaining bites.

"Perhaps I don't play long enough," he thought. So he blew his cornet louder, but still no nibble.

"Confound it!" he exclaimed. "Where are all the suckers to-day?"

At that moment he glanced to the opposite extremity of the lake, where he saw another angler pulling in fish hand over hand, who, seeing he was observed by the cornetist, shouted: "Bravo! Encore!"

"I am glad that somebody appreciates my music," thought the man with the cornet. So, again raising the instrument, he accommodated the luckier fisherman with another effort.

"Again! Again!" shouted the second fisherman.

"Is my music so great?" hallooed the cornetist.

"No," replied the fisherman, "but it keeps all the fish over at this end of the lake."—N. Y. World.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 24th, 1898.

Our little boy was afflicted with hip disease, or bone ulcer, when he was about three years old. He suffered severely for a year and nine months. We had seven different doctors for him, but they could not cure him. They took out one piece of bone about 3½ inches long, the shape of a shoe, and one smaller piece. The hole in his hip was about 3½ inches deep, and the sore kept running all the time. The doctors ordered us to keep the hole filled with cotton, saturated with some kind of medicine. This we did, and used a probe to insert the cotton. We could introduce the probe about 3½ inches; and found by moving the probe about that there was a large cavity next to the bone, and we could feel the bone with the probe. The child was very pale, thin and weak and could not sleep, and we had no hope of his recovery. The treatment we gave him under the doctors' directions did him no good. We finally commenced using Allen's Ulcerine Salve and it soundly and permanently cured him in about six months. He has been well about four years and is strong and quite fleshy, but limps a little on account of one leg being a little shorter than the other. He is a picture of health, and runs, scuffles and plays with other boys as though nothing had been the matter with him. We believe Ulcerine Salve saved his life.

Swift Retribution.

There was a wicked leer in Meandering Mike's eye as he saw the little girl coming out of the restaurant side door, carrying a small tin pail. "The idee!" he exclaimed to his comrade, "of incouraging sich luxuries in de young." "It's our duty to stop it," was the rejoinder. Before the little girl could turn the corner the tramp loomed up before her and exclaimed: "I'm sorry, lady, but I couldn't see ye carryin' dat pail any furder. It's agin me gallantry." The little girl began to cry. Mike seized the bucket and in a moment had the bottom of it pointed toward the blue sky. The effect was volcanic. Foam flew in all directions. His one ejaculation solved the mystery: "Soap suds!" And when the restaurant proprietor came out and desired to know why his children could not blow soap bubbles without being interfered with the victim of poetic justice had not a word to say.—Washington Star.

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

Women Everywhere Express their Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Mrs. FLORENCE A. WOLFE, 515 Mulberry St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with what the local physicians told me was inflammation of the womb. Every month I suffered terribly. I had taken enough medicine from the doctors to cure anyone, but obtained relief for a short time only. At last I concluded to write to you in regard to my case, and can say that by following your advice I am now perfectly well."

Mrs. W. R. BATES, Mansfield, La., writes:

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhœa and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

Abe Clore is nursing a mashed toe during Cristmas.

Ab Quick owns and rides in the handsomest cutter we saw on the road.

Edgar Markland and family ate rabbit and drank sassafras tea with us last Sunday.

The ice houses of this vicinity have all been filled with a good quality of from six to eight inch ice.

Harry Dinn accompanied Pro. Hann to his home near Harrison, Ind., where they will spend the holidays.

Called on John Kelsey at his sanctum, the other day. John is writting a poem entitled "Turkey Strategy."

Mrs. Isabella Davis received an ugly fall during the icy spell. Luckily she was not hurt as badly as was supposed.

If the weather should continue favorable, Casper Ernst will get all of his corn husked and in the crib by New Year's day.

In order to get the benefit of a sleigh ride, d uring the snow, every vehicle from a wheelbarrow up was subsituted for a sleigh.

This is the time of year when stone masons are not so particular as to what cut of meat their butchers give them, just so it is liver.

John Clore is suffering from a painful bruise of the shoulder, received from a heavy cake of ice striking him while filling an ice house.

Harvey Miller and Add Batterson, between them, husked five shocks of corn in one day, last week. Of course they got an early start to do it.

Cecil Hafer, who is attending Medical College in the city, and his friend, a Mr. Wilkinson, spent Christmas with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hafer.

Our Friend, Philip Falk, of Union, made us a brief call, last week. He was out in the interest of the Covington Commonwealth of which he is agent.

Prof. Hann gave his scholars a nice treat in the way of banauas, peanuts, candy, &c., last Friday evening. Quite a number of visitors were in attendauce and enjoyed the treat as well.

Henry Quick and Mike Dye have entered into a copartnership in the sled and sleigh manufacturing business. With their force of mechanics they are prepared to turn out anything from a sleigh bell up.

Among those who swelled their bank account from the Christmas sale of poultry is our friend, Elijah Tanner, who butchered and dressed 36 turkeys of the bronze breed, and realized 25 cents clear profit on the lot.

Never in the recollection of man was there such a display of Chistmas toys, candies and fruits as could be seen at the two stores in Hebron, last week. It would make one's mouth shed tears just to inspect them.

Charlie Rugenbogen says, so far, the weather of this winter reminds him very much of the winter of 1897. He helped to fill several ice houses in May that year. Should this be a similar winter parties who have not filled their ice houses need feel no inconvenience, as there will be plenty of opportunities yet.

Some person or persons made an attempt to get in Mike Rush's meat house one night last week, and no doubt would have succeeded had not his dog (a powerful bull) scented them and come to the rescue. By the time Mike got out the thieves had fled, leaving the whole front part of an overcoat with the dog.

While being unavoidably detained at Burlington a few days during circuit court, we had the pleasure of sharing the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs Geo. Blyth, at their palatial residence in the suburbs of the town. We take great pleasure in recommending these good people to the public as a good place to get a square meal or other accommodations for the night. We were informed that they desired a limited number of regular boarders, besides on court days they would be happy to entertain as many as will come for dinner. So please give them a call.

Utzinger.

Dec. 26.—Miss Beulah Gaines, who arrived home from Georgetown a few days since, entertained quite a number of friends Xmas day.

Mr. Alf Chambers, assistant postmaster at Ludlow, will spend Xmas at home, at his old game—checkers.

We are glad to welcome our old friend, Jimmie Kirtley, home for the holidays. After Xmas he will go to Virginia to complete his education.

During the happy season, while we are enjoying prosperity and the good things of life, let us all remember any sick or afflicted about us, and each one do some act of generosity or kind deed that will make some heart glad or lessen the burdens of those less fortunate than ourselves.

Dr. A. P. Walton, of Cincinnati, spent Christmas day with his parents here. He is looking fine, and is fast establishing himself among the first dentists of the city. We are justly proud of our young men, who so few years ago were boys amongst us, but who now, many of them, are in the front ranks of their professions in other places.

The Bullittsville correspondent takes the cake over all of us as a writer, but he gets a whole lot of it off our plate. We don't kick, for we enjoy reading after his ready pen, and are glad that he has reconsidered his resolve to bridle it until after the holidays, thereby makiug us glad twice, more than we would have been.

The writer has been over the ocean wave, tempest tossed and very nearly stranded since his last appearance in these columns. He is glad, in deed, that others have kindly come to his assistance in this, his hour of need, and have furnished some very interesting items from our favored section. We certainly have a flood on in the matter of news from here. May it ever be thus. We started out last Wednesday morning to prepare for the coming holidays in a substantial way, full of energy and buoyant spirits, at the gait of a three year-old, and the first thing we did was to step solidly on the point of a nail which penetrated our foot to the depth of at least an inch. We slackened our speed somewhat at this juncture. We then went to Petersburg, where our wound was skillfully treated and we returned home, little dreaming that there was more trouble in store for us, but when descending from a hay loft our foot slipped and we fell, badly crushing our left side. Then our speed was lackened more than ever, and, instead of our once constant source of employment since last April, in scorching sun and drenching dew, and lost the road with it. Arriving at our place of destination, we found the second party to the trausaction absent from home. We unloaded, however, and set out in search of the aforesaid second party, which was unsuccessful, during which time we became somewhat alarmed as to the safety of the object of the aforesaid year's labor, and set about to recover possession of it, in which, by good fortune, we succeeded in doing after much fatigue, the neglect of an ever abiding appetite and loss of the sweet restorer, we landed at home —sweet home, wiser but badly torn up. We love to farm, ordinarily, but at this very momeut the business looks blue and its charms are flickering like a lamp just before its light goes out. We hope, however, before the happy season of feasts of turkey and oysters and all the good things that are in store for us is gone, we will return to our former bouyancy of spirit, and that the experiences of the past few days many of them will pass out of mind like a sad dream. R. E. PORTER.

Verona.

E. E. Fry will soon begin traveling in the interest of the Deering Harvester Company.

J. J. Brumback, a former resident of this place, but now of Jackson county, is visiting here.

Lewis Pennifil is nursing a badly bruised foot, caused by a falling timber while working on J. B. Finnell's barn.

The Christmas tree at the public school Friday night, was well attended, and was much appreciated by both old and young.

The League Institute gave an exchange social Thursday night. All who attended gave a present and received one in exchange. It was a very enjoyable affair.

Cecil Waller, aged 13, daughter of Oscar Waller, has attended school eight years, in the last six of which she has neither been tardy nor absent a single time. What other pupil in the county, or even in the State, can beat her?

Kirby West is expected home from Exeter, N. H., to spend his vacation. After attending the League Institute two years, he left last fall to enter Exeter College, and was admitted to the senior class and is making a good record in that institution.

The matrimonial fever still prevails here.

Mrs. Chas. Horrell has been on the sick list several days.

Dan Vest, of Elwood, Ind., arrived here Saturday to spend the holidays.

Russell Hume has been quite sick since he came home, but is better now.

Rev. Hughes filled his regular appointment here, Saturday and Sunday.

Bro. Hodge Hudson, of Wilmore College, came home last Thursday to spend the holidays with relatives and friends.

News was hatched on Sunday, that Jno. S. Johnson expired, last Saturday evening, and will be buried today, (Monday) at 11 o'clock, at New Bethel.

Bellevue.

Few from here attended circuit court.

Mrs. Mike Clore is very poorly at this writing.

Those sick at our last writing are convalescing.

W. S. Acra, of Woolper Heights, was spending the day Sunday in McVille.

Fred McAtee has recovered from his attack of typhoid fever, and is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Mora Huey is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Frank Grant in Baltimore, Md. where she will remain about 2 months.

May the prosperity of the RECORDER and all his correspondents and readers enjoy the New Year, is the wish of your scribbler.

Mrs. A. Corbin and sons finished packing 100 hogs, last week. Huey & Co., have packed considerable over 100 porkers this season.

Harry Acra, of Scattersville, was with us last Friday. He says that boy is able to provide for himself. What Harry says, you know is so.

At the last meeting of the Bellevue Masonic Lodge, the ladies who contributed so much to the success of the banquet given by the lodge on the 13th ult. were extended a vote of sincere thanks for their assistance.

We all think that Mr. Riley has the right man with his grocery wagon, not saying anything against the former ones; but there is so accommodating and polite that the ladies are able to buy of him, and others are leaving word for him to come to their houses which are off of his regular route. That speaks well for him.

Christmas is at hand. How many of us, who only a few months ago-yes, only a few days ago—were anticipating a happy Christmas, have had our houses saddened by death? But to those dear ones, who have been taken, God has given greater joy than this world affords. Therefore, dear friends, let us console ourselves with the truth.

Wm. Deck is confined to his bed with typhoid fever.

A happy New Year to the RECORDER and its many readers.

Some one worked the rabbit foot on John T. Marshall. He will explain.

Chas. Birkle spent Christmas day with his sister near Lawrenceburg.

Miss Susie Staley is the guest of friends in Cincinnati during this week.

Albert Kelly, who has been confined to his bed for two weeks, is able to sit up.

Alma Corbin, who has been confined to the house for six weeks, is able to be out.

Miss Eva Botts is spending vacation with her relatives and friends at this place.

Nat Rogers and his sister, Lizzie, are guests of their sisters and other relatives at Louisville.

Christmas came and went with its usual festivities, peace and harmony reigning in our little village.

Quite a commotion among a few of the tobacco growers of this vicinity was occasioned by the failure of one Long.

The good people of this community had an opportuuity, recently, to show their charity, and most nobly did they respond.

Rev. Utz's health is not very good, in consequence of which his church granted him an indefinite vacation, his salary to continue.

A. D. Williamson has tobacco, some of which is on exhibition here, that measures three feet when stripped, and is of very fine quality.

Mrs. Julia Smith and daughter received a nice Christmas gift from Peebles & Co., Cincinnati in the way of groceries, fruits, nuts, etc.

Mrs. Neal has moved to the country with her sisters and brother, and John Saudford is occupying her property, having moved in on the 23d.

Fred McAtee and wife, of Buffalo, Ind., have been guests of their parents during the past week. We are glad to see Fred so far recovered as to be going about.

Accept congratulations, Bro. Mathews. May your shadow uever grow less, and may your sorrows be few and pleasures many during your brief journey here below.

The writer, accompanied by thirteen friends (unlucky number) with as many guns recently repaired to the hill near this place, known as Centennial, where rabbits plenty doth abound, (some places three to every twenty feet square), after having appointed Wm. Arnold captain, we formed ourselves into line and began to rout them and opened fire, the weeds being so thick you could not see a rabbit farther than ten feet, and the way we did mow them (the weeds) was marvelous. After having gone back and forth across the field of battle, we summed up the following results: One hundred rounds, fifteen rabbits and hearty laughs innumerable. No accidents serious. The captain accompanied by Ed Maurer, who was appointed jumper, got too far in advance and claimed to have gotten a few shot but not wounded. A. B. Corbin was heard to halloo, "hold on boys till the smoke clears away."

Walton.

Dec. 25.—John C. Ambrose has taken his family, Mrs. Ambrose, Mrs. Emma and Master Sidney Ambrose, to spend the holidays at the farm, South Fork.

Judge J. E. and Mrs. Phoebe Botts and son Clifton, had their Christmas with the Judge's father-in-law, Mr. Walter Wilson at Bank Lick.

Miss Mary Vernon Jones was too happy yesterday when she took her departure for a visit to her grandfather, Mr. James Poor at Independence.

Miss Edna Ransler came home from Hamilton College, Lexington, the other day looking so fresh and lively in her college uniform and so much improved by her four months' sojourn in the blue grass metropolis as to be almost beyond recognition—the cherry tone of her voice unmistakably aided recognition.

Miss Mable Bagby, of the Georgetown College, is at home for the holidays, with greatly improved health, larger and stronger than when she left us in the beautiful autumnal season. She is delighted with the college, being in both the junior and senior classes. She mentioned with some little exultation the fact that in one of her classes, Greek, that she was the only girl of 20 students in the class; adding with the most charming naivete (no English word so well expresses it) "So you see it's all my way."

Both of the young ladies cheerfully acknowledged the benefit they derived from the careful training of Mrs. Myers of Walton Academy. Leon Pryor, brother of Mrs. Myers, is also home from the Georgetown College, greatly improved in health and appearance. It may be that Mrs. Myers' thorough course with all three has made their collegiate labors much lighter, and they find it easy going to maintain the high standing they have attained in their classes.

Mrs. Susan Stephens yesterday afternoon, noticed two men, she thought they were from Verona, lying across the track of the L. & N. Railroad, just this side of the old cauning factory, and a north bound train whistled for Verona. She ran to Mr. Jas. Cross' blacksmith shop to get him to go and get them off the track. Cross hastened to their rescue and arrived just after the locomotive whistled at Roberts' bridge. Another man, probably the track walker, reached them just as Cross did and together they rolled them (both very drunk off the track and down the embankment, when the iron horse snorted over the place that came so near being the scene of another railroad horror.

In conversation with Mr. Kirtley Roberts, this morning, he said that Alonzo Plunkett had young chickens a few days ago. Told him it was impossible, as only hens have young chickens according to the uniform observation of all poultry breeders.

R. F. Blase has been sending out some very handsome calendars with heavy wooled sheep in the foreground. A graceless wretch, who received one, observed that it would be as well if some of the wool represented on the sheep's picture had been transferred to the all-wool clothing he sometimes sells.

Little Miss Genevie Holborn, of Louisville, gave a Christmas eve social yesterday to her juvenile friends at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Rice. It was a grand success.

From the number of handsome gowns one of our stylish mantua makers has been and is yet turning out, it is fair to infer that there will be some festive scenes for the RECORDER in next week's issue. No amount of questioning of some young lady friends could make them reveal anything further than that it was almost certain there would probably be several socials or receptions, but they would only know of them on the day they would occur—a kind of dark horse affair as the men folks would say.

Mr. R. A. Welsh, who beat Mrs. Jones out of two weeks board and some of our citizens out of the advance payments on making application for insurance in the National Royal Fraternal Co., with home office in St. Louis, was seen in Eminence, the past week, but he pulled his hat down and turned his head to avoid being recognized.

CURES PILES

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The kick of double tax on same land is only a spring for the moneyed man. The man that buys a farm that is actually worth $5,000 pays $1,000 cash, and gives his note and mortgage for $4,000 does not know whether he is going to get his money back or not—10 to 1 he will lose what he has paid on it. He has all the disadvantages, yet the law requires him to pay taxes on its full value, and on something he only expects to get. The one that sells the farm and the note is safe—has nothing to lose—has all advantages and the law protects him in the same. His note is actually money. He can convert it into money before or when it is due. Now, to have a law that would exempt taxation on such notes would only be giving this man the advantages over the one who has bought the farm to the amount of whatever the tax may be on the one hundred. This would be unjust—to tax a man for something that he expects to have, and not tax a man for what he has and can get at any time. Don't pass a law to give the moneyed power advantages over the poor. They have it already.

Mr. Thomas D. Finnell, an operator for many years on the Southern railroad, stationed at Erlanger, died in Lexington at an early hour Tuesday morning. Thomas Finnell was raised in Georgetown, and was a son of Mrs. Mary A. Finnell, who resides on East Main street. He was considered a fine operator, and by his close confinement to business soon lost his health. He had a number of friends in this city, as well as in Erlanger, who deeply regret his death. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and kind and loving father. The funeral services took place at the residence of his mother, Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Victor Dorris, assisted by Rev. J. Taylor Moore. The pall-bearers were, W. A. Gaines, A. B. Barkley, Lee Jenkins, Asa Nutter, F. W. Wolfe and D. A. Adams.—Georgetown News.

At a called meeting of the pea-nut club, one night last week, the proper manner in which to dress turkeys for the holiday trade was fully discussed, the leaders in the discussion being C. L. Crisler and Tony Bentler, two experienced dealers, although the former some time since retired from the business. Crisler advocated scalding the fowl before plucking the feathers and Bentler claimed that the proper way to dress a turkey is to dry pick it. The discussion was lengthy and sometimes heated, being concluded at such a late hour that the taking of a vote on the subject was postponed until the next meeting.

So far Christmas has been very quiet.

Hiram Long, who has been handling tobacco for several years at his warehouse on the Burlington and Florence pike, near Hopeful church, has failed, and all his property is tied up by attachments sued out by his numerous creditors. The filing of suits was begun early last Friday morning, and by noon a dozen or more petitions had been filed and attachments issued thereon, the largest creditor being the Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co., the claim of which is $5,600. Several parties delivered their tobacco only the day before the crash came. F. P. Walton, of the Utzinger neighborhood, hauled his tobacco to the warehouse last Thursday, but Mr. Long not being there to pay for it when it was unloaded, refused to deliver it, but unloaded it and took a written statement from Mr. Long's agent that the tobacco had not been received, but was held for Mr. Walton, who spent a good part of the day trying to get to see Mr. Long, but without success. Friday morning Mr. Walton sent a team to the warehouse and reloaded and hauled his tobacco home. The suits filed Friday amounted to nearly $10,000 and there are numerous other creditors. At last accounts Mr. Long's whereabouts was unknown, the last time he was seen was last Thursday, in Cincinnati.

Circuit Court.

Fannie Hampton, of Florence, was given judgment against the Citizens Insurance Co. of Northern Ky., for $400. Rosa King, of Walton, was given a judgment against the same company for $500.

Several judgments were rendered in which sales of land were ordered to satisfy them.

The following divorces were granted: Ira Theetge from Edna Theetge.

B. F. Merrick from Katie Merrick.

Susie B. Norman from Edward Norman.

A. M. Edwards from Fannie Edwards.

The T. A. Snyder Preserves Co. doing business at Walton, and the company's superintendent, W. H. Metcalf, was each fined $10 for contempt of court in violating an injuction against the company, sued out by Mrs. Emma Beemon, over whose land the drainage from the company's factory passed. The plaintiff claimed the drainage from the factory was very objectionable and damaging to her land and stock.

In the case of S. L McFee against John Strassel the plaintiff's attachment was sustained and she was given a judgment against the defendant for $301 87. Strassel had been Mrs. McFee's tenant for several years. In 1896 a large stock burn on the farm was burnt, and Strassel wanted a larger reduction in his rent than Mrs. McFee was willing to give, and to have the matter adjusted the suit was brought. Mr. Strassel now occupies a farm he purchased in Ohio.

THE Massachusetts Gipsy Moth Commission has spent $200,000 this year fighting the destructive bug and wants a similar sum for next year.

M. TROUILLOT, late French minister for the colonies, has been the victim of a queer bit of spite, the barristers of his district having disbarred him by virtue of a forgotten law that forbids any lawyer from accepting a salaried position. As the French ministers are all paid officials, and many of them lawyers, a general application of the law would be disastrous.

A DECIDED novelty in the way of newspaper enterprise is announced from Lapland. The first paper in that country has appeared. It is written upon a single sheet of paper and is published every Sunday at a town with an unpronounceable name. Up to the present the journal has only half a dozen subscribers and every issue is welcomed with loud applause.

HENRY III. issued the first current gold in England in 1247. It was of pure gold, passed for 20 pence, and was called a gold penny. The next current gold coin issued—the florin—was issued by Edward III. in 1344. Guineas were issued by Charles II. in 1663, and continued to be coined till 1817, when they were superceded by sovereigns. The gold sovereign was first coined by Henry VII.

THERE are at present several old convicts at Fremantle (Westralia) jail who, though their time has long expired, live on there. They give as their reason that all the people they knew in the old country must be long since dead, so they prefer to remain where so much of their life has been spent. The old fellows are allowed to go into town, but must be back in time for lockup.

DUTCH fishermen make astonishing catches by means of the following very simple plan: They put a number of live worms and insects in a bottle partially filled with water, and then cork it securely. The bottle is dropped into the water, the fisherman sinking his line alongside. It appears that the sight of the wriggling contents of the bottle so excites the appetites of the finny tribes that they fall easy victims to the baited hooks.

A BRANCH of agriculture which is claiming much attention from the farmers and others in St. Bernard, La., and which promises to reach a state of high development within the next few years, is orange culture. The fact that many are preparing to lay out young trees by the thousands is proof sufficient that the industry is destined to become an important factor in the agricultural resources of St. Bernard.

THE recent wreck of the steamship Mohegan on the Manacles, near the Lizard, has led to the suggestion that the disaster was due to the magnetic influence of these rocks on the ship's compass. Among those who favor the view that the ship's compass was at fault is Prof. S. P. Thompson, of England, who hints that it is conceivable that in adjusting the compasses before the voyage the compensation had been applied in the wrong direction.

BIG game is said to be extraordinarily plentiful in the region of Fashoda. The river swarms with crocodiles and hippopotami, while great herds of antelopes of various kinds and giraffes are frequently met with. The latter fact is particularly interesting, as most of the zoological gardens in the world are in want of a specimen of the North African giraffe, which they have been unable to obtain, owing to the closing of the central Soudan for so many years.

THE leather which is used to tip the hammers of the best pianos is of a remarkably soft quality. It is prepared by a family of tanners in Thuringia, Germany, by means of a process, the secret of which they alone possess. The skins are procured in this country from one kind of deer—the gray deer of the northern lake district. Any other buckskin is useless. An agency in Minneapolis supplies the German tanners with hides, and they are such good customers that they have no others.

THE annual statistics published by the French ministry of agriculture indicate that the consumption of the flesh of horses, mules and donkeys is steadily increasing in Paris. The number of stalls at which it is offered for sale now reaches 193. The number of horses brought to the shambles for slaughter was 21,667, of mules 53 and of donkeys 310, but 734 horses, a mule and seven donkeys were condemned as unfit for human food, so that the total killed and consumed was 20,993 horses, 51 mules and 303 donkeys. The prime cuts fetched about a franc a pound.

THE long, dreary Russian winter has fairly set in, but it has at least five or six months to run, and already we hear of present distress and impending famine. The Russian grain crop failed this year and the millions of peasants, who have none too much to eat in the best times, are on the verge of starvation. How serious the trouble is may be judged from the report that the czar has given $350,000 apparently, from his private purse, for the relief of the destitute, and this is only a first contribution. Charitable America will have another chance to feed Russia this winter.

AFTER NEW POSSESSIONS.

Government Determined to Hoist Our Flag Over Wake Island, in the Pacific—Orders Issued to Capt. Taussig.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The government has determined to hoist the flag over another island far out in the Pacific ocean and orders were sent out Friday afternoon to the commander of the Bennington, Capt. Taussig, to proceed at once to take possession in the name of the United States government of Wake island, lying in latitude 19 north; longitude 166 east. It is distant about 2,000 miles from Nihau, the westernmost of the Hawaiian islands, and 1,300 miles east from Guam. It is almost in a direct line between these possessions of the United States, and is admirably adapted for use as a station for a Pacific cable to connect the Philippines with Hawaii and the United States. It is about three miles in length and encloses a lagoon of salt water. The average height of the island is eight feet above high tide. It is scarcely capable in itself of sustaining life, but it is expected that a cable station can be maintained without difficulty by the erection of a condenser to supply fresh water.

Some station in this locality is deemed to be absolutely necessary to the maintenance of a cable, and for that reason the American peace commissioners at Paris endeavored to secure one of the Caroline islands but without success. Wake island is said to be by right already American territory, for in 1851 Adm. Wilkes surveyed the place and asserted title. It is not inhabited so far as known at the present time though in the past some guano gatherers have temporarily lived on the island.

The Bennington is now at Honolulu and the orders to her go out by steamer. After hoisting the flag on Wake island she will proceed to Guam and make the survey of the island which was ordered some time ago. She has already completed a survey of Pearl harbor, seven miles from Honolulu, which will form the foundation of the government plans for the enlargement of the harbor there and the straightening of the channel connecting the inner harbor with the ocean.

SAGASTA'S CONDITION GRAVE

Believed He is Suffering From Bronchial Pneumonia—Queen Regent Sends Her Own Physician to Attend Him.

MADRID, Dec. 24.—The condition of Senor Sagasta, the premier, now causes grave anxiety. Six physicians were in consultation Friday afternoon regarding his case and concurred that he is suffering from bronchial pneumonia, with high temperature and an unfavorable absence of expectoration. The newspapers express great sympathy.

There is no doubt that his illness is aggravated by the train of recent events. The queen regent twice during the day telephoned inquiries as to his condition and Friday evening sent her own physician to attend him.

The list of callers at the premier's residence includes all the foreign diplomats and a host of other distinguished persons.

Senor Groizard, minister of justice, is acting premier.

DEATH RATE IN HAVANA.

Between Fifty-five and Seventy-five People Die Daily—Sufferers Lie in the Streets Owing to Overcrowded Hospitals.

HAVANA, Dec. 24.—This city's death rate is astounding. There are between 55 and 75 deaths here each day, the majority from malarial fever, typhoid claiming the next largest number of victims, and pernicious fever about the same. The civil register Friday showed a total of 49 deaths in this city in the last 24 hours, and two parishes, where the death rate was usually high, made no report. The mortality last week was at the rate of 18 in every 1,000 of the population. This week it will be higher. In New York the rate is only 22 deaths per annum for every kind of population. All the hospitals are overcrowded and no more patients can be received. Sufferers lie in the streets.

Ex-Surgeon General Hamilton's Condition.

Penalty For Miscegenation.

GREENUP, Ky., Dec. 24.—Harvey Messer, an inmate of the infirmary here, it is charged, tried to pass raised money on the postmaster here. He was arrested by secret service officers and taken to Ashland Friday for trial.

A LARGER ARMY.

Standing Army of 30,000 Men, 12,000 Artillery, 6,000 Cavalry, Etc.

Fifty Thousand Additional Troops to Be Enlisted for Two Years—Present Volunteers to Be Mustered Out of Service Within Sixty Days.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The bill for the increase of the regular army which the minority of the house committee of military affairs will offer as a substitute for the Hull bill, was drawn by representative Hay, of Virginia, and is now in the hands of the war department, where an estimate is being made of the cost of such a military establishment as it provides. The bill, as drawn, provides for a standing army of 30,000 men, 12,000 artillery, 8,000 infantry, 6,000 cavalry and engineer, ordnance and signal corps and general staff. To meet the existing exigency for troops in Porto Rico, Cuba, the Philippines, Hawaii and the Ladrones, the bill provides that the president may issue his proclamation for 50,000 additional troops to be enlisted for two years. These latter troops are to be commanded by officers appointed by the president. The organization is to be the same as in the regular army, the strength of the different arms of the service to be determined by the president. The present volunteers are to be mustered out within sixty days after the passage of the act, but volunteer organizations now in the service shall be given preference for enlistment in the new volunteer army if they so elect within 15 days. The bill provides that no regular army officer who was in the army prior to the war with Spain shall be mustered out of the service.

Mr. Hay will file the bill and the minority report on the Hull bill Friday with the clerk of the house. The main contention the report will make for the minority plan as against the Hull bill for a standing army of 100,000 men is, that the future of the Philippines and Cuba are yet undetermined, but that if the standing army is increased to 100,000 it will be almost impossible, no matter what may happen in the future, to reduce it. The report will say that a standing army of 100,000 men will cost the people of the United States $165,000,000. This added to the $145,000,000 for pensions will bring the cost of the military establishment up to $310,000,000; the largest charge in the world for a military establishment.

The naval establishment would bring the total up many millions more. Mr. Hay estimates that a standing army of 30,000, with 50,000 additional volunteers, would cost $100,000,000, but this charge might continue only for two years. The creation of a volunteer force for temporary purposes would always keep it within the power of congress to adjust the strength of that force to existing conditions.

MAJ. HARRISON'S REPRIMAND

The Flag He Raised Over Fort Atares Ordered Down by Gen. Lee, But It Still Floats.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—Maj. Russell Harrison, the provost marshal, who on Tuesday raised the stars and stripes over Ft. Atares without orders and in contravention of the promise of the United States evacuation commissioners that no Americans flags should be raised in Havana or its suburbs until January 1, was Thursday formally reprimanded by Maj. Gen. Lee and instructed to lower the flag. Lieut. Lee reported a few hours later to headquarters that the flag had been lowered. Nevertheless, at 4:30 p. m., it was still flying on a tall staff over the famous fort, plainly visible from the harbor and city.

THE CUBANS ARE READY.

They Will Accept Any Just Regime That is Furnished by the United States Treating Them Justly.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The Havana correspondent of the Times, in the course of a letter published Friday morning, says:

"President McKinley will have an unfettered hand here. A majority of the Cubans are prepared to accept unreservedly any regime treating them justly and insuring the tranquility of the island.

"The Spanish residents also are contented to accept the inevitable, believing that their interests will be protected and themselves fairly treated. Therefore, the way is clear to establish any system of government the Washington authorities may see fit to impose."

Maxwell Given the Decison.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—Sammy Maxwell, of San Francisco, was given the decision over Martin Denny, of Australia, at the end of a 20-round contest before the Excelsior club at Woodwards pavilion Thursday night.

Steamer Andes a Total Wreck.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 23.—The steamer Andes, of the Atlas line, went ashore here Thursday. The high wind and heavy seas prevailing will probably cause the Andes to be a total loss if the tugs fail to pull her off.

THE EXCHANGE OF FLAGS

Programme Agreed Upon for the Surrender of the Cuban Government to the United States at Noon January 1.

HAVANA, Dec. 24.—At the joint meeting of the United States and Spanish military commissioners Friday the programme was finally agreed upon for the exchange of flags on January 1 at noon. Just before 1 o'clock the American war vessels will fire a salute of 21 guns in honor of the Spanish flags. Promptly at 12 o'clock Spanish flags on the public buildings will be lowered and immediately thereafter the Stars and Stripes will be hoisted over El Morro and the public buildings of the city, while Spanish artillerists at Cabanas fortress will salute the American flag with 21 guns, Spanish warships in the harbor participating in the salute.

At the same hour the Spanish troops, if any then remain in the city, will be paraded in barracks and will render proper salute to the American forces passing.

Just before noon the American and Spanish commissioners, Gen. Jiminiz Castillanos, the Spanish captain general, and the American ranking officer in Cuba—Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke, if he arrives in time, otherwise Maj. Gen. Lee, will assemble at the palace. The Spanish commissioners will then surrender the government to the United States commissioners, who will immediately transfer it to the American general commanding. After this the various functionaries will remain a while to receive those who may wish to pay their respects to the incoming authorities.

It was agreed at the joint meeting that the Spanish troops remaining in Cuba after January 1, should be considered in the light of foreign troops in a friendly country and to be accorded the privileges usually granted under international law.

WAR SHIP MASSACHUSETTS.

It Will Cost About $40,000 and Take Six Weeks' Time to Put the Vessel in Good Repair.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Navy yard engineers went under the battle ship Massachusetts in dry dock Friday and measured her damaged plates. Workmen were there also, cutting out rivets. Repair work will proceed night and day next week. It is estimated it will cost about $40,000 to put the ship in order and that the work will take six weeks. The board of inquiry, of which Commodore Pickering is president, finished its work Friday and forwarded the report to the secretary of the navy. None of the members would say anything about the findings upon which will depend the decision of the secretary of the navy as to whether court-martial will be ordered.

CLAYTON-BULWER TREATY.

It Will Be Abrogated and a New Agreement Between the United States and England Will Be Negotiated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—All danger of further friction between the United States and Great Britain over the construction of the Nicaragua canal will shortly be removed by the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Your correspondent is in a position to authoritatively state that Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, has received or will receive within the next few days, positive instructions to enter upon the negotiations with Secretary Hay for the abrogation of the convention referred to and the preparation of a new treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of the canal.

THE CASE OF H. CLAY KING.

The Venerable Murderer of Frank Poston Must Die in Prison at Nashville—Gov. Taylor Refuses to Interfere.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 24.—Dozens of efforts have been made to secure a pardon for H. Clay King, but it looks like the life sentence of the venerable murderer will not be interfered with. Recently letters were secured from former Judge Dubose and Attorney General Peters to the effect that they think Col. King has suffered enough for the murder of Frank Poston, and former Gov. Buchanan, who commuted King's sentence from death to life imprisonment, was here advocating a pardon. Gov. Taylor refused, however, to reopen the case under any circumstances, saying he considered it closed.

Mrs. Carlisle's Sealskin Sacque Stolen.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—John G. Carlisle, ex-secretary of the treasury, appeared in a police court Friday as a complainant against Richard Leake, a cab driver. Mr. Carlisle accused Leake of stealing a sealskin sacque belonging to Mrs. Carlisle and valued at $300. Leake was held for trial.

DIAMOND REEF.

Court of Inquiry Investigating the Grounding of the Massachusetts.

Impossible for a Ship the Size of the Massachusetts to Leave New York Harbor Without Touching Bottom. Especially at Low Tide.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The naval authorities have learned to their dismay that it is not possible for one of our big battle ships, like the Oregon or Massachusetts, to get out of New York harbor during extra low water, such as prevailed when the latter battle ship struck on Diamond reef a short time ago. To aid the court of inquiry now in session at New York trying to ascertain the responsibility for the grounding, the navy department called upon the coast survey for special measurements of the water in the harbor near Diamond reef and upon the rock itself.

The report of the superintendent of the survey has just been received and it shows in the opinion of the naval officers that it is not possible for a ship of the size of the Massachusetts, and with her maneuvering qualities, to get out of the harbor without touching the bottom when the tide is ebb and the wind strong. The ship must pass on the Brooklyn shore of Coenties reef and then cross over to the channel between Diamond reef and the New York shore. The turn is too short for the Massachussetts to make and the best water to be found in the best course she could pick on the day she touched was one foot and four inches less than the draft of the ship as she started, namely 26 feet, 9 inches. Of course these conditions are not normal in the harbor, but they may occur on any low tide with the wind in a certain quarter, so the matter will be brought at once to the attention of congress with a view to securing the removal of the upper part of Diamond reef.

A FORMIDABLE ICE GORGE.

Shipping in the Harbor at Lorain, O., in Great Danger—Several Vessels Have Already Been Injured.

LORAIN, O., Dec. 23.—One of the most formidable ice gorges which was ever seen in Black river has been causing trouble and danger for the past 48 hours, and the end is not in sight. Each minute adds to the jeopardy of millions of dollars' worth of vessel property in the harbor. The tug Marinette has been splintered and a derrick scow disabled. The stern of the steamer Milda has been smashed in.

Wednesday night the second gorge broke and sent six of the large ore vessels down stream. These were caught by a tug and are being held against the immense weight of ice that is bearing down upon the fleet. The Nickel Plate railroad bridge will be demolished if another break occurs. Ice is piled up 15 feet high and covers several hundred yards.

Another gorge has formed about a mile above the present jammed fleet, and should this break all the boats above would be added to the present jam.

WRECK AVERTED BY A BIRD.

It Flew Against the Locomotive Headlight, Breaking It—The Train Ran Slowly Into An Obstruction.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 23.—The northbound passenger train on the I. & G. N. railroad narrowly missed a serious wreck 40 miles below here through the intervention of a bird. Some miscreant had tied a rail securely across the track. Just a few miles before reaching the spot a bird, blinded by the headlight, flew against the glass, breaking it and extinguishing the light. This neccsitated running slowly to the next station. The train proceeding at reduced speed, struck the obstruction, tearing up the track and damaging the front of the engine, but no one was injured.

A COLORED MAN MURDERED.

The Crime Was Committed by Two Unknown Men—Jealousy Supposed to Be the Motive for the Crime.

POCOMOKE CITY, Md., Dec. 23.—John E. Turner, a highly respected colored man of this place, was taken from his home early Thursday morning by two unknown men and brutally murdered. The affair has caused intense excitement among both white and colored, and, should the murderers be caught, fears of lynching are entertained. There is no clew to the murderers, but jealousy is supposed to be the motive for the crime. Turner and his wife have been living together unhappily.

Philadelphians Have the Grip.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—The grip epidemic has assumed formidable proportions. Physicians say that if the disease continues to develop as rapidly in the next few days as it has done in the last 48 hours there will be few families in the city that will escape.

The Remains Identified.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 23.—The remains of a suicide found near here is believed to be those of A. F. Hoffman, of Long Island City, N. Y. Deceased was about 45 years of age.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

It Came to a Man Who Used to Make Himself Solid with the Waiters.

"Brown had received a setback that he will not recover from for some time," said Dodson, as he sipped his coffee. "I honestly believe that he has corrupted every decent waiter in the city by his outlandish system of overtipping, making it almost impossible for a modest tipper to get any service at all.

"He had a habit of starting with the head waiter, and tipping them all down the line. I don't know whether he had ever tipped the dishwashers or not, but I have my suspicions that he did.

"The result has been that the waiters looked upon him as a sort of Indian naboh, or a returned king from the Klondike, and would pay no attention to anyone else when he was present.

"You might complain and storm all you liked, but it would have no effect. When Brown entered everything else was stopped until the imaginary specks of dirt were wiped from the immaculate table cloth and spotless china, and Brown seated in all his solitary glory at his favorite place, which was always reserved for him. But all that is changed now, and he is looking around for some anti-tipping society to join."

"Find a fly in his soup?" asked Smith.

"Worse than that. All his life Brown has been trying to get money enough ahead to build himself a home, and now he has discovered that the house he is renting is owned by his former head waiter."—Detroit Free Press.

JOYS OF CHRISTMAS.

What the Holy Babe's Escape Means to Humanity.

An Eloquent Holiday Sermon by Dr. Talmage from the Lessons of Herod's Efforts to Destroy the Christ Child.

(Copyright, 1898.)

In a most unusual way a scene connected with the nativity is emphasized by Dr. Talmage in this Christmas discourse; text, Matthew 2, 13: "Herod will seek the young child to destroy him." The cradle of the infant Jesus had no rockers, for it was not to be soothed by oscillating motion, as are the cradles of other princes. It had no canopy, for it was not to be covered over by anything so exquisite. It had no embroidered pillow, for the young head was not to have such luxurious comfort. Though a meteor—ordinarily the most erratic and seemingly ungovernable of all skyey appearances—had been sent to designate the place where that cradle stood and a choir had been sent from the heavenly temple to serenade its illustrious occupant with an epic, yet that cradle was the target for all earthly and diabolical hostilities. Indeed I give you as my opinion that it was the narrowest and most wonderful escape of the ages that the child was not slain before he had taken his first step or spoken his first word. Herod could not afford to have him born. The Caesars could not afford to have him born. The gigantic oppressions and abominations of the world could not afford to have him born.

The Herod who led the attack was treachery, vengeance and sensuality impersonated. As a sort of pastime he slew Hyrcanus, the grandfather of his wife. Then he slew Marianne, his wife. Then he butchered her two sons, Alexander and Aristobulus. Then he slew Antipater, his oldest son. Then he ordered burned alive 40 people who had pulled down the eagle of his authority. He ordered the nobles who had attended upon his dying bed to be slain, so that there might be universal mouring after his decease. From that same deathbed he ordered the slaughter of all the children in Bethlehem under two years of age, feeling sure that if he massacred the entire infantile population that would include the destruction of the child whose birthplace astronomy had pointed out with its finger of light. What were the slaughtered babes to him, and as many frenzied and bereft mothers? If he had been well enough to leave his bed, he would have enjoyed seeing the mothers wildly struggling to keep their babes, and holding them so tightly that they could not be separated until the sword took both lives at one stroke, and others, mother and child, hurled from roofs of houses into the street until that village of horseshoe shape on the hillside became one great butcher shop. To have such a man, with associates just as cruel, and an army at his command, attempting the life of the infant Jesus, does there seem any chance for His escape? Then that flight southward for so many miles, across deserts and amid bandits and wild beasts (my friend, the late missionary and scientist Dr. Lansing, who took the same journey, said it was enough to kill both the Madonna and the Child), and poor residence in Cairo, Egypt. You know how difficult it is to take an ordinary child successfully through the disorders that are sure to assail it even in comfortable homes and with all delicate ministries, and then think of the exposure of that famous babe in villages and lands where all sanitary laws were put at defiance. His first hours on earth spent in a room without any doors, and oftimes swept by chilled night winds; then afterward riding many days under hot tropical sun, and part of many nights, lest the avenger overtake the fugitive before he could be hidden in another land!

The sanhedrin also were affronted at the report of this mysterious arrival of a child that might upset all conventionalities and threaten the throne of the nation. "Shut the door and bolt it and double bar it against him," cried all political and ecclesiastical power. Christ on a retreat when only a few days of age, with all the privations and hardships and sufferings of retreat! When the glad news came that Herod was dead, and the Madonna was packing up and taking her Child home, bad news also came, that Archelaus, the son, had taken the throne—another crowned infamy. What chance for the babe's life? Will not some short grave hold the wondrous infant?"

"Put him to death!" was the order all up and down Palestine, and all up and down the desert between Bethlehem and Cairo. The cry was: "Here comes an iconoclast of all established order! Here comes an aspirant for the crown of Augustus! If found on the streets of Bethlehem, dash him to death on the pavement! If found on a hill, hurl him down the rocks! Away with him!" But the Babe got home in safety and passed up from infancy to youth and from youth to manhood and from carpenter shop to Messiahship and from Messiahship to enthronement, until the mightiest name on earth is Jesus, and there is no mightier name in Heaven.

What I want to call your attention to is your narrow escape and mine and the world's narrow escape. Suppose that attempt on the young child's life had been successful! Suppose that delegation of wise men, who were to report to Herod immediately after they discovered the hard bed in the Bethlehem caravansary, had obeyed orders and reported! Suppose the beast carrying the Madonna and the Child in the flight had stumbled and flung to death its riders! Suppose Archelaus had got his hands on the babe that his father had failed to find! Suppose that among the children dashed from the Bethlehem house tops or separated by sword of the enraged constabulary Jesus had perished!

Then, to begin on the outmost rim of my subject, Christmas festivities would never have been observed, Christmas carols never sung, Christmas gifts never bestowed, Christmas games never played, Christmas bells never rung. What an awful subtraction from the world's brightness would have been the making of December 25 like other days of the year! Glorious day! After brightening England and Holland and Germany for centuries it stepped across the sea and pronounced its benediction on our shores. Why, we never get over our childhood Christmases! Father and mother joined in them. They forgot their rheumatisms and shortness of breath, and for awhile threw off the sorrows of a lifetime while they struggled with us as to who should first in the morning shout the "Merry Christmas!" Then there were all the innocent allurements as to who brought the presents, and the wonderment as to how sleighs drawn by reindeer could come down the perpendicular, and afterward the disappointment as some older brother or sister, with all the pride of discovery, tried to persuade us that the chimney had not been the channel of generous descent. Oh, what times they were, the Christmases of our boyhood and girlhood days! We could feel in our pulses some of the exuberance which we then unwittingly stored up for future times, when the eye might lose some of its luster and the foot some of its spring and the heart some of its rebound. How holly and rosemary and ivy and mistletoe looked interwoven! The Puritans may not have liked the day, and John Calvin may have pronounced it superstitious and feared it would bring into religious observance the saturnalia of the heathen, the decorations of ivy inappropriate because ivy had been dedicated to Bacchus and mistletoe had been associated with Druidical rites, but we testify that Christmas never did us any harm, and the only objection we ever expressed was that it was so long a time from Christmas to Christmas. Ecclesiastical controversy as to whether it ought to be celebrated on the 6th of January, or 25th of March, or 29th of September, or 27th of December, did not bother us then any more than it bothers us now.

Can you imagine what a sacrification of the world's literature would be the removal of all Christ ever did and said? It would tear down the most important shelves of yonder congressional library, and of the vatican library, and of British museum, and Berlin and Bonn and Vienna and Madrid and St. Petersburg libraries, and St. Paul's life would have been an impossibility, and his epistles would never have been written, and St. John, from the basaltic caverns of Patmos, would never have heard the seven trumpets or seen the heavenly wall with 12 layers of illumined crystalization. Oh, wise men of the east, I am so glad you did not report to the imperial scoundrel at Jerusalem where the babe was, for the hounds would have soon torn to pieces the Lamb, and I am so glad that not only did you bring the frankincense and the myrrh to the room in that caravansary, but that you brought the gold which paid his traveling expenses and those of Joseph and Mary in that long and dangerous flight to Cairo, in Egypt, and paid their lodging and board there and paid their way back again! Well enough to bring to the barn of the Saviour's nativity the flowers, for they aromatized the dreadful atmosphere of the stables, but the gold was just then the most important offering. So now the Lord accepts your prayers, for they are the perfume of Heaven, but He asks also for the gold which will pay the expenses of taking Christ to all nations.

Still further remarking upon the narrow escape which you and I and the world had in the diversion of the persecutors from the place of nativity, let me say that had that Herodic raid upon the swaddling clothes been successful the world would never have known the value of a righteous peace. Much has been made of the fact that the world was at peace when Christ came. Yes. But what kind of a peace was it? It was a peace worse than war. It was the peace of a graveyard. The Roman eagles had plucked out the world's eyesight and plunged their beaks through the heart of dead nations. It was a peace like that spoken of by a dying Indian chieftain when a Christian home missionary said to him: "You have been a warrior and I suppose have been in many feuds, but you must be at peace with all your enemies in order to die aright." The dying chieftain replied: "That's easy enough. I am at peace with all my enemies, for I have killed all of them."

That was the style of peace on earth when Christ came, but the spirit of arbitration, which is to garland the tomb of this century and coronet the brow of the coming century, is consequent upon the midnight anthem above Bethlehem, two bars to that music, the first of Divine ascription, and the second of earthly pacification. "Glory to God and peace to men." In His manhood Christ pronounced the same doctrine: "Blessed are the merciful." Before the Bethlehem star flashed its significance the theory was: "Blessed is wholesale cutthroatery. Blessed are those who can kill the most antagonists. Blessed are those who can most skillfully wield the battleax. Blessed are those who can stab the deepest with spear or roll a chariot wheel over the most wounded or put his charger's hoof on the most dead." The entirely new theory of our Christ was blessing for cursing; prayer for those who despitefully use you; foundries to turn spears into pruning hooks, redhot furnaces to melt swords into molds shaped like plowshares. If gigantic acerbities and world-wide tigerisms had, without any Gospel opposition, gone on until now and been augmented by 1,898 years of ferocity, by this time what would this world have been turned into? You need not remind me of the awful wars since the opening of the year 1 of our Christian era, for if the earth has been [illegible] by Attila, through improved weaponry of death and more rapidity of fire, Prussian breechloader, which in 1866 startled the nations with unprecedented havoc, eclipsed by contrivances that can sweep vaster numbers to death by one volley, and telegraphy adding to gunnery new facilities for slaughter by instantly ordering armies to where they can do the most wholesale murder—I say if all this woe has been wrought, how much worse would it have been if the Christly revelation had not been let down from Heaven on five-runged ladder of musical scale, and there had been no preaching of good will all up and down Christendom for 19 centuries! The Bethlehem manger has given the most potent suggestion of peace the world has ever received. The cavalry horses cannot eat out of that manger.

I take another step forward in showing the narrow escape you and I had and the world had in the secretion of Christ's birthplace from the Herodic detectives and the clubs with which they would have dashed the Babe's life out when I say that without the life that began that night in Bethlehem the world would have had no illumined deathbeds. Before the time of Christ good people closed their eyes in peace while depending upon the Christ to come, and there were ante-diluvian saints, and Assyrian saints, and Egyptian saints and Grecian saints, and Jerusalem saints long before the clouds above Bethlehem became a balcony filled with the best singers of a world where they all sing, but I cannot read that there was anything more than a quieting guess that came to those before Christ deathbeds. Job said something bordering on the confident, but it was mixed up with a story of "skin worms" that would destroy his body. Abraham and Jacob had a little light on the dying pillow, but, compared with the after Christ deathbeds, it was like the dim tallow candle of old beside the modern cluster of lights electric. I know Elijah went up in memorable manner, but it was a terrible way to go—a whirlwind of fire that must have been splendid to look at by those who stood on the banks of the Jordan, but it was a style of ascent that required more nerve than you and I ever had, to be a placid occupant of a chariot drawn by such a wild team. The triumphant deathbeds, as far as I know, were the after Christ deathbeds. What a procession of hosannas have marched through the dying room of the saints of the last 19 centuries! What cavalcade of mounted halleluiahs has galloped through the dying visions of the last 2,000 years save 100! Peaceful deathbeds in the years B. C.! Triumphant deathbeds, for the most part, reserved for the years A. D.! Behold the deathbeds of the Wesleys, of the Doddridges, of the Leigh Richmonds, of the Edward Paysons, of Vara, the converted heathen chieftain, crying in his last moments: "The canoe is in the sea. The sails are spread. She is ready for the gale. I have a good pilot to guide me. My outside man and my inside man differ. Let the one rot till the trumpet shall sound, but let my soul wing her way to the throne of Jesus." Of dying John Fletcher, who entered his pulpit to preach, though his doctors forbade him, and then descended to the communion table, saying: "I am going to throw myself under the wings of the cherubim before the mercy seat," thousands of people a few days after following him to the grave, singing:

With heavenly weapons he has fought
The battles of the Lord,
Finished his course and kept the faith
And gained the great reward.

Of Pastor Emille Cook, the great French evangelist, who sat in my church in Brooklyn one Sunday morning, and in a few days shipwrecked and dying after his wife had said to him: "God will help you, my dear; He will give you peace," replying: "But I have it—peace, I have it!" Of Prince Albert, quoting with his last breaths: "Look of Ages cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee!" Of the dying soldier who had been shot through the mouth and could not talk, and when the chaplain approached him, motioned for pencil and paper and wrote: "I am a Christian, prepared to die. Rally round the flag! Rally round the flag!" Of John Brown, of Haddington, who said: "I desire to depart and be with Christ, and, though I have lived 60 years very comfortably in this world, I would turn my back upon you all to be with Christ. There is no one like Christ—no one like Christ. I have been looking at Him these many years, and never yet could find any fault in Him but was of my own making, though he has seen 10,000 faults in me. Oh, what must He be in Himself when it is He that sweetens Heaven, sweetens Scripture, sweetens ordinances, sweetens earth, sweetens trial." Of John Janeway, saying in his last moments: "I have done with prayer and with all ordinances. Before a few hours are over I shall be in eternity singing the song of Moses and the Lamb. I shall presently stand on Mount Zion with an innumerable company of angels and with spirits of just men made perfect, and with Jesus, the mediator of the new covenant. Hallelujah!" Some one ought to preach a course of sermons on triumphant Christian deathbeds, and then let some one preach a sermon on triumphant infidel deathbeds—that is, if he can hear or read of one of this latter kind. I never heard of one. Do tell us of one. There never was one. And had the Babe of Bethlehem died the same week in which he was born there never would have been a triumphant Christian deathbed. It is the wonderful story of Christ now rapidly filling the earth, that makes triumphant Christian deathbeds. The Bethlehem star had to give way before the rising sun which was to become the noonday Sun of Righteousness.

SIMILAR TO LUETGERT CASE,

The Murder and Partial Cremation of Mrs. [illegible] of the Dead Woman's Sister.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The coroner's inquest was begun Thursday in the case of Mrs. Michael Bollinger, who the police assert, was murdered and partially cremated by her husband. The accused man somewhat startled the police and spectators when confronted by Lena Hecker, the woman for whose sake the crime is alleged to have been committed, by stolidly staring at her and then declaring that he did not know her and had never even met her before. This action on the part of the accused man, coupled with his apparent utter indifference to his surroundings lead the police to believe that Bollinger is feigning insanity.

The Journal Thursday points out 20 points of remarkable similarity between the Bollinger case and that of Adolph Luetgert, now serving a life sentence for wife murder. Love of a woman other than the wife is asserted to have been the leading cause of both alleged murders. Each of the murders, it is claimed, was by strangulation. Both men, one of whom was a sausage maker and a Ger man, the other a butcher and an Austrian, quarreled continually with their wives, and both suffered business reverses prior to the alleged crimes. Luetgert and Bollinger were well acquainted with each other, and lived in the same quarter of the city. In the Bollinger case, as in that of Luetgert, a wedding ring will play an important part in the establishment of the corpus delicti. Mrs. Bollinger's body has been exhumed and her wedding ring cut from her finger.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 23.—Mrs. Ferdinand Nabicht, of this city, is a sister of Mrs. Michael Emil Bollinger, who is alleged to have been murdered by her husband in Chicago recently. Thursday night she dreamed that she was in her old home in Germany, and her father asked her if she had not heard of her sister being murdered in Chicago by her husband. In her dream she was transported back to Chicago and on arrival there she met her sister's daughter, who threw her arms about her and said: "They're taking papa away, and are going to kill him just like he did mamma. Save him."

Friday Mrs. Nabicht wrote her sister, and Wednesday night received a telegram announcing the murder of Mrs. Bollinger. The latter is said to have often written complaining of her husband's cruelty to her.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY'S PRESENT.

The Naval Commander Presented With a Handsome and Costly Sword in Philadelphia—Cost $4,200.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—Rr. Adm. Schley was Thursday night the recipient of a handsome and costly sword, scabbard and belt, presented to him in behalf of the people of this city and other cities in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, who contributed to a fund established for the purpose. The ceremony took place in the Temple Baptist church, and Col. A. K. McClure presided. The formal presentation was made by Miss Rena MacNeall, the 15-year-old sister of Private Harry MacNeall, of the marine corps, who distinguished himself during the battle of Santiago by clambering out on the muzzle of one of the cruiser Brooklyn's big guns during a heavy fire and removing a loaded shell which had become fastened in the breech.

There was a large and enthusiastic audience present and speeches were made by Gov. Hastings and Mayor Warwick on behalf the state and city.

Gov.-elect Stone also spoke in high terms of Adm. Schley and his achievements.

The admiral, in accepting the gift, thanked the people and said: "Let me hope with you that, in God's providence, it may never be drawn without reason, but if it ever should be so willed that it must be, it will never be sheathed except in your greater honor."

The sword, scabbard and belt represent a cost of $4,200. The blade is of fine Damascus steel, appropriately engraved and the hilt is elaborately decorated with diamonds and other precious stones.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 23.—The remains of Lieut. Commander Sumner C. Paine, U. S. N., retired, who died here Wednesday, were taken to Washington Thursday. He was executive officer of Commodore Dewey's flagship Olympia, just previous to the beginning of the late war.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—The bark Tacoma, with 111 horses and mules, besides a lot of material, sailed for Honolulu and the Philippines Thursday. She will stop at Honolulu and take on the animals she left there on her last trip.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—The military telegraph from Puerto Principe southward to Santa Cruz, the cable point, is nearing completion. Thus wire connection with Gen. Carpenter will soon be made.

CARLISTS ABOUT TO STRIKE.

They Are Organizing Into Small Companies [illegible] Spanish Government Trembles.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Senor Rafael Cortina, representative in the United States of the Carlist party, says Don Carlos is about to strike.

"We are on the eve of a decisive movement. I have just received a long cablegram advising me of the crisis and instructing me to observe the strictest reserve in speaking of the situation. It is not improper for me to say that when Don Carlos starts he will not stop until he reaches Madrid. The time for talk and warnings has passed. Now it is to be the actual warfare by which the rightful king is to regain his throne. The rotten, suicidal government of Spain is trembling. The people are with us, also the army and navy—not the high officers, of course, for they are waxing fat at the public crib. It will not be a bloodless war, but we are assured that it will conclude in a victory for us.

"There will be no trouble about finances. Don Carlos is rich enough himself to support the whole Spanish government if necessary and the onward-to-Madrid movement will not be hampered for want of funds.

"Spain's destiny is not here in America. It lies within herself. That she has lost her colonies, so far away, is nothing. It is better as it is.

"Don Carlos is in excellent health for the promotion of his cause. His only trouble is with his throat. He amokes too much, but it is not serious, for when he restrains himself for a day or two the trouble goes away. He is fit to win a victory and he will win it."

LONDON, Dec. 23.—From a Carlist agent in this city, whose identity must be kept secret, is learned many details of the preparations for rising in Spain, which are almost marvelous as an example of patience, intricacy and detail.

In the first place there is the Carlist war chest. It consists of 20,000,000 pesatas, half of which has already been distributed in small amounts and by trusty hands throughout the peninsula. Ten million pesetas are held beyond the frontier as a reserve fund. While rapidly perfected in the last few months, the plans now maturing were begun ten years ago.

First there was the listing of sympathizers and the bringing together of those listed. Next came organization. The able-bodied men were organized into small companies, and these, under the direction of experienced officers, met in obscure places to plot and to drill. The companies were not brought together, but their officers were, and they chose from themselves leaders, who, should ever the time come, be colonels or generals of brigades. The colonels had never seen their regiments and the generals had never mustered their brigades, but both are present, though unnoticed, in every province.

Near Madrid are the officers of the general staff, who have sought with some success to unify their spectral army and to smuggle into the country arms and ammunition. This army is now 10,000 strong. Each village conceals a squadron or company, each town a battery or a battalion. And in more than one hiding place is a commission signed Carlos VII.

Arms are hidden in various ways all over the land. No one seems to find them now, but at the word "El Rey" their owners will find them and bring them forth. The plan of mobilization is that of the Prussian army.

Beyond the border waits Don Carlos. First, for a crisis in Madrid which he expects during the debate on the peace treaty in the cortes; second, for something which will keep the powers occupied elsewhere, as he wishes no Franco-German interference as in 1873. The Sagasta government trembles for the opening of the drama.

NEW COUNTERFEIT ISSUED.

Its of the Series of 1896 One Dollar Silver Certificates—Execution Poor and Should Deceive Only Careless Handlers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—A new counterfeit $1 silver certificate has been discovered. It is of the series of 1896, Bruce, register; Roberts, treasurer, and apparently printed from photo-etched plates on heavy bond paper. No attempt has been made to imitate the silk fiber and the treasury number has been traced with blue writing fluid which blurs when dampened, as does the red coloring applied to the seal. The execution is poor and the work would deceive only the most careless handlers.

Timid Burglars.

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky., Dec. 24.—The safe in E. A. Duncan's saloon was blown open Friday morning, but the burglars evidently were scared away, as the contents, consisting of several hundred dollars, were not disturbed.

Three Good Committee Places Are Open.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Speaker Reed will still have two or three good committee places to dispose of after the holidays. There will be three fat places in the committee on appropriations, two for republicans and one for a democrat. As the late Representative Northway and Gov.-elect W. A. Stone were both on the subcommittee in charge of the sundry civil bill it is not unlikely the speaker will name the new members in time for assignments to aid in that work. The same holds true about the general deficiency bill.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The senate had a busy day Monday and there were several important speeches. Mr. Platt (Ct.) spoke against the Vest resolution which declares that the United States has no power to acquire territory. He said that the power of a nation to acquire territory was inherent as the sovereignty. The United States had the right to govern such territory in the best possible manner until the people of the acquired lands were capable of self-government. Mr. Proctor (Vt.) and Mr. Hale (Me.) exchanged divergent views upon the subject of a commission of senators to visit Cuba. Mr. Proctor thought such a commission was necessary, while Mr. Hale said he thought it would be in extremely bad taste and useless. The Nicaragua canal was up during the last part of the day and Senators Berry, Allen, Hoar, Caffery and Morgan discussed the measure.

HOUSE—Monday was suspension day in the house and several bills were passed, the most important of which was the bill appropriating $250,000 for the Philadelphia exposition of 1899. It had but two votes more than the necessary two-thirds. Bills were also passed under the suspension of the rules to authorize the distribution of the assets of the Freedman's bank, to enlarge the scope of the fish commission to include game birds, Bailey (Tex.) introduced a resolution in open house, directing the judiciary committee to investigate and report on the question as to whether the members of the house who accepted commissions in the army had forfeited their seats in the house. Mr. Dingley, from the committee on ways and means, offered the resolution for a holiday recess from Wednesday, December 21, to Wednesday, January 4, and it was adopted without division.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—SENATE—Senator Teller occupied the first half of Tuesday's session in the senate with a speech in advocacy of the theory that there are no restrictions upon the right of the United States to expand its territory so as to include distant territory. He want quite thoroughly into the legal points bearing upon the question and also incidentally discussed at some length the form of government for the Philippines, saying that he would encourage self-government among the islanders and would give them the most liberal government which they were capable of conducting, but that he would not take down the American flag where once planted. The remainder of the session was given up to the Nicaragua canal bill. Senator Caffery was the only speaker on this subject and he opposed the Morgan bill.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday listened to the first speech on the subject of the annexation of the Philippines. Mr. Williams (Miss.), a democratic member of the foreign affairs committee, in an hour's speech, stated his opposition to a policy which would bring the islands under the sphere of United States influences. He contended that it would be hostile to the spirit of our institutions to assume control over 9,000,000 unwilling subjects, that annexation would cost us $140,000,000 a year, that the annexation of the islands met none of the tests which applied to our past acquisitions of territory and would be a mistake from a social, political and military standpoint. The naval appropriation bill was passed without material amendment. It carried $3,696,322, or $167,120 more than the current law. Several resolutions from the river and harbor committee calling upon the secretary of war for estimates as to the cost of certain proposed river and harbor work were adopted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—SENATE—The absence of a quorum of the senate Wednesday saved Senator Proctor's resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of senators, to investigate the conditions in Cuba and Porto Rico during the approaching long recess of congress from decisive defeat. An effort was made by Mr. Daniels, (Va.), to obtain consideration for the resolution, but his motion mustered only 8 of the 38 votes cast. No business of importance was disposed of at Wednesday's session. Only some routine business, including the passage of a few pension bills, was transacted. Adjourned for the holidays.

HOUSE—The last session of the house before the holiday recess lasted but an hour. The Bailey resolution directing an investigation of the right of the members who volunteered in the Spanish American war to seats in the house was adopted and several bills of minor importance were passed.

Tim O'Connor Exonerated.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 23.—The grand jury Thursday night exonerated Special Policeman Tim O'Connor for killing 16-year-old Charles Tracey Sunday before last. Tracey was a member of a tough crowd of boys who have made Kentucky avenue a dangerous part of the city for years. The crowd were attacking women and children with pieces of ice and O'Connor, in dispersing the crowd, accidentally shot young Tracey. The shooting has had a marked effect in the preservation of order in that part of the city.

Trophies of the Late War.

NEWCASTLE, Ind., Dec. 23.—Arrangements have been made, in accordance with the suggestions of Lieut. W. H. Elliott, of this place, late executive officer of the United States steamer Leonidas, for the flag which the battle ship Indiana carried through the Santiago fight, and Nordenfeldt rapid fire gun, captured from the Christobel Colon, to be presented to the state of Indiana.

Deputy Sheriff Killed by a Boy.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Thomas Crosby, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Margaret Crosby, a wealthy widow living in Edgewater, a suburb of Chicago, shot and instantly killed Deputy Sheriff Frank Nye Thursday while Nye was attempting to serve a writ of restitution. The writ was based on a mortgage for $20,000, which had been foreclosed on the Crosby homestead.

A Farmer Turning to Bone.

LAPORTE, Ind., Dec. 23.—Abner Watts, a farmer living near Hamlet, is reported by physicians to be slowly turning to bone. His eyesight has left him and the gradual dissolution will continue until death results. The transformation of Watts' body from flesh to bone has been going on for seven years, physicians being unable to afford the slightest degree of relief.

Carlists Arrested.

MADRID, Dec. 23.—The Carlist agitation continues in several of the northern provinces and a number of agitators have been arrested at Morella, province of Castellon de la Plana, owing to Carlist demonstrations.

Spanish Troops Arrive at Cadiz.

CADIZ, Dec. 23.—The Spanish transport Gran Antilla, Capt. Bayoma, which sailed from Havana on December 2 for Barcelona, with repatriated Spanish troops on board, has arrived at this port.

Winnie Ellis, 107 years old, died near Waco, last week.

Major Benton, of Clark county, sold his farm of 112 acres at $100 per acre.

Lincoln county sold $42,000 worth of county bonds at a premium of $1,065.

Last month a Harrodsburg physician officiated at the births of 22 boys and 4 girls.

An epidemic of measles has created consternation among the Paducah school children.

Nancy Wright, of Bath county has been missing several weeks and foul play is suspicioned.

The wife of J. T. Hudnall, of Warren county, committed suicide by jumping head first into a well.

Wm. Myers, aged 92 and Miss Martha Cummins, aged 60, were married last week in Brackin county.

The Lexington grand jury found 101 indictments against saloon keepers for selling liquor on Sunday.

Mrs. Rosa McGee, of Henderson, has sued a saloon keeper for $15,000 for selling her husband intoxicating drinks.

The projectors of the electric railroad from Georgetown to Lexington are said to be in earnest about building the line.

Three Boyd county men came near losing their lives in an attempt to trap a wild cat, but they succeeded in securing two very large cats.

A rabbit weighing 18 pounds and measuring 4 feet, 6 inches in length, was sold in the Louisville market last week. It was killed in Indiana.

Wm. Weaver died in a Louisville hospital last Thursday after having lived a month with a broken neck. His injury was caused by a fall from a freight car near LaGrange, last month.

Old river men expect a flood within the next few weeks that will prove a record-breaker on the lower Ohio river. The ice is all out of Green river and navigation has been resumed in that stream.

A little girl living with Dr. Howard Dickson, near Pembroke, Christian county, was seized with an epileptic fit while standing in front of an open grate, and, falling into the fire, was burned to death.

George Morgan, of Harrodsburg, went to Havana to open a clubhouse, found so many others had gone ahead of him to embark in the same business he determined to wait until later to decide about the venture.

The Carrollton electric railway is a go. Sixty of the seventy-five thousand dollars necessary to build a bridge across the Kentucky river has been procured and an Eastern firm has guaranteed the building of the road.

The Kenton-County Grand jury returned a number of indictments against foreign corporations for unlawfully carrying on business in the State of Kentucky in not having filed with the Secretary of State the names of their agents upon whom court services can be had.

An election on the local option question was held at Raywick, at which the Prohibitionists won by a majority of 34. The clerk, who is a Prohibitionist, in certifying the returns unintentionally reversed his figures and certified that the whisky men had won by Commissioners decided that they had no authority to go behind the returns, and made their certificate in conformity with the returns. It will be contested.

For about three years a pack of wild dogs have dwelt in the cedar thicket on the Magoffin farm. They are as wild as a wolf, and at the approach of a human being utter sharp yelps and are off like the wind. Their number increased until they branched out, part of them going to the Hanna place, where they lived in a straw rick, and their depredations on sheep folds, hog pens and poultry walks aroused the farmers to the necessity of their being exterminated, and Mr. Hanna took a day off and killed a number of them. —Harrodsburg Democrat.

Circuit Clerk Bailey, of Shelby county, has secured an organization of twenty-five Circuit Clerks and ex-Circuit Clerks to fight the suit against them to recover to the treasury money paid them as clerks under the act allowing fees in felony cases. Judge Pryor and Courtland Chenault have been engaged by the clerks. They will fight the law on the ground that the Court of Appeals held in the election commission case that the provisions of the constitution providing that "no salary shall be changed" during the term of office does not apply to fee offices.

In a little graveyard near Morehead is a grave with the following peculiar inscription on the stone at its head: "Stop, stranger; tread not on the grave of one who never forsook a friend or forgave an enemy—Johnny Martin lies here." The occupant was the victim of a base plot growing out of the famous Rowan county feud of a dozen or more years ago. Martin was arrested on some charge and brought to the jail in this county for safe keeping. A mob of his enemies forged the name of the County Judge to an order of delivery, and our Jailer delivered him to what he supposed was a Sheriff's Posse to take him back to Morehead. When near Farmers the false posse hung their prisoner to the railroad bridge and riddled the body with bullets. More than sixty men were killed in that feud and the Winchester company of State Militia was stationed here, at one time to keep the peace. It culminated in 1888 by the wiping out of the leaders of the Tolliver gang and peace has reigned there since.—Winchester Democrat.

CROP AND STOCK.

Many horses are dying of blind staggers in Breckinridge county.

Scott county tobacco growers have organized a county league to cooperate with the State league.

In Clark county Squire J. Scott Renick sold to S. D. Goff 857 shocks of corn that made 1,704 barrels at $1 40 per barrel.

J. D. Noel, buyer for Ligget & Myers, has purchased in Montgomery, this season over 50,000 lbs. of tobacco at 6 and 8 cents.

The Interior Journal says that J. W. Powell, of West Lincoln, is back from Salisbury, N. C., where he sold a car load of hogs at 5cts.

A six-legged rabbit was killed by Jerome Stilz, a German farm boy, near Belton, last week. It is the only freak of the kind ever seen in the Pennyrile.

W. E. Harris, who has just assessed Lancaster, reports 86 dogs, 189 white voters and 170 colored voters. According to the rule that there are five inhabitants for each voter, Lancaster would have 1,795 people.

W. J. Sebree, of Ghent, bought for F. P. Sebree about 25,000 lbs. of tobacco in Indiana, last week, the highest prices for best grades being 6 cents, while the lowest grades brought 1 to 1½ cents.—Carrollton News.

The Gazette reports at the Lexington stock yards Monday only 250 cattle of all kinds, mostly Tennessee and rough stuff. Stock heifers sold for 2½ and 3¼ cents. Tennessee stock steers, weighing from 400 to 600 lbs., sold at $3 to $3.10; only a few good steer feeders sold at 4½ cents.

W. J. Davidson, the well-known produce dealer at this place, last Friday shipped over 3,000 rabbits from this point. One country store alone brought in 500. This is the biggest shipment of bunnies ever made at one time from here, and it is a great relief to the apple orchards of the country.

The Interior Journal says: Bad weather cut the usual crowd nearly half yesterday. All the cattle on the market changed hands, 4 cents being the price. Butcher three short yearlings sold at $22 each; a bunch of heifers at 3 to 3¼ cents; 22 sugar mules at $80; 22 mules at an average of $65; 58 700-lb. cattle at $27; a lot of corn at $1.25 delivered and 100 bushels of oats at 33 cents.

Fountain Rice is now gathering fifteen acres of drilled corn, raised on Mrs. Black's place, at Duncanon, Madison county, which has seventeen shocks to the acre and every shock will yield six bushels. This is a yield of over twenty barrels to the acre and is probably the best piece of corn raised in Madison county this year. The soil on which it was raised is virgin soil, having been broken for the first time last spring says the Register.

The tobacco-growers of Kenton Grant and Boone counties say that, as a result of the combination formed by the manufacturers of plug tobacco, they are unable to sell their tobacco at prices high enough to pay the cost of production. Orrin Percival, a tobacco grower of Boone county, said Thursday: "Last season I sold my tobacco crop for 14 cents a pound. This season I have a much better crop, but so far I have been unable to sell it for 6 cents a pound. "The much talked-of combination of the farmers to hold up prices is a complete failure. All that the farmers can do is to stop growing tobacco for two or three years.—Post.

Hon. Claud M. Thomas, of this county, has been elected State organizer of the Kentucky League of Tobacco Growers. Mr. Thomas is one of the most enterprising and popular young men of the State, and will succeed in this position. He has served as a member of the Kentucky Legislature and was consul to Marsailles under Cleveland. He has been engaged in farming since his return to America. The undertaking is a large one, as farmers are more difficult to organize and keep in line than any other class of men. The trust will not be idle in sending emmissaries to prevent the organization if its success will in any way interfere with their plans.—Paris Reporter.

After January 1st the stamped envelopes issued by the Post-office Department will be a red stamp of exactly the same shade as the carmine two-center. This in accordance with an article in the international postal agreement which requires all issues of the same denomination of a stamp to be uniform in color. The department will this month begin substituting the red stamp on envelopes for the green.

The Osage Indians are probably the wealthiest people per capita on earth, are aristocrats, and scorn manual labor, according to Agent Pollock's annual report to the interior department. They own over 300 acres for each man, woman and child, each receiving an annuity of over $200 cash. As an illustration, if an Indian and his wife have eight children, the annual cash income of the family is over $2,000.

W. T. Stott moved back from [illegible], last Tuesday. That evening his friends killed the fatted calf, and Billie set up his five year-old Sherry, and they ate, drank and were merry.

Chas. Klopp and Miss Leona Evans were married at the residence of the bride's parents, last Wednesday evening, Rev. Leslie Early officiating. We wish them a happy and prosperous future.

Stanley Buchanan caught a Johnboat in the river, here the other morning. The bottom of the boat was smeared with blood, while a large dirk-knife and a hammer used for [illegible]king stone on the pike were in the boat. A murder is suspected.

The entertainment given by the M. E. Church Sunday School at Gordon's Hall, last Friday night, was a complete success in every particular. The hall was comfortably filled with well dressed, healthy, happy looking people. The ladies never looked more beautiful and gents more gallant than on that beautiful moonlit night as they wended their way to the spacious hall to witness the cantata, "Santa Claus' Palace." It is not my desire to praise the merits of one participant more than another, but there are one or two characters that deserve special mention. A recitation, "If You Are Good," by Margarett McWethy, a wee bit of a girl, pleased everyone. The Fan and Cane drills by 8 girls and 8 boys, were executed to perfection. Just as the curtain dropped on this scene some of the combustibles behind the curtains took fire, causing a panic among the audience. One lady fainted and had to be carried out. After some time quiet was restored, and the exercises proceeded. The Eskemo children and their song entitled, "There is Nothing Like Mother With Us," was pleasing and entertaining. Will Crisler, as Prof. Crank, acted his part to perfection, and caused many a smile to creep over the faces of the old fathers and mothers in Isreal. The Embassadors, Stanley Buchanan and Earl Whiting, who went to the north pole in Prof. Crank's flying machine, got there alright, notwithstanding it exploded while in the middle of the Arctic ocean. The curtain fell on the closing song, "Sweet be Thy Dreams," and everybody went home and brought their neighbors to the Christian Sunday School entertainment the next night, the 24th. Bellevue, Bullittsville, Aurora and Lawrenceburg were represented in this nice looking and well behaved audience, and when the curtain raised on the first act there were 400 people in the hall. There were more little people in this entertainment, and acted their parts well. Little Pauline Alden deserves especial mention for the part she assumed. The cantata, "The Sewing Circle," by eight girls, was very amusing and a good portrayal of human nature. At no time was the audience restless, and when the bevy of girls composing the Hoop Drill, came upon the stage, every neck was craned and eyes bulged to get a glimpse of those handsome and sweet girls, who were dressed in the national colors—two in red, two in white and two in blue. Miss Leola Wingate and Miss Aleen Chambers acted their parts well and looked beautiful. During the first part of the last act some little child got lost from its parents and spying Will Casey down in the crowd and thinking he was her papa came running towards him, climbing up in his lap and put her tiny little arms around his neck, before she discovered her mistake. The boys in the gallery had a good time at Billy's expense. It is said that they were two of the nicest entertainment ever given in the town.
